Father Walsh Lays Barrage On New Deal And Its Critics

Georgetown 'U' Official Jibes at 'Overheated Imaginations.'

Proposes Council To Guide Business

'Enlightened Capitalism' Plan Is Submitted by Educator.

The Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, one of the Nation's foremost Catholic scholars and vice president of Georgetown University, assailed the New Deal last night.

With sarcasm he raked it for "overheated imaginations" that he said had lacked contact with realty.

Then he submitted his own chart for advance along the lines of "enlightened" capitalism.

This, he said, is America's second "appointment with destiny." The first, in 1787, resulted in the political wisdom of the Constitution. The present, he continued, should produce a prallel economic philosophy.

He proposed:

Creation of an economic council, an unofficial administrative body by which industry, labor and consumers should co-operate in voluntary regulation, with the Government being the last resort for enforcement.

Creation of "labor shares," certificates which would entitle workers, over and above their wages, to a share in any profits industry might make.

Hits New Deal Critics, Too.

"We have had enough of declarations of independence," he said, as he struck both at the Roosevelt Administration and at its critics who, he intimated, were responsible for the "troubles" of Maj. George L. Berry's NRA conference.

"The time has come for a declaration of dependence!"

Thus Father Wals started off the newest expression of the collegiate youth movement, George Washington University's newly elected student union, which, like a little Congress, will discuss and record opinion upon national issues.

The union, precedented in this country onl yat Yale, and abroad at Oxford and Cambridge, started off conventionally. Its installation meeting, with 250 persons present, was held in the airconditioned auditorium of the United States Chamber of Commerce—the hall whose rarefied atmosphere could not stand last year the discussions of Town Hall.

Motionless hung the many-hued flags of the great discoverers of America, of Columbus, of Balboa, of de Soto and La Salle, and on the platform, deep-voiced and smiling, Father Walsh presented greetings and his message.

Mixes Praise and Rebukes.

After a long dissertation on the follies of the machine age and the mechanical harshness of university credit ratings, Father Walsh turned suddenly to the New Deal—to March 4, 1933, when three things had to be effected, relief, recovery and reform. He praised handling of the banking crisis, but then, he said, the Government ran away with itself to effect everything at once. He contiuued:

"It was as if a fire department, on arriving at the scene of a dangerous conflagration, split its already limited membership into two groups, one of which withdrew from its primary obligation of putting out the fire in order to incorporate itself into an architectural institute.

"By light from the still burning edifice, they sketched a set of excellent blueprints for the future ideal structure to arise on the ashes of the old—not yet cold.

"But a further incorporation took place simultaneously with the first. A Philosophical Academy was chartered and launched on the spot for the purpose of determining the lineaments, the height, breadth and moral qualifications of the new ten-

Stratosphere Balloonists Awarded Hubbard Medals

Underwood & Underwood.

The Hubbard Medal, highest award of the National Geographic Society, being presented to Capt. Orvil A. Anderson (left), and Capt. Albert W. Stevens by Gen. John J. Pershing last night.

Geographic Society Decorates Two Stratosphere Balloonists

Hubbard Gold Medal Presented by Gen. Pershing; Movies Show Pair Escaped Disaster by Timely Dumping of Ballast.

Two men who soared almost to the "top of the world" in a stratosphere balloon were decorated last night before a cheering audience of several thousand persons in Constitution Hall.

Gen. John J. Pershing emphasized the "amazing" scientific value of the expedition as he conferred on both Capt. Albert W. Stevens and Capt. Orvil A. Anderson the Hubbard gold medal of the National Geographic Society for their Armistice Day flight of nearly 14 miles above sea level in South Dakota.

The happy balloonists later recounted their experiences in the stratosphere as motion pictures taken from the highest altitude ever attained by man were flashed on the screen.

Earth's Curvature Proved.

High points of the movies came when the National Geographic Society-U. S. Army Air Corps balloon Explorer II was shown near disaster avoided only by release of ballast and when visual proof was given of the curvature of the earth.

Gen. Pershing, a trustee of the National Geographic Society, emphasized that the expedition produced valuable information for study in a score of scientific fields.

"We are proud, Capt. Stevens and Capt. Anderson," he said, "that you achieved an altitude record of 72,395 feet in the flight of Explorer II one month ago today.

"We are honoring you tonight, however, not for setting a record but for carrying aloft 64 instruments and pieces of scientific apparatus to the highest possible altitude because there they were most effective in exploring the secrets of the skies.

"You, Capt. Stevens, devised and adapted some of these instruments and planned their operation.

"You, Capt. Anderson, piloted this aerial laboratory nearly two miles higher than man has flown before and you brought to earth this unique cargo of scientific instruments as safely and as gently as if they had descended in an elevator."

Both Get Equal Praise.

Gen. Pershing reviewed the distinguished Army records of both balloonists and explained their fame was not achieved overnight, but was the culmination of a long series of contributions to the world and to science.

He particularly lauded Capt. Stevens for his improvements to military photography and pointed out that Capt. Anderson, an airship, airplane and free balloon pilot, "is one of a limited number of officers holding all four flying ratings bestowed by the United States Army Air Corps."

Both recipients thanked Gen. Pershing for the medals.

Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, National Geographic Society president, who introduced Gen. Peshing, described the flight as "the most dramatic scientific expedition of modern times."

Laughter greeted Capt. Stevens as he told of incidents which taught the balloonists "not to take ourselves too seriously."

After the flight, he explained, he received a letter from an injured Army aviator who listened to radio broadcasts from the Explorer II while it floated through the skies.

"I knew God was with you," the Silver Program Of U.S. Is Kept Guarded Secret

Officials Refuse to Discuss London Market Break; 'Hill' Bloc Puzzled.

Administration plans in regard to silver yesterday remained a secret within a small group which declined to discuss what it had in mind or to throw any light on developments of the last three days when the Treasury's failure to purchase the white metal led to a one-day collapse of the London silver market.

Treasury officials flatly declined to discuss the silver situation, pointing out that their policy in the past has been surrounded by secrecy made necessary by the activities of speculators. So far as could be learned, the few Treasury officials with knowledge of the situation have not taken any others into their confidence.

Congress Bloc to Act.

The Treasury declined to confirm or deny, for instance, reports from London late yesterday that its agents had reentered the silver market there by making small purchases and thereby enabling brokers to establish a price equivalent to 61 cents an ounce. There were no buyers Tuesday and for the first time since 1914 no price was fixed.

Whether the Treasury's silver course this week is only temporary, a tactical move, or whether it is the beginning of an abandonment of its program of making substantial purchases in the world market, were matters of speculation. If the latter is the correct interpretation of what has happened, it is certain that silver will become a topic of warm debate when Congress convenes.

U. S. Far From Its Goal.

Spokesmen on Capitol Hill for the silver bloc appeared to be no better informed as to what was happening than the general public. Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, said he planned to call together the silver bloc when Congress meets to consider the entire situation.

As matters stand, the Treasury, although purchasing huge quantities of the white metal, has made little progress toward achieving the objective of the 1934 silver purchase act, which was a world silver price of $1.29, or the acquisition of one-third as much silver as gold.

After reaching a high of 81 cents, under Treasury buying and a boost

Cotton Control Defense Rested By Government

Cummings Today Will Seek to Block Holding Firm Injunctions Suits.

By Robert C. Albright.

Swiftly revising legal strategy in defense of New Deal laws, the Government, after a day of uncertainty, decided last night to rest its case before the Supreme Court on the Bankhead cotton control act, without further oral arguments.

On another front, Attorney General Homer S. Cummings announced he would appear today before the District Supreme Court to seek a stay in seven independent injunction proceedings against the utilities holding company act.

U. S. Held Covered.

Still a third Administration measure was speeded on its test flight to the courts by the Wagner Labor Relations Board, seeking to determine the constitutionality of its own law on the basis of a collective bargaining suit against Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines, Inc., in a Philadelphia circuit court.

Change in Government plans on Bankhead law litigation followed sudden illness of Solicitor General Stanley Reed in the courtroom Tuesday, while he was arguing cotton control legality, immediately after completion of Supreme Court AAA hearings.

Reed's arguments were cut short by his fainting spell, but the Justice Department said last night he had completed his "procedural" statement, and had fully covered the remainder of his "friend of the court" contentions in briefs previously filed with the justices.

The Government insists Constitutional issues are not involved in the case, but Lee Moor, the Texas cotton farmer who challenged the legality of the cotton act, demands a Constitutional ruling. Likewise, counsel for the Texas & New Orleans Railroad, sued by Moor for failing to move his untaxed cotton, wants the Constitutional question decided.

Justice Statement.

Attorney General Cummings, in his unprecedented appearance before the District Supreme Court today, will ask the justices to withhold action on injunction motions of seven utility holding companies, to avoid a "multiplicity" of suits on the law.

The Securities and Exchange Commission already has brought action against the Electric Bond & Share Co., and its five holding company subsidiaries, for failing to register, and Cummings will ask that a constitutional test of the law be

Japan Hints Deal for U. S. Naval Parity

Believed Ready to Grant Britain Superiority in Exchange.

5-4-4 Ratio Suggested as Tokyo's Plan; Davis Replies Today.

By the United Press.

London, Dec. 11.—The Japanese delegation to the five-power naval conference today intimated that Japan is prepared to concede Great Britain naval superiority in return for equal sea power with the United States.

The conference was puzzled when Admiral Osami Nagano said that once Japanese views were accepted the conference might study the vulnerability and varying security needs of each power and that in this connection "slight adjustments" could be made.

Nagano's statement was interpreted as referring to an arrangement by which the United States and Japanese fleets would be equal while Great Britain would be allowed superior tonnage—possibly a 5-4-4 ratio. However, Nagano did not mention figures.

U. S. Gives Stand Today.

Norman Davis, chief American delegate, intends to define the United States attitude toward Japan's parity demand tomorrow. It is believed he will reject it by emphasizing that the United States advocates "equality of security," which does not necessarily involve equal tonnage.

Nagano announced that Japan proposes naval equality for Japan, the United States and Great Britain on the basis of global total tonnage parity at the lowest possible level. This would entail substantial scrapping of warships by the leading fleets. He added that if the level agreed upon were lower than the present Japanese strength, Japan was willing to scrap tonnage necessary to reach the common level.

Global parity would enable each nation to build the kind of vessels best suited to its needs.

Nagano's statement was in response to seven questions put to the Japanese delegation yesterday by Viscount Eyres-Monsell, first lord of admiralty, of which the two most important were:

Is Japan ready to unfold her building program for the next six years?

Does Japan contemplate a common upper limit for all or only for some powers?

Proposes Common Limit.

Nagano answered the second query by proposing a common limit for the three leading powers, the United States, Great Britain and Japan. He pointed out that at the 1922 Washington Conference, 1927 Geneva and 1930 London conferences negotiations were conducted primarily among the United States, Great Britain and Japan, with France and Italy either outside or on the edge of the negotiations.

Nagano announced Japan's refusal to unfold her naval construction plans until the conference determines the volume of global tonnage for each power or agrees to limitation of individual types of warships and gun calibers.

Nagano indicated that Japan believes herself more vulnerable to attack than the United States. He concluded that if agreement is attained on global tonnage for each navy, Japan will be prepared to discuss limitation of the various categories of warships.

British quarters emphasized that the conference is determined to tackle quanitative discussions before considering other business, but added that no agreement regarding parity or an "upper limit" has been reached. No deadlock has occurred so far, they said, as Japan is continuing to define her position in detail. Japan has not made any new demands thus far.

Envoys Rush to Geneva As Ethiopia Hits Truce; Borah Denounces Plan

Senator Says Duce Would Be 'Most Powerful Figure in Europe.'

Officials Here Glad They Didn't Meddle

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

As Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, yesterday assailed the Anglo-French proposal for compromising the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, State Department officials privately congratulated each other on their wisdom in keeping this country from becoming actively involved with the League of Nations' program during the last four months.

Senator Borah saw in the reported British and French plan evidence of this country's wisdom in remaining outside of the League of Nations and of a need to adhere strictly to a doctrine of neutrality in foreign conflicts. Not only would consummation of this program make Benito Mussolini "the most powerful figure in Europe," but it would leave the League "a subservient instrument of imperialism," the Idahoan asserted.

The State Department officially had no comment to make on the reported plan of the British and French to give Italy that part of Ethiopia now occupied by Fascist troops in exchange for a corridor through Italian territory to a seaport for Ethiopia. It was explained that the department had received no information regarding this development.

"Hands Off," Is Word.

The development, even if accurately described in press cables, will make no difference in this country's course of action, it was pointed out. It will not be a party to such a peace settlement, even though stopping the East African war is one of the secondary factors inspiring American policy.

As long as the conflict continues, it was further asserted, this Government will pursue the neutrality policy on which it embarked October 5, a policy, it was reiterated, dictated by this country's best interests and undertaken without consultation or co-operation with any other nation or group of nations.

Although this Government does not regard the settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian war as its direct affair, the United States would not regard with pleasure or approval a settlement based on territorial concessions to Italy. It believes, as Secretary of State Cordell Hull frequently has asserted, in the integrity and sanctity of treaties. It further believes that if treaty violators are not punished, but rather are rewarded, the peace machinery of the world will collapse.

Statement Uncertain.

Whether expression will be given to this attitude depends on the developments of the next few days and on the outcome of the Anglo-French proposal. This Government's position, however, could be made clear by a statement to the press, either formal or informal, by Secretary Hull.

A more serious course would be for this Government to call to the attention of Italy the solemn obligation which that country undertook, along with the United States and a score of other nations, in the Argentine anti-war pact not to recognize territorial arrangements not obtained through pacific means. But this may not be necessary if the "peace" program falls of its own weight, as some in official circles here expect it to do.

But irrespective of the outcome of the pending "peace" proposal, it has had the effect here of convincing not only the isolationists, but some of those favoring international co-operation, that a strict neutrality policy is the wisest course for this country to pursue in foreign conflicts.

The danger of Europe "selling

Scores Peace Terms

SENATOR BORAH.

Enraged African Envoy Tells Laval Terms Are Impossible.

Last-Ditch Battle In Africa Pledged

Surrender Would Mean Revolt of Natives, Officials Say.

The Crisis Abroad.

At Paris, Ethiopian Minister Mariam assured Premier Laval that Ethiopia never will talk peace with Italy on the basis of the new Anglo-French plan.

At Addis Ababa, officials stated acceptance of the peace plan would lead to revolt against Emperor Haile Selasse. The Emperor, at Dessye, branded Italian denials of bombing the American hospital there "audacious lies."

At London, the government, target of press disapproval on the peace plan, decided to shelve oil embargo action for the present.

At Rome, official circles saw peace talks ahead on the basis of the new plan.

At Geneva, smaller powers, scoring the plan as a "premium for aggression," were ready to balk at Franco-British lead.

By the United Press.

Paris, Dec. 11.—Premier Pierre Laval sped toward Geneva by express train tonight with official assurance that Ethiopia never will talk peace with Italy on the basis of the Franco-British proposal.

Wolde Mariam, new Ethiopian minister, stormed into the Quai D'Orsay, his beard quivering with excitement, to denounce the proposals to Laval. Afterward the foreign office said it did not regard Wolde's statement as Emperor Haile Selassie's official repudiation of the peace plan, but the envoy left no doubt that he spoke for the king of kings.

"Why were we not consulted before?" he sputtered to newspapermen at the foreign office. "Why was the greater part of Tigre Province, which is pure Amharic, ceded to Italy in the Hoare-Laval formula? Why was Sir Samuel Hoare (British foreign secretary) party to this deal when he wrongs nations?"

"An Indelible Stain."

The minister's grizzled countenance worked agitatedly as he continued:

"How could it ever be imagined that this formula could be accepted by the Negus considering Tigre Province for 4,000 years has been a part of Ethiopian heritage? The Ethiopian armies, with the Emperor at their head, never would agree to this surrender, for it would constitute an indelible stain on the banner of the Lion of Judah forever.

"Does the proud lion calmly watch while the jackals seize his meat? We are a proud and independent race and never have known what it is like to bend down like a subject race.

"If the League of Nations should approve this peace formula, thus constituting betrayal of its principles which protect small nations, it will show that my nation has been the victim of a 'great betrayal' to save the prestige of a big nation which invaded my country without provocation, bringing with it bombs, tanks and all the other methods of modern destruction whereof our people are ignorant.

Pledges Fight to End.

"Although Ethiopia may have to stand alone against the aggressor, it will do its duty and if it has to succumb it will go down fighting. Our warriors will die rather than surrender by peace one inch of territory which constitutes an act of amputation—as if you should cut off your right arm. Italy cannot smash our courage."

Laval conferred tonight aboard his train with Capt. R. Anthony Eden, British League delegate, and Dr. Salvadore de Madariaga, of Spain, chairman of the League committee of five which must decide whether or not the League cares to sponsor the peace offer.

By shifting the scene from Paris to Geneva, the statesmen put the burden of peace directly upon the League, because Italy is expected to accept. Diplomats believed there was a possibility the League might

Edith Maxwell To Get Hearing On Plea Today

Judge May Give Ruling by Nightfall; Hill Girl Remains Calm.

By Virginia Lee Warren,
A Staff Correspondent.

Wise, Va., Dec. 11.—Edith Maxwell's fight against a quarter of a century in prison begins here tomorrow.

Her attorneys were prepared tonight to ask the Wise Circuit Court to set aside the verdict of the mountain jury that found her guilty of killing her father by striking him on the head with a high-heeled slipper when he threatened her with a beating for staying out until midnight.

To Know Verdict.

Edith's counsel will present to H. A. W. Skeen, circuit court judge, a brief embodying seven contentions upon which they base their argument that the verdict of guilty was not proper. The weight of their argument is that the evidence fell short of proving intent to kill.

Edith, her attorneys said tonight, may know before nightfall whether the verdict is to be final or whether she is to be given another chance to plead her cause before a jury of her peers.

Judge Skeen has the discretion of reserving opinion, counsel said, but usually he rules extemporaneously on motions of this kind.

Edith tonight maintained her calm. She told her attorneys, "I feel that justice will be done."

Defense Charges.

At her trial it was contended for Edith that her father, Trigg Maxwell, was "roaring drunk" and that Edith struck in self-defense. The prosecution charged premeditated murder. The mountain jury, holding fast to an outmoded code that makes the man absolute master of his household, said "guilty."

In the brief prepared for presentation tomorrow, Attorneys A. A. Skeen and R. P. Bruce alleged:

Improper evidence was admitted.

Improper instructions were given to the jury.

The court failed to instruct the jury as to the lesser degrees of murder other than first degree.

The verdict was contrary to the law and the evidence.

There was no evidence to support the verdict.

The Commonwealth's attorney

Toy-for-a-Ticket Film Showing To Swell Post's Christmas Fund

There was good news yesterday for needy children who hope for a Christmas toy through The Washington Post Doll and Toy Fund.

The Post and Loew's Fox Theater are co-operating in a venture which will swell greatly the fund of toys which is being collected for those who otherwise would not receive a gift on Christmas morning.

On Saturday, December 21, there will be a special children's picture at the Fox. The admission charged for any child will be a toy or a piece of child's wearing apparel.

The doors of the theater will open at 8:30 a. m. and the show will start at 9 a. m. As children file through instead of giving the ticket collector a ticket, they will leave a toy or clothing for their admission.

Of course, the toys will go to The Washington Post Doll and Toy Fund, and when Christmas comes they will be distributed to needy children throughout the city. The clothing will go to those in need.

Any persons who are not able to attend the benefit picture at the Fox but who want to contribute a toy or a garment, may leave their gift at Capital Flier's Flivver Plane Gives Air 'Supremacy' to U. S.

Ben King, Who "Flies for the Fun of It," Sets Two New Records at Miami, Taking Lead From France; 600 Ships on Hand for Races.

By the Associated Press.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 11.—Two world records for small seaplanes were established here today by Ben King, of Washington, giving the United States international supremacy in air marks.

They served as a prelude to tomorrow's opening of Miami's eighth annual all-American air maneuvers.

King, a sportsman pilot, first flew 70.48 miles an hour over a 500-kilometer closed course, creating an original record for seaplanes weighing less than 551 pounds. No record existed for this class previously.

Later, he flew the same tiny two-cylinder ship over a 100-kilometer course at 80.931 miles an hour, breaking the record of 76.293 miles an hour set for France by Pilot Vercruysse in December, 1930.

These two records hoisted to 39 the marks in the possession of Uncle Sam's birdmen, and by taking one from France left it with 38.

As King drove his small plane through the air, fellow speed demons of the skies rode larger and swifter ships into Miami to renew their assault on other world records during the air show.

Among the arrivals were Maj. Al Williams, speed and stunt flier, and Tex Rankin, of Portland, Oreg., and Cincinnati, Ohio.

City officials predicted start of the air show at 1 p. m., tomorrow would find 600 or more Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, National Guard and civilian ships on hand for the maneuvers.

As Maj. Al Williams, speed and stunt flier, set his fast Curtiss Hawk, specially designed for aerial acrobatics, down on Municipal Airport this afternoon, he predicted radio waves would be the "air traffic cops of the future.

"I checked my position, altitude and speed with every Department

White House Dinner to Cabinet Opens Winter Social Season

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt ran true to form as breakers of White House precedent last night.

They opened the Capital social season with a Cabinet dinner, but, instead of limiting the affair to members of the official family, as most past Presidents have done, they made White House hospitality available to a total of 87 guests.

These included the Mayor of Chicago, a San Francisco banker, Amos and Andy, a Southern Methodist bishop, publishers from Des Moines and Los Angeles, a New York communications magnate and a group of White House reporters.

Guests from the White House family circle included the pretty and blonde former wife of Elliott Roosevelt, Mrs. Donner Roosevelt, of Philadelphia, and Frederic A. Delano, the President's uncle.

Following the dinner served on the traditional gold plate and cooked on the new electric White House kitchen, more guests arrived for a musicale. The artists were Frederick Jagel, tenor; Miss Vandy Cape, singing satires; Dr. V. Ernest Wolff, pianist, and Edward Hart, accompanist.

Details and Guest List Will Be Found on Society Page.

2 Bodies Draft U. S., Business Future Policies

Industry Insists on Limited Relationship; Textile Code Sought.

With only one floor of the Commerce Building separating them, two industrial advisory councils were preparing yesterday to make recommendations concerning future relationship between industry and the Government.

Industry itself continued to insist that the relationship should be as remote as possible. The Chamber of Commerce of the United States was preparing to poll its 1,500 member organizations on the question of taxation and to accompany its questionnaire with strong anti-New Deal arguments.

Secretary Roper yesterday said the plan to rotate membership on his advisory council, which has been in existence since the early days of the Administration, had been abandoned because most of the 26 members who had been expected to resign to make way for the rotation plan did not desire to quit.

Has Views of Most.

Maj. George L. Berry, co-ordinator for industrial co-operation, said he believed he was in possession of the views of practically all industry, expressed through letters addressed to him. He reiterated that "my position remains unchanged in any particular, and the industrial council will convene as soon as the mechanics can be arranged for study and discussion of the proposals already submitted."

There is no official connection between the two organizations, although it is assumed they will operate along parallel lines. One man is a member of both councils. He is Harry S. Dennison, Massachusetts paper manufacturer.

Berry's council, which will be divided between business and labor, will present a "suggested procedure," he said.

A statement signed by 16 labor representatives designated to be members of the Berry council, said they would co-operate in every way possible with the co-ordinator. They expressed the hope "that it will be possible through joint conference to formulate a program which will deal effectively and directly with the major problems forced upon the Nation through industrial and financial dislocation."

The labor apparel group, which selected Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and former NRA board member, as its representative, said it would press for enactment of a textile bill similar to the Guffey coal bill.

"The purpose of such legislation is to protect the apparel industries from being menaced again by sweatshop conditions, which prevailed in many factories before passage of the national recovery act."

In connection with his discussion of his advisory council, Roper made public a study of a plan for organization of a national advisory council. The study was made by Roper several years ago, before he was Secretary of Commerce, but it was recently turned over to Senator Bulkley (Democrat), Ohio, who heads a special committee investigating the idea.

Between You and Me

'Catspaw' League Moral For Us; Non-Trading To All Belligerents Works; Political Forays.

By Raymond Clapper

DON'T expect any weakening on the part of isolationists in Congress when the new neutrality legislation comes up within a few weeks.

They are likely to be more determined than ever to keep the United States from taking sides in European disputes. The most effective way to do this is to continue the principle in the existing temporary neutrality act, making it mandatory upon the President to apply munitions embargoes to both sides alike. Mr. Roosevelt wanted discretion to discriminate and use the embargo to punish one side while supplying guns and ammunition to the other.

His idea was strongly supported by those who wanted the United States to join in the League of Nations sanctions against Italy. They contended that the United States should help punish the aggressor and that not to join the League in discriminating between the belligerents was to obstruct the good work.

But the deal between Great Britain and France to buy off Mussolini at the expense of Ethiopia has made a farce out of the League's efforts to punish him as the aggressor. It confirms the suspicions of many here that the League has been a catspaw in a struggle among the powers. It confirms them in their belief that European politics is dominated by the great imperial powers and that the United States has no place in such a struggle.

Therefore those narrow-minded isolationists who believe that United States should keep out of European politics believe more firmly than ever that instead of throwing ourselves in—our guns, ammunition and everything but soldiers and battleships—on one side or the other, we should treat both belligerents alike.

In the temporary legislation, we withhold all arms and munitions of war from both sides. Sentiment is growing for extending this to cover shipments of raw materials in excess of normal peace-time shipments. The Administration has advanced the principle of non-intercourse much further than the statute provides. It has warned that all persons and all shipments destined for either belligerent travel at their own risk. By this Executive declaration, Mr. Roosevelt set aside our traditional policy of insisting that any American citizen had the God-given right to carry gasoline to any fire and that if he suffered an accident it was up to the Army and Navy to avenge his fate.

Congress didn't have the nerve to go 100 per cent in its embargo act and include also raw materials. But the Administration paved the way for that by its compromise suggestion that shipments in excess of normal be frowned upon. Public sentiment appears to support that policy and this favorable reaction may give Congress nerve enough to put it into law.

What a spectacle the United States would present now had Congress yielded to Mr. Roosevelt, given him discretionary power, and started him off arm in arm with the League sanctions policy! We would now be up to our necks in European politics, siding either with Great Britain and France in trying to jam the bribe to Mussolini down Ethiopia's throat or else we would be standing behind Ethiopia opposing the proposition of the two leading powers in Europe, and insisting upon proceeding with sanctions.

It is all very embarrasing to the European lecturers who have just arrived to collect their annual honorariums for telling ladies' clubs what a pity it is that the United States isn't a member of the League of Nations.

Political parade: The latest argument in favor of giving Herbert Hoover the Republican Presidential nomination is an article in Ray Moley's magazine, Today, entitled "The Advantages of Losing With Hoover." The author is in dead earnest about it . . . J. J. Burns, counsel of SEC, probably will resign soon to run for Governor of Massachusetts on the Democratic ticket . . . The real start of the anti-Roosevelt campaign will be made when the American Liberty League holds its rally here January 25, two weeks after the Democrats open up with their Jackson Day dinner. The Republican national committee meeting here Monday is being advertised as the start of the 1936 campaign, but the strategy calls for a lateral pass to the Liberty League, which will carry the ball . . . Kansas City businessmen are in town with $150,000. Republicans can have it if they will hold their national convention in Kansas City. If they don't take it, the offer will be open to the Democrats . . . Republican Presidential aspirants would be a little bolder about entering State Presidential primaries if they could get some assurance that Borah wouldn't come in to run against them. . . . Former Senator George Moses is supposed to have made an unsuccessful raid for convention delegates in one Southern State. The State chairman told him nothing doing. Moses wanted them for Frank Knox. The boldest foray of the year was that of Hoover's intimate friend, Mark Requa, who went into Borah's Idaho and rounded up some of Hoover's old Food Administration men for a pep meeting. Fortunately it was kept secret and didn't result in the rebuff that a similar meeting did in Ohio recently when it provoked the State committee to declare that Hoover should not be a candidate . . . Hoover is booked to make another major speech in the Middle West shortly.

Under the potato control act, AAA has alloted China a potato import quota for the coming year of 1.1 bushels.

Asked what would be done with these potatoes, Secretary Wallace said they ought to be donated to the widow in Maine who is supposed to have been fined $18 for killing two hogs.

Wallace put his agents on a search for the unfortunate widow and, after exhausting all clews, is convinced that a bushel of Chinese potatoes is more than she'll ever eat.

Sabotage Scouted In Cruiser Damage

Will Not Probe Accident Further, Says Swanson.

The Navy will not investigate further the cause of "serious damage" to the reduction gears of the new cruiser Quincy, it was stated yesterday by Secretary Swanson.

Rear Admiral Paul Dungan, the Navy's inspection officer at the Fore River plant, Quincy, Mass., informed officials here yesterday that the damage suffered by the ship last Saturday was entirely an "accident."

He added that the vessel's reduction gear and two pinions were damaged beyond repair. It is estimated that this will mean a delay of about a month in the completion of the cruiser.

It first was alleged in Boston that sabotage was the cause. Swanson quickly dismissed this theory, stating that the cost of the accident must be borne by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, since the Quincy had not been delivered to the Navy.

Test Is Sought On Wagner Act By Labor Board

Action Against Bus Line to Bring Court Ruling on Legality.

By Felix Bruner.

The National Labor Relations Board moved yesterday to test the constitutionality of the Wagner act, under which it operates.

The board filed with the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia its first order, calling upon the Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines, Inc., to "cease and desist" from interfering with union activities of its employes. The board will ask the court to enforce the order.

This action is expected to bring immediate consideration of constitutionality of the act. The litigation will be handled by attorneys for the labor board, without, at least for the time being, the assistance of the Department of Justice. Appeal is expected to be taken to the Supreme Court from any decision of the circuit court, thus making possible a final ruling.

J. Warren Madden, chairman of the labor board, in announcing the action yesterday, said that he did not expect a ruling from the lower court before March.

Fought By Industry.

The labor act has been subjected to general attack from industry. Six actions for injunctions against the board have been started in district courts, but the board is questioning the jurisdiction of these courts. The labor act was the first one to be held unconstitutional by the "supreme court" of the American Liberty League, composed of more than 50 leading lawyers.

"The board of its own motion has gone into court for the first time," Madden said. "It is following the enforcement procedure provided by law, because the board has no enforcing powers. The court is directed by law to sustain our finding of facts if there is evidence to support them.

"The question of constitutionality will certainly be involved. If we didn't think the law was constitutional and the facts warranted our findings, we would not have taken this case into court."

Opposition Denied.

Madden denied reports that there is a general disposition on the part of industry to decline to comply with the law.

The board announced that 350 cases had been handled by the board and by its 21 regional offices up to December 7. Of these, 86 cases were either settled satisfactorily or the charges were withdrawn for lack of sufficient evidence to sustain the complainants' contentions of unfair labor practice.

In two instances the board has ordered labor election. It has finished hearing 18 cases and is in the process of hearing 10 others. An additional 18 have been scheduled for hearing.

Madden admitted that one of the "tough nuts" that the board may eventually have to crack concerns disputes between labor unions themselves. At present the labor movement is seriously split on the subject of industrial and craft unions.

"We won't make a decision until a case comes before us," Madden said. "We won't have any business being pro-craft, pro-industrial, or pro-anything."

Pledge Lewis Support.

In connection with the internal labor dispute, which is threatening to split the American Federation of Labor, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers yesterday pledged their support to the group headed by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, which is seeking to change the policy of the federation to favor industrial union organization.

The general executive board of Amalgamated said:

"The total membership of the trade unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and of those not in affiliation comprises upward of 5,000,000 out of 40,000,000 organizable wage earners in the Nation's industries and services.

"A degree of organization not exceeding 12 per cent can not be viewed as satisfactory in an industrial and economic setup in which industry is highly organized, well centralized and subject to controls by a powerful leadership.

"Existing union organization in the basic industries, with the exception of the coal miners, has hardly penetrated and at best but scratched the surface. There is no question as to what is the primary cause of labor's failure to organze the unorganized millions in such industries as steel, automobiles, rubber, radio, oil, electrical supplies and the various services which now engage many millions of working people. It is, that the prevailing craft form of organization has proved unsuitable to the needs of labor in these mass production industries."

A.F.L. Demands Florida Labor Flogging Probe

Green Threatens to Cancel Tampa Convention Over Death.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, yesterday threatened to remove next year's federation convention from Tampa, Fla., unless persons responsible for recent tarring and flogging of three labor men there are punished.

Green asked Wandell Heaton, president of the Florida State federation of labor, to investigate the case and report to him. He took this action after hearing Murray Baron, representative of the labor and Socialist defense committee, and the Rev. James Myers, chairman of the industrial committee of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ.

Three men, representative of the Workers Alliance of America, who had been accused of communist activities, were captured by a mob after they had been questioned and released by Tampa authorities, and beaten so severely that one of them later died.

Insists on Probe.

"The American Federation of Labor will insist and demand that a full investigation be made by the proper authorities and that those found guilty of the outrage be properly punished," Green said.

"Unless said thorough and complete investigation is made and those found guilty of the alleged acts of violence and brutality are punished in accordance with law, it is altogether probable that the American Federation of Labor may find it necessary to change the holding of the convention of the American Federation of Labor in November, 1936, to some other city where working men and women are properly protected and the exercise of the rights conferred upon them by the laws of the land is fully recognized."

Not A. F. L. Affiliate.

The Workers' Alliance, to which the mob victims belonged, is not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. It has been active in various parts of the country in organizing the unemployed.

From Tampa, the Associated Press reported that Gov. Dave Sholtz had ordered every facility be used to capture the abductors, and that Heaton, who is State industrial commissioner as well as head of the State labor federation, was conducting an investigation.

From New York it was reported that Norman Thomas, Socialist Party leader, would go to Tampa to participate in a mas demonstration of protest. Thomas telegraphed Gov. Sholtz he had reports "from reliable sources the investigation may be mishandled to save the faces of Tampa police and some higher-ups."

Reports that policemen were in the mob were vigorously denied by Tampa officials.

Bones of Youth And Girl Found By Va. Trapper

Skeletons of Elopers in Ravine; Couple Last Seen Sept. 8.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Orange, Va., Dec. 11.—Two month ago Walter Hutchinson, 25, and Gladys Hicks, 17, left here on what neighbors believed to be an elopement.

Today their skeletons, hidden by the dense timber of an isolated ravine, were discovered by a trapper. Their car was gone and an unusual set of circumstances puzzled police.

Tonight actions of the police, which had been halted by darkness, pointed toward three solutions to the crime. They were that they died in a suicide pact, that they had been slain and their assailant fled in the car, and that one had been murdered and the other committed suicide.

At Grandfather's Home.

The couple was last seen by the girl's granfather at his home on the night of September 8. There had been talk of them "going to get married" for many months and when he found his granddaughter missing in the morning, he concluded she had eloped.

Most enlightening of the clews was furnished this afternoon when Virginia Cox, who, police reported, was a former sweetheart of Hutchinson, said that Hutchinson had told her she would "never see him again alive." Her picture was found in the clothes of the dead youth.

Hutchinson and the Hicks girl had been neighbors for more than a year, living 3 miles north of here on the Culpeper highway. They left in Hutchinson's motor car, the parents say. Tonight the car had not been found when darkness halted the search of the Church Run vicinity. Sergt. Fred Graves, of the Orange police, believed, however, the car was concealed somewhere in the heavy timber.

friend wrote, "because I heard you talking with Him."

Both balloonists then alternated in explaining "what we did" as the movies were shown.

Capt. Stevens confessed he felt "relieved to say the least" when the balloon, just after the flight began, began to lose altitude about 100 feet from a clump of trees. On release of 750 pounds of lead-dust ballast the craft soared to safety.

Both balloonists commended aids who patched a 17-foot rip in the balloon despite freezing temperature and other handicaps when the bag was inflated.

A photograph of the horizon 300 miles away showed more plainly than any other picture ever made the lateral curvature of the earth. The curve extended over a sweep of 220 miles, about one one-hundredth of the earth's circumference.

Forcasting Explained.

Capt. Randolph P. Williams, meteorological officer of the expedition, explained the methods used to forecast weather.

Cheers sounded when Capt. Stevens introduced Dr. Jean Piccard and his wife, Dr. Jeannette Picard, and complimented them on "as successful a flight as ever was made into the stratosphere." They earlier reached an altitude of 66,000 feet.

Among those on the platform in addition to the balloonists, Gen. Pershing and Dr. Grosvenor were Brig. Gen. Oscar Westover, acting chief of the Army Air Corps; Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, Bureau of Standards director; Dr. Frederick V. Coville, National Geographic Society research chairman; Dr. John Oliver La Gorce, society vice president, and George W. Hutchison, society secretary.

John Collins, 26, condemned to die for murder in Sing Sing's chair, places ring upon the finger of his bride, Anna Downey, 18. Judge William H. Robinson (right) performed the ceremony in New York yesterday. Collins' death sentence will be pronounced this week.

Jail Nuptials Give Unborn Baby Name of Man Doomed to Death

By the United Press.

New York, Dec. 11.—There was no music and hardly any flowers, but Anna Downey, who is going to have a baby, and John Collins, who is going to the electric chair, were married today.

They both cried about it a bit, and Deputy Sheriff Joseph Lippic, who put his badge away because he was best man, said it would be all right for them to sit on a bench over in the corner and talk for five minutes.

There wasn't much to talk about. Anna said she thought the bouquet of tea roses that John sent from the prison was awfully pretty. John said he was glad they let him put on a regular suit instead of a prison uniform.

"I guess we got to get going," said Deputy Sheriff Lippic, putting his badge outside again.

"Keep Your Chin Up."

"Goodby," said John to Anna. "Maybe my lawyers will get me out of this yet. Keep your chin up."

"I will," she said. "I guess I'll go over in Jersey for a couple of Months."

Anna came over from New Jersey on the ferry today. Most girls wear white dresses to their weddings, but she had on a black one and a black coat. Municipal Judge William H. Robinson performed the ceremony, rushing his words out like he wanted to get through with it.

"Do you take this woman as your wedded wife, will you love, comfort, honor and keep her as a faithful husband is bound to do?"

Collins said: "I will."

"I then pronounce you man and wife until death do you part."

Next week Collins probably will know the exact date when death will part them. He will be called up for sentence then for killing Charles Theurner during a holdup in a Laurel Hill, Long Island, beer garden last June. The death sentence is mandatory.

Before the wedding Collins tried to explain the whole business.

"It's sort of mixed up," he said, "but it's something like this. Five years ago we were just pals. I'm older, sure—I'm 21 and she's 19—but we were in the same room together in school. Well, we just got to telling friends last June that we were married, and that's why we wanted a religious ceremony now. But they wouldn't go for it."

May Downey, Anna's 27-year-old sister, came down to the Queen County Courthouse to be bridesmaid. The deputy sheriff said he would have to bring his gun to the wedding, and everybody said that would be all right. He kept it out of sight."

Walsh Attacks The New Deal And Its Critics

ants who should be admitted to the hygienic quarters in the hypothetical civilization which was to arise, phoenix-like, if and when the fire was ever put out.

"Runners were then dispatched in triplicate—always in triplicate—to the four corners of the land, bearing copies of the mandatory future in their bulging brief cases.

"The strange terminology, the supercilious vocabulary, and the superior profanity of the new and constantly multiplying apparitions bewildered the honest denizens of the countryside, frightened the timid under their beds, scared capital into hiding or diverted it overseas, and gave rise to embattled minute men and guardians of essential liberties."

But the Supreme Court came to the rescue, Father Walsh said, and "reason is slowly creeping back to the council chamber."

"As the President bids farewell, one after another, to each resigning empiricist on the expiration of his ineffective and costly experimentation," he continued, "he invited industry to take the ball in this breathing spell he mentioned and to see what business can do before the next election. For the President is up for election—not business—and he doesn't intend, shrewd man that he is, to be caught with this hot potato."

In a laughing aside, Father Walsh emphasized that he was speaking neither as a Democrat nor a Republican, although his Boston tradition was Democratic.

"I am only a legal resident of the District," he added, "one of the disfranchised, and therefore entitled to an objective view of national issues."

The economic council Father Walsh then proposed would be a selected group of delegates, between 50 and 100, elected by specific industrial and labor organizations, agricultural interests, civic bodies, and consumers' leagues. It would attempt to achieve the New Deal's aims—and Father Walsh emphasized that he thought industry had provided neither sufficiency nor security—through voluntary self-regulation instead of compulsion.

Father Walsh said he would rely on public opinion for enforcement. And he said the only ultimate alternatives were communism or a dictatorship from the right.

Special Probers Named to Study Liggett Killing

Prosecutor Doubts Widows Identification of Suspect as Editor's Slayer.

By the Associated Press.

Minneapolis, Dec. 11.—A special staff of prosecutors tonight undertook to aid in unraveling the mysterious killing of Walter Liggett, nationally known publisher, as County Attorney E. J. Goff expressed doubt the widow's reported identification of Isadore Blumenfeld as the slayer would solve the case.

"There will be plenty of other angles crop up before this is over," said Goff. His statement was made after Mrs. Liggett had told police she recognized Blumenfeld's as the face she would "remember to my dying day," that of the gunman who killed her husband before her eyes Monday night.

When Mrs. Liggett demanded assistance of the State because she claimed the Hennepin County attorney's office "will never solve this case," Goff suggested assignment of two assistants by Attorney General H. H. Peterson to aid the investigation. Peterson immediately made the appointments.

Picked Blumenfeld.

At a special afternoon police showup Mrs. Liggett, said Supervisor of Detectives John Hilborn, picked Blumenfeld, known also as "Kid Cann," from seven men as her husband's assailant.

"Oh, that face," she sobbed, according to police, "it passed 18 inches from me and it was grinning, grinning. I'll remember that face to my dying day."

But Blumenfeld's alibi that he was in a barber shop at the hour of the slaying was checked by police, they said, and found to be airtight.

"You're just picking me out because you saw my picture in the paper," he protested to the widow after the examination. Blumenfeld, a liquor salesman, has been held since Monday night without charge. He was assailed in the last issue of Liggett's Midwest American before its publisher was killed, Meyer Schuldberg, head of the firm employing Blumenfeld, also was attacked in the paper. Blumenfeld claimed he could produce 30 to 40 witnesses to prove he was being shaved when Liggett was felled.

To Carry on Fight.

Mrs. Liggett, announcing she would carry on her husband's crusade against vice and crime, was under constant guard as authorities delved further into the maze of ramifications which Liggett's slaying developed.

Before the grand jury today appeared W. B. Gilbert, Republican candidate for Governor in the last election, and last man to see Liggett alive. Yesterday Gilbert had told friends Liggett considered the possibility of assassination and carried a .38-caliber pistol.

"Walter told some friends," Gilbert related, "that he thought the same gang that got Howard Guilford might try and get him."

Guilford was killed a year ago in much the same manner as Liggett.

Gilbert termed as false reports made to investigators that Liggett tried to "shake down" Kid Cann and Schuldberg for $1,500 to finnace his recent trial on charges involving a minor girl.

"It was the other way around," said Gilbert. "Walter was offered $1,500 to stop writing stories in his paper about the underworld in Minneapolis."

Move in Behalf Of Hauptmann Is Still Delayed

Lawyer Says Staff Awaits Judge's Setting of New Execution Date.

By the Associated Press.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 11.—Egbert Rosecrans, one of Bruno Richard Hauptmann's attorneys, today said he and his associate probably will wait until a new execution date is fixed by Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard before making another move to save the convicted Lindbergh baby killer from the electric chair.

The date for carrying out the death warrant will be set by Justice Trenchard, trial judge at Flemington, when he receives the papers in the case from the United States Supreme Court and the trial record, now in custody of the Court of Errors and Appeals.

(Trenchard, who will be 72 years old Friday, never has been reversed in a capital case.)

Rosecrans said he thought the defense would ask the Court of Pardons for clemency before asking for a new trial. An appeal to this court, even if denied, would not prevent the attorneys from seeking a new trial on the basis of newly discovered evidence.

Such evidence, C. Lloyd Fisher, another of Hauptmann's lawyers, said Monday is in defense hands and will be used. Both attorneys, buoyed by the interest Gov. Harold G. Hoffman and Ellis H. Parker, Burlington County detective chief, have taken in the case, are optimistic.

Meanwhile, Parker's original role in the investigation into the crime remained uncertain. Gov. Hoffman reiterated that former Gov. Harry A. Moore, now a U. S. Senator, had asked Parker's aid shortly after the kidnaping in March, 1932.

Moore denied this and said Saturday that Parker, "like hundreds of others" had volunteered his services, which were accepted.

Hoffman said he would see Mrs. Hauptmann if she requested an interview, but remarked it is his policy in all death penalty cases never to refuse to see anyone with a legitimate interest in the case.

Lie Detector Use Urged.

Chicago, Dec. 11 (AP).—Dr. Leonarde Keeler, co-inventor and perfector of the lie detector, today said he believed an examination of Bruno Richard Hauptmann under the device would help end speculation over the Lindbergh baby kidnaping case.

"I would like to see Hauptmann questioned under the lie detector," said Dr. Keeler, youthful head of Northwestern University's scientific crime detection laboratory, "and I would like to be the one making the examination."

Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, wife of the convicted man, has undergone a lie detector test, but she answered only routine questions.

Visitors Denied to Fall.

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 11 (AP).—Relatives of Albert B. Fall described the 74-year-old former Secretary of the Interior as "his old self" tonight, but visitors still were excluded from his hospital room. Fall developed bronchial pneumonia Monday. Hospital attendants said late today there was "no change."

Small Powers Ready to Fight Grants to Italy

See Threat to Themselves in Terms Offered to Ethiopians.

By the Associated Press.

Geneva, Dec. 11.—An implacable stand against any big concessions to Italy at the expense of Ethiopia's sovereignty took form tonight among smaller powers of the League of Nations.

It came on the eve of a session of a committee meeting to consider an oil embargo against Premier Mussolini's nation.

The "revolt" was discussed privately. Russians, Turks, Bulgarians, Finns, Czechoslovakians and delegates from the Scandinavian countries were said to be among those expressing opposition to any sacrificeof Ethiopia or League principles.

Protest Forecast.

One delegate said the Little Entente and the Balkan Entente would certainly protest if there is any flagrant disregard of the League Covenant—which the smaller powers regard as insurance against aggression upon them.

The League was nettled because it was ignored by France and Britain, which did not send Geneva a text of the African peace proposal.

Officials pointed out that Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign secretary, in a speech here said when peace suggestions took concrete form Britain and France "would take the earliest opportunity to place them before the Council."

The League had asked these two powers to continue peace negotiations.

Italy Expects Oil Truce.

An Italian spokesman, while refraining from forecasting Italy's reply to a new peace offer, said naturally he anticipated that for the moment no date would be fixed for an oil sanctions.

The League's general staff on sanctions completed a report tonight indicating that sanctions are functioning remarkably well. The committee of 18 will meet tomorrow afternoon to discuss this report, while awaiting the peace replies from Mussolini and Emperor Haile Selassie.

Although the oil sanction is scheduled for discussion tomorrow, apparently no action will be taken until the Anglo-French peace formula situation is ironed out.

Ten nations have already notified the League they are ready to add oil, coal, iron and steel to the list of sanctions against Italy. They are Russia, Rumania, Argentina, Irak, Finland, New Zealand, the Netherlands, Siam, India and Czechoslovakia.

Floods Add Horrors To Quakes in Greece

Athens, Dec. 11 (U.P.).—Three persons were killed by lightning, 30,000 sheep drowned and 457 houses collapsed today as earth shocks and floods struck central and northern Greece.

Railway and telegraph communications were destroyed. Large areas were inundated. The River Pinios overflowed and threatened to sweep the town of Larissa, in Thessaly division.

of Commerce station between Roosevelt Field and Miami," he said in voicing belief every airplane soon would be "required to carry two-way radio equipment."

Flies "For Fun of It."

Ben King, the Washington sportsman pilot who specializes in flying small, low-powered planes, has established several world records for light ships.

In June he flew his little Aeronca from North Beach, Long Island, to Whitney's Landing, 12 miles from Annapolis, to establish two national and two international distance marks. On this flight he outfitted the plane as a seaplane and more than doubled the old distance record held by the French pilots Lallouette and Albert. King was accompanied by Dan Brimm.

A week later King converted his ship to a single-seater and flew it to another world's distance record. And in September he established a new world's altitude record when he piloted his 524-pound plane to a ceiling of 16,000 feet without oxygen apparatus.

King is a civil engineer living at the Westchester Apartments. He says he flies simply "for the fun of it."

Il Duce Ready To Talk Peace, Rome Reports

Discussion Does Not Mean Acceptance, Observers Point Out.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, Dec. 11.—Peace conversations—so far as Italy is concerned, at any rate—seemed certain tonight to spring from Franco-British proposals.

High Fascists said the Laval-Hoare formula did not entirely satisfy Premier Mussolini, but that he is unlikely to reject it categorically.

Il Duce for the first time received the official plan today. He got two copies of the French text from Count Charles de Chambrun, the French ambassador, and the English one from Sir Eric Drummond, Britain's envoy.

The oil embargo meeting in Geneva, it was indicated, will not hurry Il Duce. Officials said he would reply to the peace plan within several days.

Mussolini's program, it is known unofficially, is sovereignty over a broad strip of Ethiopia connecting Eritrea and Somaliland. To balance that, the peace proposal is understood to give him unofficial control of more land in the great lake region south of Addis Ababa than he expected to conquer.

The dictator's acceptance of a peace discussion would not mean his acceptance of the plan except as a basis for negotiation.

Ethiopia Snubs Franco-British Plan for Peace

Some Hope Seen.

Some quarters considered it hopeful that the Ethiopians have not indicated opposition to ceding Ogaden to Italy in exchange for an outlet to the Red Sea. The Negus has not protested setting aside a southern zone for Italian colonization, nor the plan for League assistance in reorganizing his country.

It is believed Eden may support Ethiopia's refusal to surrender Tigre. Some diplomats see Britain's hand behind today's protest by Wolde—delivered before the official draft of the proposals was decoded by the French and British ministers at Addis Ababa.

African Revolt Feared.

Addis Ababa, Dec. 11 (AP).—High Ethiopian officials denounced the Franco-British peace plan today and its rejection by this African empire appeared certain.

Should Emperor Haile Selassie accept, they said, he would be forced by revolting natives to abdicate.

The plan aroused the first real signs of bitterness in Ethiopian officials against France, which was accused of not being serious in concocting this "impossible" program in order to forestall further sanctions against Italy.

These officials refused to believe that Great Britain had approved the proposal, calling it, "a reward to Italy for breaking covenants, and another device to delay further sanctions."

Oppose Whole Plan.

They expressed opposition to all major details of the plan except one—a provision for League financial and administrative assistance to Ethiopia.

Reports from persons usually reliable said Emperor Haile Selassie would leave Dessye day after tomorrow to meet his eastern commanders in a secret fortress in an oasis of the Aussa desert region.

A signed statement protesting Italy's bombardment of Dessye as a "deliberate insult to the American flag" was given today by the heads of all three American missions in Ethiopia and other members of the American colony to Cornelius Van H. Engert, the United States Charge D'Affaires.

It stated the Italians knew the exact location of an American hospital in Dessye which they said was bombed and that the site was marked by a large American flag and a red cross.

Ethiopian officials, commenting upon the reported Anglo-French peace plan, said:

Ethiopia does not want a port unless it is exempt from Italian taxation.

No part of northern Tigre Province can be given to Italy; chieftains there would rise in revolt if it were.

Ethiopia would give part of southern Ogaden Province for a port, but would not surrender any territory west of the Fafan River "because it contains oil."

The country would not give up Danakil land to the east because it is a political and natural bulwark of defense.

The granting of an Italian zone of colonization in the southwest would be impracticable because whites have proved unable to compete with natives there and become a burden on the government, and annexation invariably follows colonization.

A treaty for financial and administrative aid with the League would be acceptable.

Cuban Council Delays Election Of President

Secretary of State Becomes Temporary Head When Mendieta Resigns.

By the Associated Press.

Havana, Dec. 11.—The council of state and the cabinet met jointly tonight to select a provisional president to succeed President Carlos de Mendieta, but lack of a quorum caused postponement of the task until tomorrow night.

Quorum restrictions will be abandoned, it was announced, and a president elected by a majority of those present.

The powers of the chief executive were being wielded tonight by Jose A. Barnet, 71-year-old secretary of state, who took over the office automatically last night when President Mendieta resigned to facilitate the holding of presidental elections soon.

As the entire island moved in political uncertainty, Carlos Manuel de la Cruz, presidential candidate on the Liberal Party ticket, issued a statement in which he accused the United States Government of interference in Cuban politics.

Plan Worked Out.

De la Cruz criticized the recent plan worked out to reconcile political differences in Cuba by Dr. Harold Willis Dodds, of Princeton University, who was invited to Havana by the Cuban government as "clearly" showing "a well-known interest of the chancellory of North America."

The names of four men from among whom the provisional president may be chosen were heard frequently in political speculation tonight.

They are Barnet, Andres Domingo y Morales del Castillo, secretary of justice and acting secretary of the presidency; Maximiliano Smith, secretary of the interior; and Leonardo Anaya Murillo, secretary of education.

General Elections.

Present plans to hold general elections January 10 are unchanged.

President Mendieta moved out of the presidential palace to his country home near Havana.

The president resigned after 14 armed men raided a radio station last night, three hours before Mendieta was scheduled to broadcast a talk over another station to the United States on Cuba's political situation.

Nicolas Castano, Havana millionaire, who was kidnaped two days ago, is still a prisoner. The Cuban army pressed 4,500 police and soldiers and 300 detectives into a search for him.

Batista Real Ruler.

Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 11 (AP).—Whoever assumes the presidency of Cuba, former President Ramon Grau San Martin said here today, Col. Fulgencio Batista will remain its real ruler.

The tall, dark former professor who governed during five heetic months in 1933-34 termed the resignation of President Carlos Mendieta "without great importance in the solution of the Cuban troubles." Military dictatorship, he said, still gripped the island.

Grau was outspoken in his denunciation of Batista, the erstwhile army sergeant whose "enlisted man's coup" in September, 1933, paved the way to Grau's own presidency.

A steady stream of Cuban expatriates, headed by another former president, youthful Carlos Hevia, flowed today into the Miami Beach apartment house where Grau lives.

Left Party Dissolved.

Rio De Janeiro, Dec. 11 (AP).—Federal Judge Edgard Ribas Carneiro today ordered dissolution of the National Liberating Alliance, a Leftist organization blamed by officials for last month's extremist uprisings in northern Brazil and in the Federal district.

Dern Predicts Success For New Philippines

San Francisco, Dec. 11 (AP).—Secretary of War George H. Dern said today he believes the Philippine Commonwealth government "will make good."

He arrived on the U. S. S. Chester from Manila, where he represented President Roosevelt at the recent inauguration of the Commonwealth government.

"I believe," Dern said, "that the Commonwealth will make good and that it will lead to complete freedom" at the end of the 10-year transitional period."

British Shelve Oil Ban; Press Hits Peace Plan

Baldwin, Under Fire in House of Commons, Refuses to Reveal Details.

By the Associated Press.

London, Dec. 11.—Great Britain tonight put oil sanctions temporarily on the shelf and turned to Geneva for action on a new Anglo-French peace plan in the face of undisguised press disapproval and suspicion.

Anthony Eden, minister for League of Nations affairs, departed for Geneva amid a cloud of rumors unclarified by a brief parliamentary revolt. With him were sanctions experts, who, it was understood, had been instructed to put the oil question aside until the peace plan is threshed out.

Government quarters were known to be concerned over American reaction to the peace plan, but no official comment was made upon Senator Borah's attack on the plan or other criticism in the United States.

An indication of the growing feeling even among government supporters in the House of Commons was the announcement that five conservatives and two "Simon" liberals would bring up a resolution condemning "any peace plan which makes large concessions to Italy."

For the third day the cabinet discussed the situation and apparently decided to stick by its guns. No decisions were announced and Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, under a volley of questions in the House of Commons late today, declined to give any details of the plan for Italo-Ethiopian settlement.

Procedure in Doubt.

Baldwin also asserted he could not say whether the plan would be discussed by the League's committee of five, established last September to deal with the African dispute. The sanctions committee of 18 meets at Geneva tomorrow, originally summoned to discuss an oil embargo against Italy.

Reports were rife of a serious rift between Sir Samuel Hoare, the British foreign secretary, and Eden. It was rumored the latter was going to Geneva in a new role—that of an observer, instead of in his former part as a driving force behind sanctions.

It was Sir Samuel who, with Premier Laval of France, formulated the new peace plan.

Press Frowns on Plan.

Views held generally by the London press were reflected in such headlines as "Ethiopia Rejects Peace Plan" and "Smaller States Let Down by France and Britain."

The Star, calling the peace terms a sordid document, said it would be better for "Eden's standing in the future if reports of his resignation had not been denied."

It continued:

"The Grand Old Woman of British politics, Stanley Baldwin, passed through an hour of humiliation in Commons debate which most Englishmen would give a premiership to avoid."

Hospital Bomb Denial Is a Lie, Says Selassie

Italians Knew They Were Attacking American Place, He Says.

By the Associated Press.

Dessye, Ethiopia, Dec. 11.—Ethiopia's Emperor today called Italian denials of the bombing of the American Hospital here last week "just audacious lies."

Haile Selassie, who, experts said, probably owed his life to the fact that many of the bombs did not explode, declared:

"Italy makes itself out a downright hypocrite before the world by its denials regarding the bombing of the American hospital.

"The Italian aviators were perfectly aware of the crime they committed against humanity."

Replying to Italian charges that Red Cross insignia was displayed indiscriminately at Dessye, the monarch asserted "the emblem only was on Red Cross hospitals and tents."

He said the American hospital was known not only to the former Italian consul at Dessye, but was registered with the International Red Cross at Geneva.

Technical experts who examined "dud" bombs today said ten out of a dozen or more 250-pound projectiles dropped in the compound of the old Italian Consulate, where the Italians apparently believed the Emperor was staying, did not explode.

Three incendiary bombs, however, partly wrecked the American Hospital and two others fired a Red Cross tent.

Straw huts of the natives bore the brunt of the damage, and authorities contended that all of the 350 persons who were killed or wounded were noncombatants.

Italy Plans "Proof" in Films.

Rome, Dec. 11 (AP).—Italy expects to prove by photographs her right to a clean bill of health for the bombing of the American Hospital at Dessye last week.

Pictures taken by Italian aviators, officials asserted, would prove the Italian contention that red crosses were misused and painted freely on many buildings in the headquarters town of Emperor Haile Selassie.

The government's report to Geneva, it was said, will assert also that the hospital was Ethiopian, not American, and that it was in the midst of military structures, some of which bore red crosses. Hence the bombers could not determine which was a hospital, they maintain.

Cabinet Quits; Rioting Blazes Anew in Cairo

Crowds Smash Street Cars in First Outbreak Against British.

Cairo, Dec. 11.—New street riots flared in Cairo tonight, unquenched by announcement that the cabinet of Premier Tewfik Nessim Pasha had bowed to nationalist anti-British pressure and decided to resign.

Crowds smashed ten street cars, burning two of them; stoned a gas station and wrecked street lamps in a fresh outbreak of the anti-British disorders which have claimed a half-dozen lives in recent weeks.

King Fuad, ruler of this nominally independent kingdom, was thought to have no alternative but to supplant the present docile instrument of the British Empire with a united and aggressive anti-British government.

Nessim and his ministers will submit their resignations tomorrow. The King, who is confined to his palace by ill health, was expected to take a day or two to announce his decision, but it was understood he would accept.

The premier, after his cabinet had decided to resign, visited the home of former Premier Nahas Pasha, chief of the potent Wafd (nationalist) Party, for a council of peace. He was accompanied by Mohammed Machmud Pasha, liberal constitutionalist leader.

The three bitter political opponents, in their first meeting, drew up plans for a united front on resisting British influences in Egypt.

Earlier, Nessim emerged from a conference with Sir Miles Lamson, the British high commissioner, to report that Great Britain would not permit Egypt to return to its 1923 constitutional government.

The premier has headed a stop-gap government, representing no party, since the constitution was suspended.

It was believed he would summon a convention of delegates from over the Nation to help him form a new cabinet and to plan a campaign for a "National Party."

100, He Asks Pension; 'Boy' Doesn't Want One

Denver, Dec. 11 (AP).—John B. Heilman appeared today with his "boy" and applied for an old-age pension. "Age?" asked County Judge George A. Luxford.

"One hundred next July," the white-haired former Pennsylvanian replied.

Heilman's "boy," 78, did not apply for a pension. He explained he had a job, but the fear he might lose it prompted his father's application.

Austria Hurls Hitler Defiance On Leadership

Von Starhemberg Says His People Will Dominate; Backs Monarchy.

By the Associated Press.

Vienna, Dec. 11.—Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, Austria's powerful vice chancellor, called for Austrian leadership of the Germanic nations in a startling challenge tonight to Adolf Hitler.

Then he opened the way for the restoration of the Hapsburgs by declaring the destinies of the nation and its one-time royal house were identical, and by asserting nothing stands in the way of the return of Archduke Otto if he accepts the national program of the assassinated premier, Engelbert Dollfuss.

Monarchists have waged an increasingly active campaign for the ascension of Otto, 23-year-old heir legitimate, who is living in Belgium. But recently certain followers of Von Starhemberg have begun to suggest that he, and not the archduke, be made regent and eventually king.

Challenges Hitler.

Von Starhemberg, addressing the patriotic Fatherland Front organization, laid down a challenge to Hitlerism by asserting that ultimately Austrian beliefs must assume the control of central Europe.

"Those who believe they are Austrians but at the same time think Hitler is right must change their minds," the vice chancellor warned.

"There is only one way to solve the question of Pan-Germanism. That is to give the leadership to the Austrians. We can no longer think of a great German nation, but we must strive for an Austrian Reich."

Declares for Monarchy.

"The history of the Hapsburgs is Austrian history, and if Austrians are thinking more and more of the Monarchist form of government we can only say there is nothing in their hopes and aspirations which is contrary to the concepts of the Austrian government as it now is constituted.

"Why should the Austrian of today not reflect on the form of state which was sacred to him in the past, and speculate on the possibility of restoring such a government for the future?

"It is the domestic affair of Austria. I can guarantee that in consideration of this question nothing shall occur to disturb the peace of middle Europe or to worry our friendly neighbors.

"But Hapsburg leaders must adopt the governmental program which Dollfuss outlined and for which he was assassinated."

Talk Widely Advertised.

Starhemberg's speech was addressed to the most powerful section of the Fatherland front. The occasion was advertised as one on which the fundamental principles of the Austrian government would be explained.

The vice chancellor made important concessions to the Socialist element which his Heimwehr (home guards) fought with machine guns and artillery in 1934.

"The Social Democrats were not so bad after all," he remarked. "They merely abused the powers in their hands."

Borah Attacks Peace Terms; U. S. Hands Off

out," to use a colloquial phrase, is sufficiently great to make even the most innocuous efforts at co-operation in such matters unwise, it is contended by some. All of this undoubtedly will influence Congress when it considers neutrality legislation in the next month or two, and probably will make more difficult the Administration's efforts to obtain wide discretionary powers in dealing with foreign wars.

Another event which may have the same result will be the hearings of the Nye munitions committee, which on January 6 will reconvene to continue its investigation into the part played by munitions makers in bringing this country into the World War. The committee also is preparing to go into the activities of bankers in this connection.

J. P. Morgan to Appear.

These hearings, which some time during their progress will be dramatized by the appearance of such figures as J. P. Morgan, will come on the eve of Congressional consideration of the neutrality question.

The promptness which Senator Borah, ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and a leading advocate of isolation, issued a formal statement castigating the proposed Anglo-French plan is indicative of the capital which can be made of this incident.

"If the proposed plan to dismember Ethiopia is consummated," Senator Borah asserted, "it would leave Mussolini the most powerful figure in Europe. He will have brought Great Britain and France to his terms—securing more than he in the beginning asked.

"He will have made the League an instrument to accomplish his own purpose in spite of the vital pledge in the Covenant to preserve the territorial integrity of its members.

"Subservient Instrument."

"Only a few days ago a distinguished visitor from England advised us of the high purposes of the League and told us how unfortunate it was that the United States was not a member. If this proposal goes through the League will become a subservient instrument of imperialism. It is fortunate, indeed, that we have taken the position of a neutral in this affair. We ought to adhere strictly to the doctrine of neutrality.

"It seems incredible that such a scheme as that proposed can be consummated and a helpless nation dismembered. But that is the proposal and the proposal is made not by nations at war, but by non-belligerents and in the name of peace."

Borah Lauded in Geneva.

By the Associated Press.

Geneva, Dec. 11.—The attack on the Franco-British peace plan by Senator Borah was approved tonight in some circles of the League of Nations as an opinion warmly shared here.

Delegates of many small and medium-sized nations and League officials are openly apprehensive of a grave setback to the League if an attempt is made to force the reported plan upon Ethiopia.

Italians Contradict Senator.

By the Associated Press

Rome, Dec. 11.—Senator Borah's attack upon the Anglo-French peace plan caused a flurry of comment in Rome tonight, but government officials said nothing because they felt Italy itself was not attacked.

But in well-informed Italian circles the Senator was taken to task for two of his main points.

These sources said Borah's assertion that the plan gave Premier Mussolini more than he originally sought was erroneous. Il Duce, they continued, has always advocated Italian economic and virtual military control of Ethiopia.

As to the "dismemberment" of the Ethiopian empire, high Fascists said they refused to shed tears of "pure sentimentality," asserting the League of Nations itself had already recognized the need of "supervision" in the African empire to abolish slavery.

Elder Hoeppel Denies $1,000 Cadetship Sale

Attorneys Stress Defense of Representative in Conspiracy Case.

Composed and emphatic, Representative John H. Hoeppel, of California, yesterday denied he participated in an alleged attempt to sell a West Point appointment for $1,000.

Practically every question that the Representative was asked in District Supreme Court figured in defense strategy, which was to let the jury believe whatever it wished about Hoeppel's son, Charles, but to clear the name of the father.

The case probably will go to the jury today after cross-examination of the father.

No Evidence Offered.

Samuel King, a defense counsel, pointed out neither Hoeppel nor his son could be convicted of comspiring to sell the cadetship if the jury believed the father knew nothing of the purported sale negotiations.

"In our arguments," King said, "we will show the Government has not offered any evidence even to hint the father participated in any conspiracy.

"We will argue that whatever the prosecution may have proved against the son, neither defendant can be convicted of conspiracy—the charge on which they are being tried—when the father knew nothing about any sale of the appointment.

"The son, of course, couldn't conspire with himself. It takes two to conspire."

Restrained Voice.

King added the son would not be called as a witness, either to deny or confirm the purported negotiations for sale of the appointment to James W. Ives, former Olympic athlete.

Representative Hoeppel, questioned by one of his lawyers, Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Ansell, U. S. A., retired, spoke in a firm but restrained voice as he detailed his knowledge of the Ives appointment. The courtroom was crowded.

"In your conversation with him," Ansell inquired, "did Mr. Ives ever say anything about buying the appointment?"

"Absolutely not," Hoeppel responded.

"Did your son, Charles, ever say anything to you about selling any appointment to anyone or about selling your influence to anyone?"

"No, sir."

"Did your son, Charles, ever discuss with you in any way the matter of nominating Ives to the Military Academy?"

"No."

Received Letter.

Hoeppel said he first met Ives in May, 1934, after he received a letter from him, written on War Department stationery. The letter, he added, bore a notation from Col. Raymond S. Bamberger saying Brig. Gen. Edgar T. Conley was interester in Ives.

The witness explained he once served as an enlisted man in the Army, and said Bamberger befriended him at that time.

Gen. Conley's name interested him, too, Hoeppel said, because he hoped to obtain "consideration" from him.

Hoeppel said another reason he decided to obtain a West Point appointment for Ives by exchanging an Annapolis appointment with former Representative John Burke, California, was because Ives was an athlete and he was a "football man" himself.

Personal Reason.

A few days after he was appointed, Hoeppel related, Ives visited him and resigned for what he described as a "personal" reason.

"Did you talk to Mr. Burke about his resignation?" Ansell asked.

"Yes," Hoeppel answered. "Burke said, 'What's the matter with that boy?' I said, 'I can't understand a man resigning a West Point appointment and not giving any reason to the man who appointed him just as a favor. There must be something wrong with him.'" made improper remarks in his opening statement to the jury.

The evidence fails to establish beyond a reasonable doubt the commission of a crime.

Slipper Not Weapon.

A high-heeled slipper, the brief contends, is not such a weapon as is "oridnarily used to inflict serious injury," and that when it was found that Edith's blacksmith father was in a serious condition "help was quickly and earnestly called."

Asserting that the evidence "is far short of proving intent to kill," the brief said the prosecution made no denial of the assertion Maxwell was trying to whip his daughter.

Should Judge Skeen grant the defense motion for a new trial, the 21-year-old school teacher will have another chance for freedom in a Wise County circuit court. If not, counsel tonight said they would carry the case to the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals.

Defense Fund Grows.

In Washington, more than 400 miles away in computable distance, worlds away in immeasurable differences in custom and tradition, readers of The Post continued to send in their dollars that Edith Maxwell might go free.

One of yesterday's contributors was Carrie Crim, of Lovetsville, Va. She sent $3. She wrote:

"I wish I was able to send a larger amount, as I feel that girl has not had the chance she should have had. I think the ones that voted for the cursed drink helped to put him (Trigg Maxwell) in his grave as much as, or more so, than his daughter. If you have to battle with a person under the influence of the cursed drink, it is hurt or be hurt. I am sorry for the girl."

Two Suspects Held in LaBatt Kidnaping Case

Four Department of Justice agents and a captain of the Northwest Mounted Police yesterday captured two men long sought as conspirators in the plot to kidnap John S. LaBatt, rich Canadian brewer, J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Bureau of Investigation, announced. The pair were seized on a street in Ottawa, Ill.

Hoover said the men were Russell Knowles, of Detroit, alleged to be one of three ringleaders of the kidnaping, and Herman Kierdorff, former owner of the Marquette Gardens in Detroit, where authorities charge the "snatch" plot was hatched.

LaBatt was seized August 14, 1934, on Egremont road, 12 miles east of his summer place at Sarnia, Ont., while he was driving to his home in London, Ont. He owns a $5,000,000 brewery.

LaBatt was held captive for two days on an estate called Wildwood on an island on picturesque Muskoka Lake, Ont. He was released on the outskirts of Toronto with no ransom paid, although $50,000 had been asked.

A third man, Herman Herbst, of Joliet, Ill., was seized with Knowles and Kierdorff, the Associated Press reported, on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. The Department of Justice said Knowles and Kierdorff were in the possession of burglar tools.

Knowles and Kierdorff had been watched by Federal officers in the Illinois city for four days and Tuesday night the agents slept in the same hotel with them.

Yesterday the three men went for a walk, the Associated Press reported. The agents followed. The trio, becoming suspicious, started to run. After a short chase and scuffle, they were captured. Later, Federal officers searched the suspects' hotel room, finding, they reported, weapons and black glasses.

The suspects were taken to Chicago.

Authorities said Knowles was named as one of the kidnap leaders in testimony at a hearing in Ontario for John Dannon, another alleged member of the abduction ring. Michael, "Three Fingered Abe" McCardell pleaded guilty at the hearing to complicity in the plot. He testified, authorities reported, that Knowles and two other Detroit underworld characters, one of them Albert Pegram, were the principal figures in the crime.

Films to Help Christmas Toy Drive of Post

any Loew's theater—the Fox, Palace or Columbia.

Attendants at these three theaters will see that all such gifts reach The Post and bring happiness to someone in need.

Gordon Hittenmark, NBC announcer at Radio Station WRC, is another who will co-operate in the Santa Claus venture with announcements about the plans.

Charge for Adults.

For adults who accompany children to the picture on December 21, or who may come alone, there will be an admission charge of 25 cents.

Young and old, the people of Washington are responding to the appeal of The Post Toy Fund to provide toys for needy children on Christmas Eve. From Albert Somers, commander of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing Post, No. 23, the American Legion, came this letter:

"The Bureau of Engraving and Printing Post, No. 23, American Legion, intends to play Santa Claus to a group of 125 children who otherwise would have no Christmas. This party will be held at the Bureau on December 21. Remembering the generosity of The Washington Post in past years, may we ask that you again cooperate with us?

"Our Legion Post has raised funds to provide necessary articles of wearing apparel and shoes for each child. Various merchants have made donations of fruit and candy—and now if The Washington Post will again assist us by providing a toy for each of these kiddies, we feel that the party will be a real success."

Will Be Available.

Assurance was sent to Commander Somers that, through cooperation of Washington people with The Post Toy Fund, the Loew's Theaters and WRC, the toys for the 125 children at the proposed Christmas party would be available.

Suppose you were a lad of 14 years and had gotten into trouble with the authorities and were building your life anew in the National Training School for Boys, Christmas might mean only a name for you so far as a personal gift was concerned, with no relatives or friends to send them to you.

Then, should there come a Christmas package addressed to you, with your name on a card inside and in it the sort of things a boy of your years wanted at the Yuletide season, wouldn't it make you feel more like trying to make good at this institution for building boys who have taken a wrong step into worth-while men?

The Post Toy Fund officials believe it would. Therefore, on Christmas Eve 20 such packages of Christmas good cheer will go forward to that number of boys from 14 to 20 years of age at the National Training School.

The Washington Post Toy Fund is co-operating with the Central Toy Shop of the Council of Social Agencies at 933 G street northwest, which is in charge of Mrs. Loren Johnson, a volunteer social worker here for years. Mrs. Johnson gives her friends a hundred dolls to dress each year to start the toy shop. "Dolls, dolls, dolls are what we need most to meet the appeals from little girls," she said yesterday. "Girls of almost all ages like dolls. They are the first toys they get and the last to be given up. You can always be sure that if a little girl could have but one toy, she would choose a doll.

"My own preference is for baby dolls," concluded Mrs. Johnson with a smile.

The Washington Post Toy Fund raced past the first $100 post yesterday and was well on the way to the second $100 by nightfall. "Mr. Anonymous" paid several trips to the fund headquarters with more dollar bills and promised to return many times before the fund closes on Christmas Eve after assuring toys to many needy children of the city.

Townsend Forces Start House Poll

Sentiment Studied in Drive for $200 Pension Bill.

By the Associated Press.

Townsend plan leaders have started a pre-session poll of House of Representatives sentiments on the plan to pay a $200-a-month pension to all over 60.

The poll is the first move in a new drive to crystallize opinion behind the plan.

Members returning for the reconvening of Congress in January reported receiving a questionnaire signed by R. E. Clements, co-founder with Dr. F. E. Townsend of the movement.

The questionnaire asks:

"Are you in favor of the plan?"

"Did you vote for H. R. 7154? (The McGroarty bill embodying the Townsend plan).

"Can we rely upon your help to pass a bill embodying the Townsend plan at the coming session?"

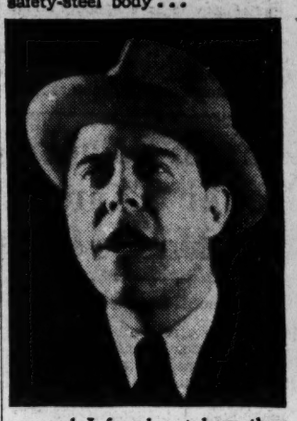
"Play Safe!" Says Joe Cook

I was driving a wonderful new car the other day . . . it's got a safety-steel body . . .



. . . and I found out how they test those steel bodies . . . roll them down embankments and over cliffs.

That steel body isn't the only safe thing about this car. It's got genuine hydraulic brakes that stop quick as a cat can wink its eye.

. . . and it's got safety headlights too—with a powerful beam for country driving . . . and then a passing beam, which not only shoots the light farther down the road than ever before, but also sends it to the right—instead of in the oncoming driver's eyes.

What car am I talking about? Why the big, new, Money-Saving Dodge, of course—the "Beauty Winner" of 1936—the car that owners report costs less to own than the lowest-priced, competitive cars because it gives them 18 to 24 miles to the gallon of gas and saves up to 20% on oil.

U.S. and Britain Agree on Ocean Air-Mail Plans

Reciprocal Landing Rights and Operating Facilities Will Be Extended.

The extension of reciprocal landing rights and operating facilities on the proposed transatlantic air route was agreed upon yesterday by British and American officials.

Preliminary plans for the operation of the service already have been made by the Imperial Airways of Great Britain and Pan-American Airways of this country.

The agreement to extend reciprocal landing rights was reached after a series of conferences here during the last week between British, Canadian and Irish officials and the interdepartmental committee on civil international aviation. R. Walton Moore, Assistant Secretary of State, heads the latter group.

Briton Sees President.

The agreement was concluded after Sir Donald Banks, director general of the British Postal System, conferred with President Roosevelt.

"The President said he had every hope that before long we shall see the transatlantic flights commenced," Sir Donald told reporters.

"He said he hoped to see the United States and other countries, Irish Free State, Canada and Great Britain, all working together," the English postal official continued.

The proposed American terminus of the line would be New York and the European terminus at some port in the British Isles not yet designated. It was understood the two companies will fly the short northern route during summer months and the longer southern line by way of Bermuda and the Azores in winter.

Plans for Operation.

Officials did not explain whether thet ransatlantic setup would consist of a jointly owned and operated system or whether the two companies would retain their identity.

It appeared, however, that Pan-American would carry the mail from America to Europe with Imperial Airways flying the mail on the westbound flight.

Postmaster General Farley stated last week to the conferees that under present law any contract for the transportation of American mail must go to an American company, flying American built ships and piloted by an American crew.

Adjust Budget, Continue AAA, Farm Unit Plan

Managed Currency Urged, Reciprocity Debated by Federation.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—Approval of resolutions recommending a balanced Federal budget, indorsing the AAA and urging a managed currency brought the seventeenth annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation to a close today.

With little opposition and a minimum of debate the delegates expressed their favor of the report of the resolutions committee—culminating in what some members termed a straddle on the controverted reciprocal trade agreement between the United States and Canada.

In Accord on Reciprocity.

The plank in the organization's platform of principles set forth:

"We are in accord with the purpose of reciprocal trade treaties which is, primarily, to restore agricultural exports by judicious lowering of industrial tariffs, thus admitting more goods into this country and making it possible for us to sell more of our farm products abroad.

"We insist that this purpose be adhered to in framing reciprocal trade treaties and that there be no reduction in present agricultural tariffs on any farm product that woud have the effect of holding or reducing domestic price levels below parity on such products."

The statement was termed "pussyfooting" by A. J. Olson, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau.

Spokesman of the Minnesota delegation, he warned that the lowering of tariffs on dairy produce, seed potatoes and pulpwood in the recently promulgated pact with the dominion might have an adverse effect on the farmers in the northern section of his State. New Yorkers contended their dairy industry, now bringing in 50 per cent of the State's farm income, might suffer a hard blow.

Carries Unanimously.

But when other delegates pointed out the federation officials would seek readjustment if harmful results developed the resolution on trade treaties was carried unanimously.

Broadening and extension of the neutrality act was suggested in another resolution. The committee was ordered to draw an addition to the statement later embodying the spirit of the amendment offered by Mrs. Lillie Scott, of Clayton, Ind. She advocated legislation authorizing the President to proclaim an embargo on arms, loans, credits and war materials to warring nations.

Body of 2d Comer Victim Discovered

Finding of Evans Spurs Search for Others.

By the Associated Press

Lindsay, Okla., Dec. 11.—Discovery of the body of Ray Evans, second known victim of Chester Comer, slain Oklahoma hitch-hiker, spurred officers tonight in a search for three others, still missing.

Roscoe Arrington, law partner of Evans, Shawnee civic leader, missing since November 19, identified a body found in a field near here today as that of his associate.

The body of a girl, found riddled with bullets near Kansas City, Kans., a year ago, previously had been identified as that of Comer's first wife—and first victim—Elizabeth Childers Comer.

Still missing are L. A. Simpson, Piedmont farmer; his son, Warren, 14, and Lucille Stevens Comer, second wife of the mad hitch-hiker.

Comer was wounded fatally by officers two weeks ago when he resisted arrest. He died in an Oklahoma City hospital after mumbling to E. Smith Hester, McClain County attorney, that he "did away with" Evans and the Simpsons.

Evans' body was found by farmers about 10 miles from Mayville.

Prospect in Livestock Tops 10-Year Average

Denver, Dec. 11 (AP).—Rain and snow after one of the West's worst droughts have nurtured prospects in 17 Western States for a winter livestock season that may exceed the 10-year average.

The United States Department of Agriculture estimated tonight that cattle are in better condition in most Western grazing regions than at any time since 1932 and sheep prospects better than for five years.

The condition of cattle, sheep and the ranges all now exceed the 10-year average, the report said.

Two Oil Men Killed In Test Plane Crash

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 11 (AP).—Two employes of the Ethyl Gasoline Co., of Newark, N. J., were killed near Nunda, 50 miles southwest of here, late today when a test plane crashed into a potato field and was demolished.

Silver Program Of U. S. Closely Guarded Secret

in the fixed price for newly mined domestic metal, silver is now down to 61 cents an ounce—a loss of 20 cents. It has become clear that the Treasury must buy constantly to keep the silver price up.

The heavy inflow of gold into the country from abroad has prevented the Treasury from making any substantial progress in reaching the alternative objective of the silver purchase act. Although the Treasury has acquired since the silver act was passed more than 600,000,000 ounces of white metal, it would have to buy today almost as much silver to achieve a 1-to-3 ratio with gold as the day the act was passed, due to the influx of gold.

China Mixes Situation.

Further complicating this situation was China's action in abandoning a silver standard and establishing a managed paper currency linked with the pound sterling. It is believed here that the Chinese have been shipping large quantities of silver to London to obtain gold with which to establish a stabilization fund. As long as the Treasury bought silver it was in the position of supplying the Chinese with foreign exchange.

By withdrawing from the market the Treasury served notice that it would not "hold the bag" under all circumstances. At the same time it cheapened the price at which it might subsequently buy. Whether these factors motivated the Treasury's action is not known. But silver offerings at London dropped from 20,000,000 ounces to between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000, the Associated Press indicated. Brokers were reported active trying to have selling orders of the previous day withdrawn.

McCarran Hits Silver Tax.

Elko, Nev., Dec. 11 (U.P.).—Removal of the 50 per cent tax on profits from silver transactions would have avoided the present critical silver situation, Senator Patrick A. McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, member of the senatorial silver bloc, said tonight.

"Application of this tax on transactions in the United States has driven the silver market to London," he said, "while it should have been established in this country, where it could have been controlled in line with American interests."

Establishment of silver as money and removal of the tax are the two most important factors now facing the country, he maintained.

"Under the present arrangement," Senator McCarran added, "London is the central market for silver from the Orient, with America paying a bounty as the result of the 50 per cent tax."

The Problem For Geneva.

There is now little likelihood of an embargo on oil to Italy being recommended immediately by the sanctions co-ordination committee, which had been scheduled to meet in Geneva today. A number of nations, including such important oil producers as Russia, Rumania and Irak, have already signified their willingness to apply this and other embargoes to the aggressor. But further action along this line must necessarily await clarification of the murky situation aroused by the Anglo-French peace plan.

While these proposals have aroused a storm of indignation as offering large concessions to the aggressor at the expense of victimized Ethiopia, judgment regarding them should be reserved until the whole picture is disclosed. It is noticeable that the Addis Ababa government, while taking a properly critical attitude, has not attempted to dismiss this suggested basis of negotiation offhand. The League's peace terms, of course, must be acceptable to the invaded nation, not merely because it is undefeated in the field but far more because the principle at stake must not be undermined. Within that requirement, however, there is ample room for reasonable compromise.

Italy's disposition to accept such a compromise is being strengthened by the pressure of sanctions already in operation, the strain of which on the weak Fascist economy is already clearly apparent. And Mussolini's evident willingness to negotiate on the terms suggested is not to be taken as meaning that they would give him what he sought to seize. Il Duce is rapidly being forced to a position where he will probably be glad to accept any settlement which enables him to save face before his own people.

Increasing Italian weakness, coupled with the inability of the invading armies to make any progress, is a point to be kept in the foreground in assessing the current peace proposals. It would probably be a lot easier for the League of Nations to drive Italy into anarchy now than it would be for that agency to restore order once the Fascist regime collapsed. Abstract justice to Ethiopia is an important element in the situation. But it is equally important to seek to avoid a smash in Italy which would shake the very foundations of European stability.

Hasty denunciation of these pending proposals may prove in the upshot very shallow. They must pass the scrutiny of all League members before they are approved. They must be acceptable to Ethiopia quite as much as to Italy. The fact that they seem, at first glance, improperly generous to the invader must be balanced against a consideration which will require the finest statesmanship if it is to be handled successfully. This consideration is exemplified by the fissures which are rapidly spreading behind the bold front Italy is trying to show to the outside world.

Collapse In Court.

Solicitor General Reed's collapse in the midst of an argument before the Supreme Court adds a dramatic touch to the contest over the constitutionality of the AAA. At the same time it calls attention to a very important aspect of this momentous litigation, to which far too little consideration has been given. The strictly legal agencies of the Department of Justice have been grossly overworked at a time when thorough preparation of cases as well as conservation of strength for their adequate presentation in court are of the utmost importance.

Not one but many cases of the greatest significance have occupied the attention of Mr. Reed and his associates. Eager to present the best possible defense of every New Deal measure that has been challenged, these men have burned midnight oil with heroic disregard of health. To their great credit they have fully realized the importance of the issues which they are handling. Apparently Mr. Reed had become so enwrapped in the defense of the AAA that he did not realize the extent to which his own physical endurance had been exhausted.

While this devotion to duty is admirable, a small number of lawyers should not be expected to carry the combined load of work and responsibility that now rests upon the Solicitor General and his aides. A literal flood of suits challenging the constitutionality of New Deal statutes has deluged the courts. It has created a real emergency that may well be dealt with as such. Certainly the Government ought to have sufficient appreciation for the loyal services of its legal defenders to give them all the help they need in times like the present. Permanent impairment of officials' health through overwork would be a sad commentary on this litigation, regardless of its importance.

Silver In Retrospect.

Since the Roosevelt Administration took office in the spring of 1933, a powerful bloc in Congress has devoted itself with a pertinacity worthy of a better cause to plans for rehabilitating silver as a monetary metal. The history of these misguided silver policies is a veritable comedy of errors to all except the unfortunate victims of the Treasury's manipulations.

The first important step in the campaign to do something for silver, or more correctly to appease the insatiable demands of the "silver bloc," was the passage of the Thomas amendment to the agricultural adjustment act, authorizing the Treasury to accept silver as payment on war debts at a price up to 50 cents per ounce—far above the prevailing quotations. The next move was made at the ill-fated London conference, where governments holding large silver stocks agreed to restrict their sales over a five-year period, while countries producing silver agreed to make purchases to offset sales. In this way it was hoped to prevent silver from being dumped on world markets, but it was the intention to stabilize rather than advance prices.

In accordance with this program, the President announced the following December that this Government would purchase newly-mined silver to the amount agreed upon at London at the statutory price of $1.29 per ounce, paying producers half that sum and retaining the rest as seigniorage. As silver was then quoted at approximately 43 cents per ounce, domestic producers received quite a sizable subsidy. The silver purchase act was passed the following June, authorizing the Treasury to buy enough silver either to raise the monetary value of silver stocks to one-third that of gold stocks or else to boost the market price to $1.29 per ounce. The following August nationalization of domestic silver stocks was ordered. Since that time buying prices for newly-mined domestic silver have been advanced to 77.6 cents per ounce.

The windfall thus enjoyed by the domestic producing interests, while substantial, is a bagatelle compared with the gains that have accrued to foreign speculators. But all the gains combined are insignificant when contrasted with the direct and indirect losses inflicted upon silver-using nations by our policies. The climax came this week when the silver market collapsed under the weight of offerings in the London market. These are said chiefly to represent holdings shipped from China—the sole important silver-standard country in the world—which has been forced to turn to a managed currency because of our silver price-boosting policies.

By the irony of a fate that might have been foreseen, China has been virtually pushed into the arms of the sterling bloc by our misguided efforts to raise the purchasing power of her currency, which actually brought about a serious deflation of silver prices, with attendant business depression. Having decided to follow our example and nationalize silver stocks, China is trying to obtain funds with which to establish a stabilization reserve through selling some of her surplus silver.

As the London silver market has become little more than a dumping ground for silver holdings that the United States Treasury is expected to absorb, the failure of the Treasury to take the unprecedentedly large offerings of last Tuesday inevitably resulted in a complete market collapse. Trading has since been resumed on a somewhat lower price basis, no doubt because the Treasury has again begun to buy. But the artificial condition of the market raises the question as to how long present conditions can continue. The United States is wasting its substance buying huge stocks of silver released from Far Eastern hoards and it is doing so to no purpose except to support an artificial price structure of its own making. The stupidity of the performance is only equalled by its futility.

We have not only forced the last great silver-standard country to resort to a managed currency, but we have failed lamentably in our efforts to achieve the goal of the silver purchase act. When that act was passed it was estimated that the Treasury would have to acquire about 1,300,000,000 ounces of silver to attain the statutory ratio. As a result of the huge gold inflow since that time our monetary gold stock stands at a record figure in excess of $10,000,000,000. Consequently, the amount of silver still to be acquired to attain the arbitrary ratio is nearly as great today as it was at the inception of the program, despite the heavy interim imports of silver, the nationalization of domestic stocks, and the current buying of newly-mined silver.

Moreover, this rapid acquisition of overvalued stocks of a metal that we do not need constitutes a serious inflationary menace. Why should the Government persist in the hopeless task of absorbing silver hoards? It may help China to link her currency to sterling, but the United States is only less anxious than the Japanese to assist that consummation. Even the silver-bloc Senators must obscurely realize that we have put ourselves in an absurd position before the world in our blundering efforts to remonetize silver. The time has come to call a halt.

Mendieta's Resignation.

Cuba's crises since the overthrow of Machado have been signalized by presidential resignations, of which there have been six in little over two years. President Mendieta's voluntary departure from the office of chief executive is likely to be interpreted, therefore, as a further setback to the restoration of stable government. On the contrary, it appears that he has stepped down to avert difficulties that might easily have led to further revolutionary outbreaks.

The elections designed to restore normal governmental procedure to Cuba have been postponed four times. Each postponement has strained the patience of the people, and especially of the political factions eager to install a government of their own choosing. Tremendous difficulties have been encountered, however, in the arrangements for balloting. President Mendieta wisely decided to keep out of the race in order to facilitate fair and orderly elections. But a bitter row broke out over the legality of a coalition that was believed to have the support of the provisional government.

Harold W. Dodds, president of Princeton University, worked out a formula designed to be fair to all groups. His plan was adopted by the government, but the opposition decided to participate in the election only on condition that President Mendieta resign. It was obvious that no election could be held if Mendieta remained in office. With a sacrifice of personal ambition too often lacking in Cuban politics, he has stepped aside in the interests of fair and orderly balloting, thus demonstrating the sincerity of the statement that he is not himself a candidate in the elections now scheduled for January 10.

Fortunately, the cabinet has named a career diplomat, Jose A. Barnet, the secretary of state, to succeed President Mendieta. In spite of opposition from some conservative factions, he should be able to carry forward plans for the election next month. In view of the public temperament the choice of new officials at the polls is obviously of the utmost importance. Further postponement of the elections might easily overstrain public patience and fatally weaken the confidence of the electorate in the national ability to reinstitute representative government.

Fruits Of Freedom.

As if the spectacle of the Philippine people striking out for themselves in the shoal-ridden waters of independence were not interesting enough, the China Clipper and the activities of Tokyo's military machine have combined to stimulate concentration of American attention on Far Eastern developments.

The importance of these events is reflected in the series of articles by Vicente Albano Pacis, now appearing on the page opposite. Flown to Washington in a week, our Manila correspondent's analyses of current Philippine problems will help to clarify American judgment on the subject in many ways.

In today's installment, for instance, the defense problem confronting the Filipinos is considered. President Quezon's program is said to call for a citizen army, to be trained by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, former Chief of Staff of the United States Army. It is proposed, Mr. Pacis points out, to institute compulsory military service for all males, beginning at the age of 10.

In other words, President Quezon, looking to the preservation of Philippine independence, sees as a necessary initial step the building up of a conscription reminiscent of Fascist Italy, with its "Balilla" groups of tiny urchins under drillmaster control.

Mr. Quezon has pulled a fast one on many Americans who have vociferously urged that the presence of the Stars and Stripes in the islands is incompatible with Filipino freedom. Headaches seem in order for those who seek to reconcile the concept of liberty with this pitiful effort to imitate an Old World military machine.

Plowed Under.

Charity covereth a multitude of sins, but Fredericksburg women recently decided that it can be imposed on too often. To avoid the painful spectacle of the local dramatic talent in action it was decided that the community should buy tickets for a play with the understanding that the play was not to be presented. Since the proceeds of the ticket sale went to a crippled children's fund, almost everybody was pleased.

This plowing under of amateur Thespians seems appropriate to the times. Those who like their analogies literary rather than economic may be reminded of how Huck Finn helped the Dook and the Dauphin "sell" the river town with their third evening's performance. But more critical thinkers, as well as those who consider Hollywood's standard the absolute minimum, will approve this method of encouraging donations. Relief of distress by entertainments not infrequently causes more anguish than it alleviates.

Unjustified Strike Order.

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

The American Federation of Musicians of New York has ordered unemployed musicians on WPA projects to strike unless they are paid prevailing wages. These unemployed musicians are not in competition with union musicians. The "projects," concerts, operettas, dances and other forms of entertainment were created for the sole purpose of giving these men and women work. They would not have been undertaken otherwise.

If the federation refuses to let them work it should take care of them.

The Nazi Olympics.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

One must question the literary tour de force of certain sports writers who climb blithely on the Nazi band wagon and hail the Olympic verdict as a victory for the Rover boys and American fair play and tolerance. Our Nell has come home unsullied and our good homespun athletes will wash their ears carefully in grandma's hog-fat-and-liberty soap to impress the Nazi that all is forgiven.

I must question the success of sending any of our athletes over as a good-will dove to teach the Nazi how to treat intellectual and racial minorities. If the Germans are so good at exiling persons and burning books it would seem foolish to try to stop them if they enjoy peace-doves-on-toast.

By all means continue the boycott. I suggest the pro-Nazi athletes attend the games and pay their own way, and the athletes and officials who recognize Fascism when they see it can remain at home, where our own incipient Fascism has not yet resorted to wholesale exiles, official tortures, racial madness and cultural concentration camps. Our Nell has always been noted for her political vacuity and it would be exceedingly dangerous to expose her to the emotional frenzy of Nazism. I say: No German Olympics!

Not A Question Of Hunger.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In spite of the increasing liberality of The Post's editorial policies, you seem to relapse occasionally into medievalism via one of those "let-them-eat-cake" series of sophistries.

Your editorial, "The Lesser Evil," appearing December 9, deprecates Commissioner Allen's rescinding of January relief cuts, and expresses grave fears of "national degeneracy fostered by overlavish roles." Many of us working in public health and social welfare fields are far more afraid of a national degeneracy fostered by malnutrition, exposure and disease. Those closest to the recipients of these "lavish doles" know how the "other half" lives; how its children and old folks are feeling more and more the continuity of bare existence limitations; how its employables grasp at decent work opportunities; how the monotony and hopelessness of life combine to numb sensibilities, crush courage, and finally break down morale. These intangibles aren't observable from the vantage point of an editorial desk.

The jewel of consistency turns to paste when "Cut the dole" is urged in one sentence and "No one can be permitted to freeze or starve" in the next. Even with relief at its best in the District there have been many clients constantly on the borderline of distress. Any wholesale cut in relief before some other source of food and shelter is provided means immediate and steadily increasing suffering for thousands. Frankly, we would rather take the chance of their receiving an occasional loaf of bread over than of seeing babies suffer. So would you.

As for that bugaboo of "confiscatory taxes," we, too, are taxpayers.

"Lots Of Things."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

For a long time I've wanted to address you in regard to lots of things. In the first place, while I dislike the way old describers think they are privileged to tell you how to run the paper, nevertheless, I am moved to do just that.

It irks me considerably to have to hunt all over The Post to find those favorites of mine, Winnie Winkle and Gasoline Alley. It doesn't seem quite fair that anything so dumb as Joe Palooka and the Bungle Family are allowed good space, and these others hidden in any odd space that is handy to the make-up man. This is really important and I trust you will see that the situation is corrected at once.

Now, I must speak up on the subject of traffic, of which we have heard so much lately. No one can combat successfully a situation where people from the oldest to the youngest persist in walking out from behind parked cars, cross streets while looking in the other direction—provided they look at all—cross while reading letters from home, or even books, and do other things equally ridiculous.

The driver is by no means always at fault, and just because someone chooses to commit sucide and his radiator is handy at the time is no reason he should be labeled "reckless driver." Surely, regulation and policing are needed, but not only for the drivers.

I wish also to express my great pleasure with the light signals recently installed at Queen's Chapel road and Bladensburg road, and New York avenue and Bladensburg road. A few more lights equally well placed would help the situation; so would the removal of some of those in most unlikely places, with a decent timing schedule and a speed limit of at least 30.

The Day Of Reckoning.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Many people in buying Christmas gifts that transcend their budgets do not like to spoil their own Christmas cheer with the vexing thought of how and when to pay. And possibly the purses or checkbooks to pay the bills may not be opened until after many statements have been rendered and finally a rather peremptory "please pay, or account will be referred to a collection agency."

With Santa Claus Roosevelt, the high cheer of giving is right now. The pain of arranging to pay will doubtless be put off if possible until after election day. He apparently seeks to delude the people and perhaps himself with the notion that the Treasury is full to overflowing, but if not, the credit back of taxable resources is practically unlimited.

Perhaps after election day next year, Franklin Santa Claus may have to tell us that he had played Santa Claus at our expense, and that we have now got to pay, and up to our very noses in taxes. Certainly a day of reckoning must come. We might like to return the Santa Claus presents.

But it would be as hard to return the gifts and get the money back as to return the water that has flowed over the New Deal dams, the leaves that relief workers had brushed from one side of the windblown street to the other, the grasshoppers that had passed on even while boondogglers were counting them, or the safety pin baby swallowed while they were looking up historic background.

Women's Capabilities.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

I have just finished reading Pat Frank's article in Sunday's Post. It is the sort of story to make the women of this country realize that they deserve the same opportunities that men have. As your writer pointed out, why should it take a war and a shortage of manpower to give women jobs for which they are just as well equipped mentally and physically as men?

I don't agree with Mr. Frank when he says that women haven't any confidence in each other. They have. Their long fight for the right of suffrage proves it. Susan B. Anthony died happy, knowing that women would continue to fight until they had won the right to vote.

It may take a little time for men to wake up to the fact that women are just as capable as they are, but in the end it will be proven to them, by women.

Bouquet For Dr. Roosevelt.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

At last President Roosevelt is being vindicated for his refusal to do anything about the religious persecution in Mexico. When the Knights of Columbus demanded to know from him just what he intended to do about the ugly mess down there, he told them in no uncertain terms. He seems to admit that he is well aware of the conditions in Mexico.

And now the great Catholic University of Notre Dame in Indiana has bestowed upon the President an honorary degree in recognition of his sense of fair play in another Catholic country, the Philippines, and to anyone who can read between the lines, Notre Dame is apparently well pleased with his actions toward Mexico.

Defending The Police.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Under heading "Police Please Take Notice," I read a letter in The Post by Mrs. Sarah F. De Bekker, complaining about having her purse snatched from under her arm, yet admitting it was a careless thing to have it there.

She blames the police department after all the warning Maj. Brown has issued about carrying purses carelessly, as if no purse-snatching ever took place in any other part of the U. S. A. No, our city has not deteriorated nor has our police department.

District Taxes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The idea of higher taxes is a most unjust thought to the residents of the District of Columbia considering how much land (that once paid taxes) has been taken away from the District for Government buildings. As I understand it, the Government now refuses to pay more taxes.

When the District was deeded by Virginia and Maryland, it was stipulated that there were to be no voters and no taxes and the United States Government accepted the land on those conditions.

"The Black Smoke"

Post Office, Thursday.

HOW far does opium-smoking affect the fruits of labor? And how far do labor conditions influence opium-smoking?

Last June, the League of Nations' International Labor Office created a commission to study "the effects and causes of opium-smoking among workers in the Far East." The survey analyzed the League's general inquiry into the Black Smoke in the Orient, the unpublished minutes of the same organization's Permanent Advisory Committee on Opium and Other Dangerous Drugs, and the governmental narcotics reports annually submitted to Geneva.

Now the commission has issued its findings. They at least partially answer those questions posed in our Paragraph No. 1—insofar as the questions affect a vast, if remote, portion of the world:

The Philippines, Siam, Burma, the Straits Settlements, the Federated Malay States and Burnei, Formosa, Kwantung Leased Territory, Kwang-Chow-Wan, Sarawak, Macao, Indo-China, Hongkong, the Dutch East Indies, British North Borneo and the South Manchurian Railway Zone.

When you talk about drug addiction—which, unhappily, requires a good deal more talk than it receives—don't lump opium-smoking with cocaine-snuffing or the taking of morphine or any of its derivatives. These are swiftly deadly; the Black Smoke is a slower poison. It is so slow that some of its consumers will tell you it doesn't move at all.

To them we commend the I. L. O. report.

It quotes a typical Chinese employer in the Straits Settlements as saying that "some workers use . . . 80 per cent of their earnings on opium." It quotes the Secretary for Chinese Affairs in those districts: "The harder and more killing the labor is, and the more beastly the conditions in which the laborer lives, the greater the temptation." And it quotes a government official of Sumatra as saying "that Chinese overseers preferred to have opium-smokers (for workers), as, when the workers were addicted (to opium-smoking), they could not run away."

One encouraging note emerges. It is sounded from a late imperial possession of the United States: to wit, the Philippines.

In those adventurous isles, where the Black Smoke once clouded so large a portion of the people, its somber veil now rests largely upon only the elder generation of natives and Chinese. The younger inhabitants are "apparently not at all, or very little, affected."

And why?

Because, says this report, these fortunates "have other interests in life"—have learned other roads of escape. They go in for "sports, motoring, dancing and the motion pictures." They have "received an education" and, as the I. L. O. surveyors put it, "reach a higher standard of living."

Nevertheless, the outlook as a whole is scarcely encouraging. The report concludes that, in the countries covered:

Whereas "opium-smoking is most widespread among the Chinese immigrants" and less frequent among the workers of indigenous races, it has spread to a certain extent among the workers of the latter sort.

There is no evidence to demonstrate exploitation of the habit in recruiting labor, but measures to prevent such exploitation are rare, and it is evident that "The Smoke" restricts "the liberty of the worker."

Nor can "the existence of increased indebtedness among the opium-smokers be denied . . . the drug tends to diminish earning capacity and efficiency."

It "causes physical deterioration . . . the death rate of smokers is (apparently) higher than that of non-smokers." Comparative statistics of illness "were not available, but the evidence seems to prove conclusively that opium-smoking is not only a cause (of illness), but that the need of treatment for physical ailments is one of the principal causes of addiction."

And finally:

"More conclusive than the evidence regarding the influence of opium-smoking conditions of life and work is that concerning conditions of work and life as causes of the smoking of opium.

"The evil is most widespread among workers in the most arduous occupations. The exhaustion caused by heavy work, ill-health and poverty account for the great majority of the cases. Absence from the normal social environment, separation from families, employment in isolated places, lack of other recreations are important contributory causes of addiction.

"In its turn, however, addiction to opium-smoking has very serious social and economic results . . . (It) is a factor in retarding economic and social progress in the territories concerned."

In other words, out there in the Far East, as Bernard Shaw said in another quarter of the globe:

"The trouble with the poor is poverty."

M. Fay And Thrift

By Karl Schriftgiesser

Are Americans Gullible?

FROM Mayor Kelly's sinless City of Chicago there comes the amusing revelation that Gertrude Stein was conducting an experiment in mob psychology rather than in literature when she wrote "Four Saints in Three Acts." A gentleman named Rousseau Voorhies, who is described as a publishers' agent, told a gathering of the local literati there that the gray-haired iconoclast of the grammarians had plotted with a distinguished French historian in an effort to prove the gullibility of us Americans. Just what good was to come of this proving was not made clear.

Miss Stein, who was very much in our midst last winter, is a very close friend of M. Bernard Fay, a squat, little Frenchman who spends his time in the libraries digging out facts which will fit into epigramatical sentences. He is a minor Lytton Strachey, in his way, and the unofficial French press agent of the New Deal, having printed a book in his native land making Mr. Roosevelt out to be very much of a hero. He became pretty well known earlier in his scholarly career by writing extensively and wittily about Benjamin Franklin and other Americans and he has seen our hinterland at close range, having lectured to women's clubs and taught in American colleges. He is said to have a very good sense of humor.

According to the revelations made in the sinless city the strange conglomeration of words which Miss Stein, who needs no introduction, called an opera was all a hoax. Gertrude and Bernard, the big teasers, thought it all out together. Miss Stein, who has some reputation as a writer, scrambled the words and it was presented, if I recall, for the first time in a Connecticut suburb of New York before an audience which even the effete Mr. Lucius Beebe, of Broadway, could hardly stomach, despite the fact that every other top-hatted first-nighter there was out of his beloved social register.

• • • •

FROM that time on it was, as the editorial writers say, roundly defended on the one hand and vigorously attacked on the other. M. Fay all this time was chuckling to himself, being in the know, and saying that these Americans are stupid people to fall for this drivel and call it High Art. When M. Fay was here last winter he spoke at length upon the lofty purpose of Miss Stein's work, and when I suggested one day at breakfast that she ought not be taken so seriously he became highly indignant and went on at great length espousing her cause. So perhaps we should not take this revelation too seriously, until we have heard from M. Fay and his alleged co-conspirator, Miss Stein.

In the meantime, perhaps, it would not be amiss to tell a little story about M. Fay which that engaging raconteur, George Ross, told me. It was just prior to the publication of one of M. Fay's books and his publishers in Boston were quite anxious to have some new photographs of the little Frenchman to send around to the newspapers. M. Fay was then in the West. So the publishers wrote him. He did nothing. The deadline was approaching so, at great expense, George Ross telephoned a well-known photographer who had headquarters in a city some 60 miles from the town where M. Fay was staying.

Over rough mountain roads, through all the diversities of weather as listed by the New York postoffice, the photographer went He reached M. Fay, who was on the point of departing for New York, snapped him in several poses, and went back to the city. M. Fay went on to New York. In his haste to get the pictures East, the photographer failed to place enough postage on them, or sent them by registered mail, I forget which. Perhaps it was both. At any rate a few days later they arrived in New York and M. Fay, a guest at the Harvard Club, was given a card to sign, urging him to go to the postoffice and pay his fee.

• • • •

THIS he refused to do. Meanwhile the publishers were frantic. They burned up telephone wires, finally locating the package. They asked M. Fay to rescue them. He would not do so. He would not, under any circumstances, pay the fee. At last, in final desperation, Ross called Christopher Morley on the phone and Morley cornered M. Fay, secured his signature almost by force, and went to the postoffice where he paid the 18 cents and got the package just in time for the New York Times Book Review, thus saving what might have been a great crisis in the publishing world.

If M. Fay has been engaged in plotting to reveal Americans as gullible I see no harm in doing my bit to reveal the French as thrifty and stubborn people. The picture of M. Fay hugging the fire in the Harvard Club, steadfastly refusing in voluble French to pay 18 cents for a package, and doing so only after the bland Mr. Morley explained to him at great length that it wasn't the 18 cents, it was the principle of the thing, is one which I find very delightful. I would have liked to have been present at the scene, to have heard the great argument, and watched the gullible American finally break down the thrifty Frenchman.

But I would rather have been present when the Book Review came out. For it carried a stock photograph from the files.

The New Philippines

Quezon Plans Defense Program To Recruit 10-Year-Olds.

The third of a series of articles on the new Philippine Commonwealth, flown to Washington via the China Clipper, is presented herewith.

By Vicente Albano Pacis,
Special Correspondence of The Post.
Manila.

THE Philippine Islands are just two jumps away from Japan. This was graphically demonstrated when the Osaka Mainichi, influential Japanese daily, sent a plane to the inauguration of the Commonwealth manned by a pilot, a mechanic and a reporter, loaded with special supplements dedicated to the new nation, and making a way stop only in Korea.

If Japan were not so near the Philippines, and if she had not demonstrated a frequent propensity to take over and hold others' territories, the Philippines, an insular country, might have no so-called defense problem. As it is, President Quezon's obsession is an "army that would make conquest of the Philippines unprofitable for any nation." In his first conference with the press as president, he devoted fully half of his time to national defense. In his first message to the national assembly he touched upon nothing but national defense. And almost his first official act after his induction into office was to create a national defense council!

In a way, however, the Philippines wished this problem upon itself. In the first independence law, which the Filipinos rejected, the American Army was not only to remain throughout the ten years of the Commonwealth, but the disposition of America's military bases in the islands was to be left beyond the Commonwealth period Quezon's main objection to the law was precisely the implied indefinite stay of the American Army in the Philippines.

• • • •

IN the final independence law, which he secured in Washington and had accepted in the Philippines, it is specifically provided that the American Army, upon the completion of the Commonwealth period, shall withdraw completely from the islands, and that the American military bases and reservations shall revert to the Philippine government. Thus, unlike the economic situation which must await Washington's final decision, the defense situation has no dangling American angle.

Probably realizing this, the president, with the aid of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, former chief of staff and now military adviser to the Commonwealth, has lost no time in formulating a national defense plan and in presenting the plan to the national assembly both as a special message and as an administration bill.

Universal military service is the means of the plan; a standing army of 19,000 its immediate aim; a trained reserve of 500,000 before the expiration of the Commonwealth period, its remote objective, and a male citizenry well versed in soldiery, its ultimate goal. No detailed mention is made of an air service, although the establishment of a navy is specifically considered untimely, first, because of the great expense it would entail, and second, because the absence of a navy "will emphasize the passively defensive character of our military establishment." By way of showing both the importance of military defense to the country and of making patent the defensive character of the war machine to be organized, the president, in his plan, has urged the assembly to create a "department of national defense" and to give the chief of staff the rank of a department secretary.

"The central feature of the defensive system I propose," the President announced to the Assembly, "is a trained and organized force, normally engaged in the pursuits of peace, and ready for effective employment whenever the interests of the nation so demand." Elaborating on his system, he mentions the following "enduring principles" as its foundation:

"• • • that every citizen is obligated to the nation's defense."

"• • • that our national defense system must provide actual security."

"• • • that our plans reach fruition by the time the beneficent protection of the United States shall have been finally withdrawn."

Associated Press Photo.

Will The Philippines Hold Their Independence Only By Regimenting 10-Year-Olds In Ranks Such As These Balilla Of Mussolini?

• • • •

THE universal military training feature of the system would be effected through the schools, and through automatic enlistment of male citizens upon reaching the age of 21. "The obligation to undergo military training," provides the national defense bill as proposed by the President and Gen. McArthur and as approved by the national defense council, "shall begin with youth in school, commencing at the age of 10 years, and shall extend through his schooling until he shall reach the age of 18 years. At this age, he shall enter the junior reserve to which he shall be assigned until he is 21 years of age, when he shall become subject to service with the colors, and thereafter with the reserve force until he shall reach 50 years of age."

Part of the plan, of course, is the manufacture of purchase of equipment, including field pieces and tanks, and the construction of barracks, trenches and forts. It has been hinted that, if possible, the government itself will undertake the manufacture of arms.

What of the money needed to finance the military establishment and what of the manpower available under a universal military training system?

President Quezon's military and financial advisers have estimated that a total yearly appropriation of $8,000,000 would be sufficient to enable the government to proceed with its plans and achieve the expected results. The amount is further made to appear less bulky by the explanation that the annual appropriation for the existing Philippine constabulary of $4,000,000 will be diverted into the appropriation of the army, thus leaving a balance of only $4,000,000 to be covered.

• • • •

WHEN the secretary of finance was asked to state how the $4,000,000 new appropriation will be taken care of, he suggested the plan of taxing amusement and luxury at the rate of 2 per cent. From this source, which will include levies on tickets to theaters and stadiums, dance halls and cockpits, the secretary estimates a total annual income of at least $4,500,000. Someone immediately suggested that the Commonwealth innovation of wearing morning coats and cutaways for state occasions in this torrid country should be among those that fall under the title of taxable luxury.

Fortunately, the Filipinos are among the least taxed in the world. Their per capita taxation is estimated at seven pesos and their per capita bonded indebtedness is about eight pesos.

The Filipino masses, however, are probably among the world's loudest tax grumblers. A universal $1 tax collected from every male citizen of over 18 years—a tax which has been most useful as a source of revenue and as a means of inculcating political consciousness among the masses—has been the object of much protest and the new constitution practically abolishes it by prohibiting imprisonment of delinquents. Not long ago an isolated revolt resulting in the death of 60 citizens at the hands of the constabulary took place on the plank to abolish taxes. At this writing, bandits reported to number between 100 and 500—most of them tax delinquents—are committing depredations in the mountain towns of central Luzon. So demoralizing to the citizenry have been their crimes, consisting of robberies, raids and killings, that the Commonwealth's first armed expedition is being directed to their capture and extermination.

• • • •

THOUGH now lightly taxed, the Filipinos will not be able to bear with resignation much-increased taxation. Knowing this, the political leaders have been most careful to intimate that no new taxes, except possibly on luxury, are contemplated. Likewise, they have made it a point every time they broach plans calling for new expenditures to reiterate the necessity for the strictest policy of economy. Unless the attempt to build a defense machinery for the Philippines grows into a determination to obtain a place in the sun—even now some Filipinos are talking of a Pan-Malaya movement to unify the some 100,000,000 browns in this part of the world—the problem of armament will probably never alter the tax burden considerably. But if a Malaya irredentism formulates itself in the minds of Filipino leaders, by way of offsetting the incursions southward of the yellow, then the Filipinos are bound to groan under the burden of expensive armaments.

The Philippines' Manpower is probably sufficient for every purpose. At the present there are 6,000 Filipinos in the Philippine Scouts of the United States Army, including some two-score of West Point graduates with ranks from lieutenant to lieutenant colonel.

There is an equal number with a semi-military training in the Philippine constabulary with officers educated in the Baguto Military Academy. Since it is the plan to use these men as the nucleus of the defense army, it is believed that the goal of 19,000 men under the Commonwealth is not hard to reach.

Of the total population of 13,000,000, it is estimated that at least 1,000,000 are males between the ages of 21 and 50. If the praises heaped upon the Filipino Scouts by competent American officers can be taken as an indication of the general fitness of the Filipino for military service, then it is not too much to expect that, given the financial wherewithal, the Filipinos can organize an efficient fighting unit.

• • • •

INDEED, it may be presumed that so eminent a military authority as Gen. MacArthur would never have consented to undertake the general direction of the Philippines' military training program if he were not convinced that there are active or latent elements in the Philippines sufficient to build up an efficient defense machinery. "We have produced," declared President Quezon in his message, "both in the constabulary and in the Philippine Scouts, officers of outstanding worth in particular lines of military endeavor, from among whom we confidently expect to obtain initially the senior officers of the new Army." But, he continued, "there is immediately demanded not only a technical ability that extends to every phase of the military profession, but a broad and thorough experience in the field of higher administration, organization and leadership . . . Consequently . . . I requested the detail of Gen. Douglas MacArthur as the one soldier whose opinion on every question of military organization would command the respect of all our people."

In the same message, President Quezon suggested that "the refusal to grant us immediate and complete independence has been due, in large measure, to our present inability to cope with a general revolt or to offer any kind of resistance to an invading force." Concluding his message, he stated, "I request authority to confer upon General MacArthur and his assistants the rank and emoluments that I deem in keeping with their important duties and the dignity of this nation."

Verily, the Philippines is determined to have an army which will at least prove equal to domestic trouble-makers like sakdalists and bandits, and to foreign trespassers like Japaneses fishermen, and land-grabbers. More specifically, she is determined to keep out nations intent on conquest. "If that be our preordained fate," said Quezon in connection with the possibility that the islands might fall prey to predatory nations, "why seek a new master when the Stars and Stripes has given us not only justice and fair treatment, welfare and prosperity, but also ever-increasing political liberties, including independence?"

'Charlie' Curtis Calls on Borah; Still for Landon

'Just Friendly Visit,' Says Ex-Vice President; Peek Also a Visitor.

By the Associated Press.

The Republican Presidential nomination booms for Senator Borah, of Idaho, and Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas were given a new twist yesterday when former Vice President Curtis and Borah met privately to discuss politics.

Although the smiling Curtis, a former Kansas Senator, conceded he was still a "Landon man" and had just dropped into the Idahoan's office for a "friendly visit," the fact that he was fresh from a conference with Gov. Landon, at Topeka, started political tongues wagging.

Both Borah and Landon have been leaders in early straw votes for the nomination, but neither has announced himself a candidate.

Friendly Chat, Says Curtis.

Curtis insisted to newspapermen that there was "no connection" between his Topeka conference and his call on Borah.

"I have known the Senator for a long while, and we just had a nice, friendly visit," he said. "I told him I was all for Landon."

Borah said afterward, referring to Curtis by his pre-Vice Presidential title:

"My understanding is 'Senator' Curtis is for Landon, but we are friends and we were just talking over the political situation."

Curtis has informed friends here that Borah is very popular in the West, and the fact that he feels the Idahoan has a good record has led to reports he might support Borah as a second choice for the nomination.

"I have no second choice, but a lot depends on what happens at the convention," Curtis said yesterday.

"I have the highest regard for the Senator," he added, "but I'm for Landon, who is well equipped to run, after giving us an economic administration in Kansas—something we need here in Washington more than ever before."

Asked for Appointment.

Curtis asked for the appointment with Borah. He remained closeted with him for about 15 minutes.

Commenting on reports that he might be chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee for the 1936 election, Curtis said there was "nothing to it."

Senator McNary, of Oregon, the Senate minority leader, said some consideration had been given to naming a few former Senators on an advisory committee for the coming campaign, but nothing had been done about it.

Such a plan, Curtis agreed, worked well when he headed the 1918 campaign group. He explained he felt many former Senators usually were better informed on conditions in certain States.

Shortly before Curtis appeared, George N. Peek, who resigned recently as President Roosevelt's foreign trade adviser, after challenging his reciprocal tariff policies, discussed the Canadian trade agreement with Borah.

No Mention of Politics.

"We confined our talk to the Canadian agreement," Borah said. "There was no mention of politics. My view of the Canadian treaty is not in any sense colored by politics because I opposed Canadian reciprocity when a Republican was the maker of it 24 years ago."

Borah referred to the Taft reciprocity proposal which had much to do with splitting the Republican Party in the 1912 campaign.

Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, who has been regarded by some political observers as in a strategic position, should a deadlock occur at the next Republican convention, returned to Washington yesterday. He refused to discuss politics.

Dr. Meanwell Accused Of Offering Star Liquor

U. S. Foregoes Oral Argument On Cotton Tax in High Court

confined as far as feasible to the Government suit.

More than 40 other injunction suits by utilities are pending in courts throughout the land, and the Government lacks adequate counsel to combat all of them. Yesterday Federal lawyers went into the eastern Pennsylvania Federal Court at Philadelphia, however, and sought dismissal of a United Gas Improvement Co. suit challenging constitutionality of the utility law. The Government contends the suit is not within jurisdiction of the court.

Justice Department officials said Cummings' decision personally to fight utility injunction suits in the District Supreme Court was in no sense an outgrowth of Reed's courtroom illness. Sudden closing of arguments in the Bankhead test suit was unquestionably brought about by Reed's collapse, however.

In explanation of its cotton-law change of plans, the department released the following brief statement:

"The Government has decided to submit to the Supreme Court of the United States on briefs and without further oral argument the case of Moor versus Texas & New Orleans Railroad Co.

"This is the case in which the Solicitor General, Mr. Stanley Reed, was appearing when he became ill yesterday. The litigation involves the Bankhead cotton taxing act, and does not bring in issue the constitutionality of the agriculture adjustment act, as to which arguments had been completed before the court adjourned yesterday.

"In the Moor case, the Government is not a party, but is appearing as a friend of the court. Before Mr. Reed stopped his argument in that case he had presented to the court procedural questions in which the Government had a peculiar interest different from that of the parties to the suit.

"Since the remaining questions are fully covered in the Government's brief, and since the parties to the case have finished their oral argument, the Solicitor General believes that it is not desirable to request the court to delay the case for further oral argument on the part of the Government."

Reed's Heavy Labors.

Reed's condition was reported much improved yesterday. Associates said he had been working far into the night, not only on the AAA and Bankhead processing tax cases, but on the first high court trial of TVA legality, which he will argue next week. Assistant Attorney General Frank J. Wideman will represent the Government Monday, opposing petitions of eight Southern rice millers for a permanent injunction against collection of rice processing taxes.

Appearance of the tall, keen-eyed Attorney General before the District Supreme Court today against utility law injunction proceedings marks the second appearance of Cummings in court in the New Deal's litigation glacier. He argued gold law validity before the Supreme Court early this year.

At a press conference yesterday, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace extended the air of mystery now shrouding what alternative plan the AAA will offer if processing taxes are invalidated by the Supreme Court. He said a committee still is "working on it," and the AAA "will be prepared."

He said no substitute plan will be offered "unless Congress asks for it."

"But it is amazing how fast we can jump when Congress calls," he jokingly added. He said the committee was "trying to anticipate what Congress wants."

The sales tax, as an alternative for the processing tax, he said, "has advantages and disadvantages." He suggested some features of his "ever normal granary" plan might be worked in, whatever plan is decided on.

The AAA chieftain indicated his department is waiting with interest on the Supreme Court's Bankhead cotton control decision, pointing out that the cotton act approaches farm law compliance "from a penalty point of view."

Wallace predicted that "with ordinary weather" the present farm scarcity issue would vanish overnight.

"The Republicans will find it much easier shooting at large farm surpluses and low prices, rather than shortages and high prices," he said. "I am not predicting low prices, mind you. I am simply predicting that with ordinary weather conditions, the difficulties that were with us in 1932 will not have to be met."

SEC Attorney Holds Meehan 'Dumped' Stock

Manipulation of Bellanca Shares Laid to Trader by John J. Burns.

By the Associated Press.

A Securities and Exchange Commission lawyer painted a backdrop yesterday for what he called a drama of stock market manipulation with Michael J. Meehan, veteran Wall Street trader, in what he called the role of "Chief Villain."

While Meehan's lawyer protested, John J. Burns, chief SEC counsel, outlined testimony he said would support accusations that Meehan "unloaded" Bellanca Aircraft stock on the public when he knew it to be a "dog"—Wall Street slang for a security of little value.

Munroe Goldwater, counsel for the Wall Streeter, charged prejudice and sought without immediate success to have the trial examiner, William Green, halt the proceedings because of "the impossibility of a fair and impartial hearing to this defendant."

The day was spent mostly in taking technical evidence in which commission witnesses called the Bellanca stock "a very speculative security" and the company's prospects "very poor."

Several charts showing unusual periods of activity in the stock, particularly in May this year, when other aviation issues were comparitively inactive, also were introduced.

Goldwater sought to bring out that the commission experts' judgment of the security was based on insufficient data, and that they failed to consider potentialities if the company's capital was increased and new management installed.

The commission, Burns said, would show that Bellanca Aircraft tried to borrow $150,000 from the Reconstruction Corporation but that this loan was refused because that amount wouldn't "even come close to saving the corporation."

Other points to be made, Burns declared, would be that Meehan "adroitly spread" rumors of proposed financing by the company, that he already owned a large block of the stock when the manipulation began and that he acquired other blocks which he sold when the market went up.

Veteran speculator and manager of some of the most famous pools of pre-depression days, Meehan is accused of manipulating the market so the price of Bellanca stock was pushed from $1.50 to $5.50.

Tugwell Visits Berwyn Work; Hails Progress

Housing Project Landscaping Especially Impresses Administration.

Shaking soft mud from a pair of shoes that were lustrous when they took their owner out of the Agriculture Building three hours earlier, Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell yesterday expressed satisfaction over progress on the Government's "green belt" after a thorough inspection tour over the Berwyn Heights (Md.) project.

Accompanied by a bevy of subordinates, reporters and photographers, the resettlement administrator trekked over the vast suburban site on which will rise 1,000 housing units to accommodate low-salaried workers from Washington and Maryland.

He saw trees topple, quizzed construction foremen and shook hands with Angus MacGregor, formerly landscape gardener to British royalty and J. P. Morgan, but now just one of the 1,000 relief laborers who commute daily between Washington and Berwyn Heights. He ended the tour with the observation that things are moving satisfactorily as he glanced sadly at the bespattered oxfords (Dr. Tugwell, in a newspaper survey several months ago, was held to be one of the most immaculately dressed of New Deal officials).

Complaints of Berwyn Heights and Prince Georges officials, who feared the so-called "green belt" would be populated by social dependents, have disappeared altogether and now they are assisting the enterprise in every way possible, said Wallace Richards, senior administrative officer in charge.

Foundations for the first group of 58 housing units will be laid soon after New Year's, it was announced yesterday. These will go in Block D, which forms part of the "handle" of the horseshoe-shaped formation in which the homes will be erected. The entire project—houses, flats, apartments, stores, schools, lake, playgrounds, wooded areas, gardens, roads, etc—should be completed about one year hence, said Richards.

The resettlement administrator was especially impressed by the landscaping program, which is being supervised by MacGregor. Twenty-five years ago the Scot was gardener to an aunt of the present Prince of Wales, at her estate in Surrey. Migrating to the United States in 1914, he performed similar service eight years for J. P. Morgan, the son. Now he is one of the workmen taken from the Capital's transient rolls.

But, said Dr. Tugwell, the men are no longer being called "transients."

"They are regular workmen—good workmen, too—whom we can depend on every day, so why call them transients?" he declared.

Included in the Tugwell party yesterday were Dr. W. W. Alexander, assistant resettlement administrator; Frank Schmitt, chief of the construction division, and Kendall Weisiger, who is on leave as assistant to the president of the Southern Bell Telephone Co., to give his aid as a consultant on the model housing development.

Mrs. Maddock Faces Hearing Today in Eddie Killeen Slaying

Self-Defense Plea Will Be Entered; More Federal Funds Needed for Relief and Old-Age Pensions in Maryland, Young Democrats Told.

MONTGOMERY COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
1111 Oak Avenue, Silver Spring, Md.
Telephone, Shepherd 2363.

Mrs. Lillian Maddock, 36, charged with the fatal shooting of Eddie Killeen, Washington gambler, at his home in Brookmont, Md., will face Judge Harold C. Smith today in Montgomery County Police Court for a preliminary hearing on a charge of murder.

State's Attorney James H. Pugh said last night that he would place six witnesses on the stand for the State. They are Sergt. Leroy Snyder, Policeman E. R. Jones and Wilson Payne, the three county policemen who went to the house after the shooting; Drs. G. V. Hartley and W. S. Murphy, who performed the autopsy, and Francis Day, of Potomac.

State Senator Stedman Prescott, defense counsel, said he would offer two witnesses, one of whom will be Dr. Upton D. Nourse, who examined Mrs. Maddock at the jail after the shooting. Senator Prescott said he would ask bail if the court holds Mrs. Maddock for the grand jury. A plea of self-defense will be presented.

Ted Robinson, otherwise known as "King Tut," chief announcer of Radio Station WOL, will lead a group of radio artists who will appear at the first annual dance and frolic of the Montgomery County Press Club Saturday from 10 to 1 at Kenwood Country Club. Billy Vest, "the Lone Star Cowboy," and the Plantation Boys, Tom Stillwell, Ralph Brown and Ronnie Fones will perform. Other stage and radio artists also are expected.

Declaring Maryland has not enough funds for relief, old-age pensions and other projects, State Senator Stedman Prescott stressed the need of more Federal money at a joint meeting of the Young Men's Democratic and Women's Democratic Clubs, of Takoma Park, Md., at the Volunteer Fire Department hall, Carroll avenue.

Propaganda that the Democratic Party is going into bankruptcy will be the cry of the Republicans in the next campaign, Prescott said. In defending larger appropriations for Maryland, Prescott contended that not a single one had been made that could not be justified by the people of the United States. He criticized Gov. Nice for his talks throughout the State charging the Democrats with waste and extravagance. Due to its splendid Democratic gain, Takoma Park is considered a vital part of Montgomery County, Mr. Prescott stated.

J. Bond Smith, president of the Young Men's Democratic Club, urged the audience to be constructive Democrats and to recognize the history of the country. The Democratic Party, he said, was "the most interested in the welfare of the people "and that it put personal rights ahead of property rights. He told of Takoma Park's Democratic gain of 200 majority in the last election.

Short addresses were made by leaders of Prince Georges County, including Kent R. Mullikin, floor leader of the Maryland House of Delegates, and Charles C. Marbury, chairman of the Prince Georges delegation in the House. Other distinguished guests present were Miss Ruth Shoemaker, member of the House of Delegates; State Senator Lansdale G. Sasser, of Prince Georges; Mrs. Frances McFadden, chairman of the Southern Maryland District; Miss Lavinia Engle, director of the Maryland League of Women Voters; L. Harold Southern, members of the Prince Georges County delegation, and Lacy Shaw, Montgomery County park commissioner.

The meeting was featured by an entertainment consisting of a dance program by the six children of Dr. and Mrs. L. M. Cavanaugh; Howard Waters, pianist; Dement Bonifant, songs and guitar, and Jimmy Mullins, blackface comedian. It was arranged as a treat especially for the 200 new Democratic declarants.

Mrs. Charles Y. Latimer, president of the Women's Democratic Club and newly elected president of the Montgomery County Women's Democratic Club, presided as co-host with J. Bond Smith. In addressing the meeting, Mrs. Latimer said that it was through the interest and support of the women of the Takoma Park Democratic Club that it had gained recognition in Montgomery County.

Demonstration of the new voting machine was given by Dr. Llewellyn Jordan.

Braden Urges Voter Interest In Civic Affairs

Warns Fairfax Chamber Against Centralizing of Power in State.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Alexandria 43-F-31.

The need of a rebirth of interest in local self-government and participation of voters in the elections was stressed by Roy S. Braden, county manager of Arlington County, in an address before the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night.

He warned citizens against the ever-growing centralization of power in the State government. Braden stated that for more than two centuries the strength of Virginia had been in its local government, but during the last three years there had been a tendency toward centralization in Virginia.

State Senator John W. Rust declared that he was in favor of more local self-government and the reawakening of interest of citizens in local questions. He stated that he would favor the election of all local officials with the exception of judges of the circuit court. He stated he was in favor of the schools receiving the profits from the sale of liquor and he was opposed to the diversion of road taxes for school purposes. He declared he was in favor of the sales tax as a matter of principle but that he was opposed to such a tax at this time because he had committed himself during the past campaign.

Braden stated that the State highway system is not functioning satisfactorily relative to the secondary roads. He asserted that if the State had $12,000,000 a year, double the amount it now has to spend on secondary roads, in 20 years one-third of such roads would still be mud.

The need for increased road allocations for Fairfax County was stressed by Senator Rust, who declared that due to its proximity to Washington the allocations for Fairfax County should be doubled.

Delegate John C. Mackall told the trade body that he was attempting to represent the wishes of the citizens of Fairfax County in the State Assembly and that he would vote for all progressive measures provided the citizens desired such improvements and were willing to pay the necessary increase in taxes. He stated that he was not in favor of diverting funds from road allocations to meet other State expenses.

The chamber of commerce adopted a resolution commending the service of County Clerk F. W. Richardson, who will retire at the end of this month after completing 55 years in office.

Truck Driver Held for Jury

Bond Given Nicholson on Manslaughter Charge at Alexandria.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

John B. Nicholson, of 4549 Forty-fourth street northwest, Washington driver of the oil truck which early last Friday morning struck an Arlington County police car, killing Special Officer Louis Franklin Shaw and a prisoner, William H. Harrison, of Chicago, was held for the action of the grand jury on a charge of involuntary manslaughter. Nicholson renewed his bond of $1,000 for his appearance before the grand jury.

Acting Police Judge Harry F. Kennedy conducted the hearing, as the accident happened within the city limits, near Four Mile Run. The testimony given yesterday was practically the same as that given at the coroner's inquest, when Dr. Llewellyn Powell, city coroner, gave a certificate of accidental death, but stated there was sufficient evidence to warrant a police investigation of the case.

Alexandria Chapter, Order of De Molay, will pay a fraternal visit to the Manassas Lodge of Masons this evening, when the degree team will confer the two degrees of the order on a class of candidates.

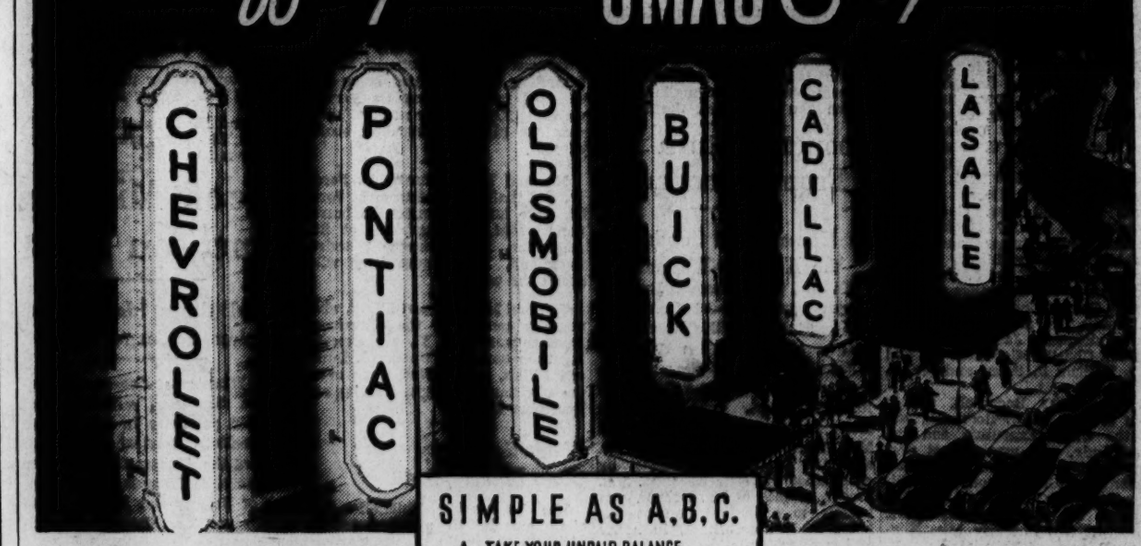
Only dealers in GENERAL MOTORS cars
Can offer you the GMAC 6% plan



SIMPLE AS A, B, C.
A TAKE YOUR UNPAID BALANCE
B ADD COST OF INSURANCE
C MULTIPLY BY 6% — 12 MONTHS PLAN
[One-half of one per cent per month for periods more or less than 12 months]
THAT'S YOUR WHOLE FINANCING COST
NO EXTRAS · NO SERVICE FEES · NO OTHER CHARGES
*In some states a small legal documentary fee is required.

Only dealers in General Motors cars can offer you the GMAC 6% Time Payment Plan . . . the new plan through which people all over the United States are buying the new cars they want.

The reason this plan pleases car buyers is as simple as the plan itself . . . simple as A, B, C. There are no carrying charges, no service charges, no extras of any kind. You take the unpaid balance, add the cost of insurance, and multiply by 6%. That's all.

This is not 6% interest, but a convenient multiplier which is easy to use and understand.

And, when you buy a new General Motors car on this plan, the insurance is placed in General Exchange Insurance Corporation . . . and you receive a policy protecting your car against Fire, Theft and Accidental Damage, including Collision.

To understand the real economy of this plan, figure the cost in dollars and cents, and then compare it with other finance plans on the same basis. And be sure to include similar insurance protection.

Simple, straightforward, economical—that's why the new GMAC plan will please you. Dealers in General Motors cars are ready to serve you on this plan today.

White House Gathering Opens Official Season

State Dinner Is Given by President and Mrs. Roosevelt in Honor of Members of the Cabinet; Additional Guests Invited for Musicale.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

The stage was set last night for the opening of the official society season in the Nation's Capital. The event was the first state dinner in the White House, when the President and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained in honor of the Cabinet members. On some of these occasions the guests have been limited to members of the official family, the White House secretariat and military and naval aids, but last night a more inclusive company gathered for the dinner.

In the state dining room, the long oval table was set with the famous Monroe service, which includes not only—as suggested by the word service—plates and flat pieces, but also a magnificent centerpiece of gold plate, with smaller vases and golden baskets to match, as well as candelabra. These pieces were filled with talisman roses, stevia and adiantum Baldii fern.

Following a custom of many years, additional guests were invited for the musicale which followed the dinner, when a program was given by Mr. Frederick Jagel, tenor; Miss Vandy Cape, singing satires; Dr. Ernest Wolff, pianist, and Mr. Edward Hart as accompanist. Mr. Jagel chose two groups of songs, the first including an aria from "The Pearl Fishers," by Bizet; "Am Feuerabend," by Shubert; "Der Tambour," by Hugo Wolf, and "Riflessi," by Santoliquido. In the second group were English songs, including, "Go, Lovely Rose," by Quilter; "Sea Fever," by Ireland; "Hop-Li, the Rickshaw Man," by Kathlenn Manning, and "My Parting Gift," by Elinor Warren.

Dr. Wolff played the Chopin nocturne in C minor, and Miss Cape offered "The Birth of Mom" (at an outdoor concert); "Down in the Forest" (Sadie Goldfish of the Bronx), "None but the Lonely Heart" (a modern prima donna at her broadcast), "The Black Bird" (a rare old song as sung by a rare old singer), "Parlez-moi d'Amour" (in the manner of Lucienne Boyer), "Lo! Here the Gentle Lark" (at a benefit concert).

Guests Present.

The guests included the Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Henry A. Morgenthau, jr., the Attorney General and Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, the Postmaster General and Mrs. James A. Farley, the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, the Secretary of the Interor, Mr. Harold L. Ickes; the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, and the Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins.

There was a tinge of sadness last evening, however, for Mrs. Ickes, very popular member of the President's official family, died last summer, and last night was the first official gathering of the entire group since that time. The Secretary of War and Mrs. George H. Dern also were missing, being out of town. They are en route from the Philippines and due to arrive in the Capital in a short time. Their place was filled by the Acting Secretary of War. Mr. Harry Hines Woodring, and his blonde wife, the former Miss Helen Coolidge, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Marcus Coolidge.

Also present were Representative Caroline O'Day, the Secretary to the President and Mrs. Stephen T. Early, the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. B. Sumner Welles, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Morris, the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, the Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Ernest G. Draper, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Andrew Moses, the Comptroller General and Mrs. J. R. McCarl, Col. and Mrs. Sosthenes Behn, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Manchester Boddy, Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Bunker, and Bishop and Mrs. W. A. Candler.

Amos 'n' Andy.

Buried deep in the list were Amos 'n' Andy, of radio fame, socially speaking, Mr. Charles C. Correll, with Mrs. Correll, and Mr. Freeman T. Gosden, with Mrs. Gosden.

Also present were Mr. and Mrs. John Cowles, Mr. George Creel, the AAA administrator, and Mrs. Chester C. Davis, Mr. Frederic A. Delano, Miss Mary Dewson, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Dickerman, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Giannini, the governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, Mr. George L. Harrison; Mr. and Mrs. George R. Holmes, Mr. Henry Hooker, the alcohol administrator and Mrs. Franklin Hoyt, the Mayor of Chicago and Mrs. Edward J. Kelly, the chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission and Mrs. James M. Landis, Mr. and Mrs. Vance C. McCormick, Mrs. James H. McDonald, Mr. Charles Michelson, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Paley and Mr. E. L. Roddan.

Mrs. Donner Roosevelt, former wife of Mr. Elliott Roosevelt, son of the Chief Executive and the First Lady, was present last evening, having arrived in the Capital yesterday with her small son, William Donner Roosevelt, to spend 10 days at the White House. Mrs. Roosevelt was formerly Miss Elizabeth Donner, of Philadelphia.

Also at the dinner were Mr. Hall Roosevelt, Mr. F. M. Stephenson, Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt Webb, Miss Nancy Cook, Miss Marguerite LeHand, Mrs. Malvina T Scheider, Mrs. James M. Helm and the Naval Aide to the President and Mrs. Wilson Brown.

Miss Lois Branson Engaged to Marry

The Rev. William H. Branson, of Takoma Park, announces the engagement of his daughter, Miss Lois Esther Branson, to Mr. Raymond Wilford Numbers, of Pittsburgh, Pa., son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Numbers, of Washington. The wedding will take place early in the new year.

Miss Branson was born in Nashville, Tenn., but when a small child she accompanied her parents to Clarmont, Capetown, South Africa. There she attended school, later going to Helderburg College. Upon their return to America, Miss Branson entered Washington Missionary College. She will be graduated with the first semester. Mr. Numbers will also be graduated from the Takoma Park School.

Christine Long To Visit Capital For a Fortnight

Ambassador's Daughter Due Here From Rome Next Week.

Miss Christine Long, daughter of the United States Ambassador to Italy and Mrs. Breckinridge Long, will arrive in this country next week to be the guest of Mr. and John W. Davidge for the Christmas holidays.

Miss Long, who spent two months in Washington last winter, was among the season's debutantes, and Miss Martha Davidge was a debutante also. The two girls are close friends and early last spring Miss Davidge went to Rome to spend several weeks with Miss Long.

Miss Marianna Dunn, daughter of the Special Assistant to the Secretary of State and Mrs. James Clement Dunn, was also one of the intimate little group which "debuted" together last year, and visited with the Ambassador and Mrs. Long last spring before her presentation at the Court of St. James's in the early summer.

Miss Long will remain in Washington for about two weeks, which will be crowded with entertainment, for she became a very popular member of the younger set during her stay here last winter.

Senator, Wife Return to D. C.

Daughter and Guest to Join the Vandenbergs Late Next Week.

Senator and Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg returned to their apartment at Wardman Park Hotel yesterday after an absence of several months. After Congress adjourned, Senator and Mrs. Vandenberg sailed for a visit of five weeks in Europe, and on their return to this country went to their home in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Senator and Mrs. Vandenberg will be joined late next week by their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Vandenberg, who is studying piano in New York, and her guest, Miss Marie Smith, of Grand Rapids. Shortly after Christmas, Mr. Arthur Vandenberg, jr., will come from Grand Rapids to be with his parents for the remainder of the winter.

Mrs. Barbara Vandenberg Knight, elder daughter of the Senator and Mrs. Vandenberg, who also lives in Grand Rapids, will stop in Washington later for a visit with her parents before continuing to Florida where she will spend the winter.

Coopers Return From Honeymoon

At Home After Sunday at the Kennedy-Warren.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Franklin Cooper have returned from their wedding trip to North Carolina, and will be at home at the Kennedy-Warren Apartments after Sunday. Before her marriage on November 16, Mrs. Cooper was Miss Clara Hetty Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Thomas Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Cooper were extensively entertained in North Carolina. Mrs. Smyer, mother of Mr. Cooper, was hostess to a large group at her home in Newton, N. C., in honor of her daughter-in-law.

The couple visited the old Rheinhardt ancestral home at Iron Station, N. C., which is now owned by Mrs. Fanny Rheinhardt, Mr. Cooper's grandmother. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Cooper went to Raleigh, N. C.

Tydings Is Speaker At New York Dinner

Annual Affair Is Held by Southern Society.

Senator Millard E. Tydings, of Maryland, was the chief speaker at the annual dinner of the New York Southern Society, held in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria last night.

Among the guests were Mrs. Eleanor Davies Cheeseborough, fiancee of Senator Tydings, who went to New York several days ago to visit her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Aldace Walker; the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Lawrence W. Robert, jr., brother-in-law and sister of Mr. Aldace Walker, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Walker.

Local Society Is Entertained At Three Teas

Boncescos, Mrs. Fahnestock, De Barons Are Hosts at Varied Affairs.

Yesterday three teas marked the afternoon for members of Capital society.

At the Broadmoor, the Financial Counselor of the Rumanian Legation and Mme. Boncesco entertained a small group to meet Miss Sydna White, of Boston, who is their guest until Sunday. Miss White returned recently from India, where she spent several years studying the Indians and their customs. Their music was of the most interest to her, for it is unwritten, she says, adding that she has noted and transposed the themes. Yesterday, wearing a native costume of deep blue sprinkled with silver stars, huge earrings of pearls and coral and bracelets and anklets of heavy silver, Miss White played and sang some of these songs. She brought to her friends a collection of instruments, costumes and brasses.

Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock also entertained at a large reception. Her home on Massachusetts avenue, one of the handsomest in the Capital, was decorated with masses of roses and stevia in the drawing rooms and on the tea table. Mrs. Fahnestock wore a gown of black printed with soft colors in a floral pattern. Assisting her in receiving was her cousin, Miss Dorothy Sollers, who wore a black frock with a long sleeved jacket of bright red crepe.

Presiding in turn at the tea table were Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, wife of Justice Roberts; Mrs. Hugh Campbell Wallace, Mrs. Edward Simpson, of Baltimore; Mrs. Gracie K. Richards, Miss Edith Macculloch Miller, Mrs. Price Whitaker, Mrs. William Holland Wilmer and Mrs. Joseph Strauss.

The third tea was that given by the Minister-Counselor of the Cuban Embassy and Senora de Baron in honor of Senorita Zoe Patterson, daughter of the Cuban Ambassador, and Mr. Ernest Schlatter, Attache of the Swiss Legation, whose marriage will take place Monday. Assisting Senora de Baron were Mme. Peter, wife of the Minister of Switzerland; Senora de Patterson, daughter-in-law of the Cuban Ambassador and wife of the Third Secretary of the Embassy, and the three Senoritas Trucco, daughters of the Chilean Ambassador, who will be bridesmaids at the wedding on Monday.

Pair From Africa Visit in Takoma

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Marter in U. S. for Study.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest William Marter, of Bulawayo, Southern Rhodesia, Africa, were visitors in Takoma Park en route to Walla Walla, Wash., where they will take post graduate work for the next two years, preparatory to their returning to Africa to engage in evangelistic work.

Mr. Marter has been the director of the publishing department of the Zambesi Union Mission of Seventh-Day Adventists for seven years. It is their first trip to America.

While in Takoma Park, they renewed acquaintance with the Revs. S. A. Wellman, I. H. Evans, O. Montgomery, C. E. Weaks, M. E. Kern, and H. T. Elliott, all of whom they met in Africa, while on missionary tours.

Mr. Marter is a native of London. He went to Africa 13 years ago with his parents. Mrs. Marter was born in Africa. Her forebears went to Africa from England in 1820.

Maj. and Mrs. West Will Honor Prietos

Maj. and Mrs. Parker West have issued cards for an at-home December 22 from 5 to 7 o'clock at their apartment at 2101 Connecticut avenue, in honor of Capt. and Senora de Prieto.

Capt. Prieto was formerly Military Attache of the Cuban Embassy and, since his retirement more than a year ago, he and Senora de Prieto have been dividing their time between Europe and Mexico, where they are building a home. They have been in Washington for the last week and are at the Mayflower until their home on Massachusetts avenue is ready for occupancy. They plan to spend the winter season in the Capital.

Wilmers Hosts At Dance Party For Miss Scott

Debutante Granddaughter Is Honored; 3 Dinners Precede Event.

Dr. and Mrs. William Holland Wilmer entertained at a dance last night at the Sulgrave Club in honor of their debutante granddaughter, Miss Miriam Scott, daughter of Mrs. Russell Sard.

Mrs. Wilmer wore a gown of silver lame made on long lines and a corsage of orchids and gardenias. The debutante wore a becoming robe de style of black taffeta over a skirt of black velvet, which showed slightly in front, and she wore a corsage of gardenias.

Mrs. Sard wore a gown of heavy red crepe with a purple net cape and a corsage of gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Sard entertained at dinner earlier in their home at 1717 Ninetenth street in honor of Miss Scott. Covers were laid for 38.

The Minister of Austria and Mme. Prochnik also entertained at a dinner in the legation, later taking their guests to the dance.

Mr. Clarence Hewes was host at another dinner. Mr. Hewes has as his guest for several days David Rhys, of England, who is spending some time in this country.

Mr. Rhys is the son of Lord Dynevor and a grandson of the seventh Earl of Jersey. He is a son-in-law of the Duke of Wellington.

Beverly Moffett Christens New U. S. Destroyer

Ship Named for Her Father, Lost on Akron; Porter Launching Today.

Miss Beverly Moffett, daughter of Mrs. William A. Moffett and the late Rear Admiral Moffett, yesterday christened the new destroyer named in honor of her father, who lost his life in the Akron disaster, at its launching at Quincy, Mass. She flew to the shipyard from this city accompanied by her brother, Lieut. William A. Moffett, jr., U. S. N.

Today another daughter of the Navy, Miss Carlile Patterson Porter, will go to Camden, N. J., to christen the U. S. S. Porter, named for her great-grandfather and her great-great-grandfather.

Miss Porter is the daughter of Brig. Gen. David Dixon Porter, assistant adjutant and inspector of the United States Marine Corps, now stationed in Washington. He is seventh in this line of seamen in a family which dates from earliest days of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. Thence it runs back to the days of William the Conqueror, when William de la Porte, a Norman knight, was distinguishing himself by his naval prowess.

So, on down the line, the forefathers of Miss Porter have been famous naval officers, two of her ancestors having been admirals of the Navy. Miss Porter, eighth in her line of this family, which started in this country with the advent of John Porter in 1627, is a member of the Colonial Dames of America and the National Society of Magna Charta Dames.

New Perfume Of Distinctive Odor Produced

Subtle and Exotic, It Comes in an Exquisitely Designed Flacon.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

THE MAN who is hopelessly befuddled about what to give a certain person this Christmas may take a hint from this. No woman can have too many perfumes. And what's more, no woman could fail to be delighted with such a gift. And—what's even more—there are perfumes to suit any price limit, and perfumes of every type!

One which deserves special mention and sincere acclaim is "Inalda"—a subtle, exotic odor for sophisticates—a fragrance, full bodied and lasting, yet neither too light nor too heavy. It's the crowning achievement of a famous French chemist who has devoted his life to blending rare unguents, cherished balsams, and emollients and seductive perfumes.

Quite apart from its distinctive fragrance, you are sure to be delighted with this new creation. It comes in a flat, oblong flacon, scalloped around the edges and exquisitely designed to look as though the glass were filled with bubbles. Responsible for this beautiful flacon is Lalique, of Paris, known the world over for his masterpieces in glass and for his extraordinary artistry which did so much to make the S. S. Normandie a thing of beauty.

The Inexpensive Gift.

Somewhere on every woman's gift list are two or three names not close enough to her heart to merit costly tokens on Christmas morning—yet far too important for only a card.

For these "problem children" a certain cosmetician has devised a gay solution. An ivory and black automatic lipstick and a miniature mascara case complete with brush and all and looking so like the lipstick it might be its twin.

The two come in every conceivable shade to enhance the eyes and mouth and are surprisingly inexpensive for such gay fillips.

Attractive Beauty Set.

IT would be difficult to find anything more complete than the attractive beauty set presented by a certain cosmetician. In the first place she painstakingly had the box itself designed by an artist.

It's made of suede in a variety of colors, and has a top that opens back and folds out into a triple mirror.

It contains the facial preparations you're sure to need over the week-end. There are a blackhead and pore cream, a skin nourisher, a box of blended face powder, a powder base, a cleansing cream and a grapefruit skin tonic.

You're sure to be intrigued with the appearance of the kit and enthusiastic over its contents.

Novelty Gift for $1.

SO MANY women say it's frightfully hard to find a really attractive gift suggestion with the meek price of $1. They claim there are plenty for $1.39, $1.95 and on up, but that the $1 species is markedly rare.

Those who feel this way should be especially delighted with the novel $1 item presented by a local store. It's a fairly large black globe or sphere studded with glistening rhinestones, stars in the black heavens as it were. But lo and behold, the sphere opens in half and therein is a generous supply of sweet-scented bath powder.

Cedar Sewing Cabinets.

IT'S RATHER amazing these days what a $1 bill will buy. For instance, if you trek down to a local store and find your way to the bargain table you'll see among other things a little Priscilla sewing cabinet made of cedar. Inside there's a goodly store of stationery.

All this, mind you, for $1!

The little cabinet has wooden flaps that open on either side, and also a sturdy wooden handle arched above. It's a handy little thing to hold your darning or your sewing essentials.

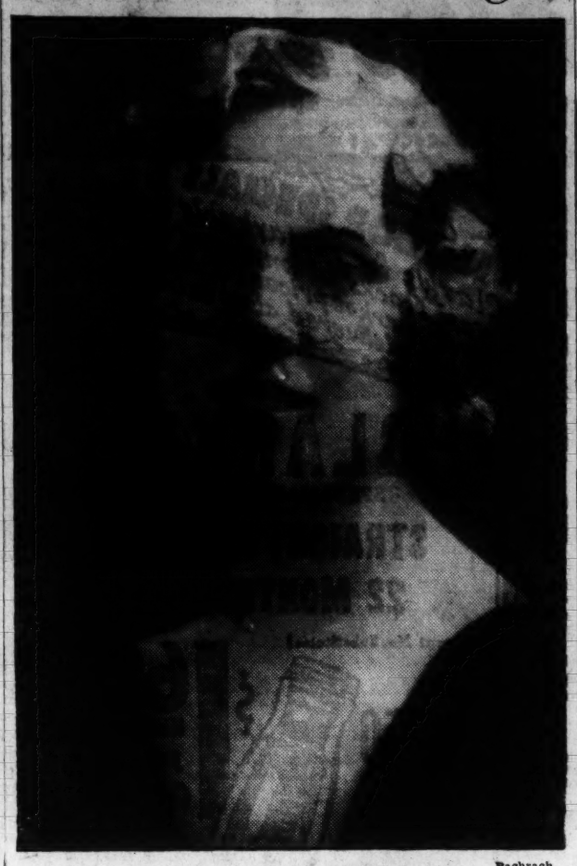
'Hard-Boiled' Attitude In Business Discouraged



AGNES McCALL PARKER. Bachrach.

Agnes McCall Parker, Personality Authority, Says Women Can Go Farther With a Pleasing Personality.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

HARD-BOILED BUSINESSWOMEN have made good copy for the joke-maker and the cartoonist since the first grim-faced sister took her seat behind an office desk. Yet why does the typical woman wage earner follow the pattern set by the men with whom she works? Are a blunt manner, a harsh voice and an "I'll-show-'em" attitude the price she must pay for success in the business world?

"Not at all," says Agnes McCall Parker, authority on personality, character adjustment and speech culture. "Any woman, anywhere, can go farther if she keeps a firm grip on her feminine attributes. In fact, no woman either in public or private life can afford to grow 'hard.' It shows in her face, her voice—even in the way she walks, and spoils her charm completely."

Convinced the maxim "You can catch more flies with sugar than with vinegar" is one every woman should keep in mind, Mrs. Parker yesterday explained how women—even busy ones—can stay attractive despite the strain of holding a job.

The Miracle of Smiles.

A charming personality, she believes, results from the combination of a number of factors, including sincerity, a sympathetic understanding of others, a pleasing facial expression, flawless manners, good posture and breathing and careful grooming.

"Sincerity is a natural attribute," she said, "but sympathy can be developed by thinking less of oneself and more of other persons. A pleasing facial expression can also be consciously developed. Many women give an erroneous impression of their personalities by frowning, keeping their jaws set and their lips pressed into a thin line. A smile in an office will work miracles."

As for maners—well, politeness is another matter of thinking of other persons, according to Mrs. Parker. "No woman should ever be too busy to treat those around her and those who come into her office, with courtesy. Bad manners don't necessarily signify a lack of what we call breeding; they are rooted in only one thing—selfishness."

She also believes good posture is important, "particularly in inspiring respect in others and in keeping self-respect," she said. "And that is one thing every able-bodied woman can achieve. Another is proper breathing. And good grooming is something of a business proposition. The woman who keeps her nails manicured, her hair neatly arranged and her skin in good condition generally 'keeps sweet' and naturally stands a better chance in the business and social world than a woman whose personal appearance is the least of her worries."

Important Qualities Unchanged.

Discussing the woman who leads a "double life"—that is, the one who has both a home and a career, Mrs. Parker pointed out that the most important qualities in a woman are the same today as they have always been. "Sympathy, dignity and modesty are just as important today as they ever were," she said. "And the love of a home and children is just as strong in the average modern woman as it was in her grandmother. If a woman has children, no matter what her career is, her chief interest is in her home. The qualities that make a success of her job as a homemaker will also help her in public endeavor. Her voice, her touch, her smile and her sympathy convert a house into a home; they can also make an office a pleasant place.

"A man, also, has his home duties, but they generally lie in the direction of providing and protecting. In his contacts with the world he sometimes grows a bit hardened, and it detracts little from him. But the case is different with a woman. No matter how difficult her life may be, she can not afford to grow hard and lose her looks and her charm. Both of these—particularly the latter—are a woman's most effective aids, whether her career is within or without the home."

Warm Clothes Help Children Retain Energy

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

MRS. JONES and her 4-year-old daughter were out for a stroll. The mother was swathed in furs from the knees up. Her shoes were paper thin, her stockings of gauze. The child also was bundled up in mufflers and great coat, but her legs were bare from the knees down, except for socks—wool, it is true—and heavy shoes.

To the casual observer, the mother was more warmly dressed than the child, since the expanse of bare leg above the socks was conspicuous against the dark clothing. People who saw the two accused the mother of cruelty. "She wraps herself up well, and lets the child freeze." It is questionable whether gauze stockings are warmer than bare legs, and certainly the child's shoes and socks were more protection from the chill blasts of winter than the mother's equipment.

Nevertheless, the child was unwisely dressed. The little child is nearer the damp ground than the adult, and does not move fast enough to keep up its circulation. Furthermore, some of the largest arteries of the body are under the knee. To keep warm requires extra energy, and if the child must put so much of its strength into keeping warm, there is really not enough left for body building.

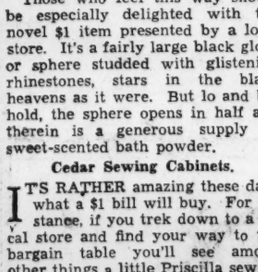
Leggings and arctics are a nuisance to put on and take off. But they are essential out-of-door clothing in cold or damp weather until a child is 6 or 8 years old and able to keep itself warm romping and running.

The child who still must walk with nurse or mother needs clothing from the waist down far more than from the waist up. It is better economy to buy woolen socks and woolen trousers than mufflers and tippets.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

WE'RE TIRED of spending all our Christmas energy being noble and hunting up things other people will like. We once knew a man who put it this way . . . he said the trouble with Christmas was that you always gave away the thing you were dying for yourself and got what you didn't want and somebody else was dying for. Well, we don't go that far, but we do hold that it's only fair for a lady to put something on the tree to herself from herself.



So we've been having a grand time deciding on what we were going to give ourself. There was a beautiful glass water pitcher with tumblers to match . . something we'd always been needing and wanting . . . we almost fell for it. Then our eye rested upon a pair of silver candelabra . . . very gorgeous and far beyond our budget but just the same something we enjoyed wishing for. And do you know another thing we'd like to give ourself? . . . some very useless and perfectly enchanting little figurines in white porcelain . . . with a pair of gold brackets to hold them on the wall. How is that for a confession from a lady who's supposed to be very proper and practical! What we finally did get to put on the tree with our name on the tag was a lamp—not such an original thought after all but it was the kind of a lamp we wanted . . . a rose quartz base and a plain white silk shade that was lovely in a guestroom with robin's egg blue walls and white chintz with flowers in the pattern.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

Bureau Makes Treatment Possible for Low-Income Group.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I am a stranger here and I don't know just how to go about handling this problem of mine. I have had an ugly skin infection for the past several years, which is gradually spreading all over my face and which causes me great worry and unhappiness.

The treatment for it is expensive, most doctors changing $5 a treatment. Since I need one treatment a week and my husband's salary is very small, a doctor's services have been out of the question.

• • • •

What I would like to know is: Are their any skin clinics in Washington which might provide this treatment for a small fee, or do you know of a good skin specialist who would be willing to treat me for what I can afford to pay? Must one be a resident of the District of Columbia for a certain length of time in order to be eligible for treatment at a clinic in one of the hospitals in the district? I will be grateful if you can let me have some information soon. Sincerely,

A. A.

DEAR A. A.: The Medical Dental Service Bureau at Eighth and I streets northwest, was created for the purpose of finding the helpful answer to problems such as yours. In making inquiry on your behalf, I was referred to Mises Katherine J. Schindel, assistant medical-social worker there, who will be pleased to go over your problem with you personally. She can be reached for appointment by telephoning MEtropolitan 3900. On the basis of your husband's income, a plan will be devised for making possible the treatment you need. Either you will be directed to a clinic, or arrangement made whereby you can pay a physician of your own choosing on the deferred-payment plan.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

A Christmas Orchid Makes Its Appearance

A dark-red orchid, appropriate for the Christmas season, recently was introduced by Andrew Benson at the Chicago flower show. The plant represented 35 years of research, planning, laboratory experiments and hybridizing, according to the Associated Press.

Fourteen plants were crossed before the desired shade was obtained. The new orchids will be available in limited quantities and will cost about $10 apiece.

Popular Scare From Acidosis Held Overdone

Body Easily and Quickly Throws Off Weak Acids and Alkalies.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

SO much has been written about acidosis that it would take a man with strong eyesight a year to cover the literature on the subject. This on the assumption that he would read industriously at least eight hours each day. Even loud speakers are not immune to the acidosis complex. The term is so euphonious—such a tongue tickler—that the lay public has adopted it.

The body possesses great powers of adjustment. Were this not so the world would have been depopulated centuries ago. Under normal conditions the blood is slightly alkaline, and this state is maintained in health at all times. There is a group of substances present in the blood which act as chemical regulators. They are the traffic officers, controlling the travel of acid and alkaline elements.

Fortunately, the body has the power to rid itself rather quickly and easily—via the lungs and kidneys—of both weak acids and weak alkalies. This machinery may continue to function, holding steady the normal chemical balance of the body even with the loss of important salts through vomiting, diarrhea or excess urination.

Children Easily Upset.

We may dismiss with but mild concern the occurrence of acidosis in adults, provided (1) there is no diabetes and (2) that the individual uses an average basic diet. Children, on the contrary, particularly infants, are more easily upset, but even babies show a surprising power to regulate the acid-alkaline balance. For example, in a ten-year period in a large children's hospital only slightly over 1 per cent of the admissions were due to acidosis.

There is one certain way of determining whether or not acidosis is present, and that is by finding just how much carbon dioxide is contained in the blood. This is a technical procedure which is not always easy to carry out. As a rule the carbon dioxide in the blood must be at a fairly low level before obvious signs of acidosis will appear. When the deficiency amounts to as much as 30 per cent some remedial measures are demanded.

Once the condition is recognized the remedy is relatively simple. Probably the most effective treatment is the administration of a solution of sodium lactate. We all know about lactic acid. We have learned of it as associated with the souring of milk, and sodium lactate is the sodium salt of this acid. Whenever severe diarrhea, vomiting or diabetes is observed in young children, sodium lactate is administered as a precautionary measure on the ground that no harm will ensue.

Bath Crystals in Giant Falcons Reach a New 'High' This Year

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Her winter bath can be as refreshing as a summer breeze—and as Fashion can make it! Sprakling bath crystals in giant crystal flacons . . . scented bath oils . . . dusting powder that clings . . . fine-grained bath soap . . . every woman has a soft spot in her heart for gifts like these!

Bath crystals have been dressing up more and more for several seasons, now, and this year they reach a new "high." Falcons to make a lady shriek with glee stand about fifteen inches high—and are filled to the brim with different colored crystals.

Other cheery looking bottles have flowers painted on them to match the stoppers. Snowy daises or narcissi . . . bright red poppies . . . and so on.

Dusting Powder.

Dusting powder has caught the Christmas spirit in grand style, too, and wraps itself up in riotously gay boxes of various shapes and sizes. Sometimes quite huge boxes equipped with a puff the same size. Fragile floral scents (not strong enough to interfere with their pet perfume) are liked by many women—and this year there's a good array to choose from.

Fine Grained Soaps.

Every woman adores nice soap. There are cakes to be had that are so finely grained that they lather to delicate bubbles—gossamer light, and frothy as sea foam. Why not wrap her up a box or two . . . she'll be pleased as Punch!

There are quite luscious sets of these prepartations to be had, too. Perhaps bath oil and dusting powder . . . or crystals and powder . . . all tucked into boxes gay as the music you'll dance to tonight!

FAVORITE FOODS of FAMOUS FOLK

Conahana, an Indian Dish, Served by Mrs. Lawson at Buffet Supper.

By Pattie Ellicott.

NEWSPAPER women of Washington enjoying the bountiful hospitality of Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson, national president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, at a buffet supper recently were enthusiastic about one distinctive dish on the interesting menu, which was prepared by Mrs. Lawson herself.

It was "Conahana," a dish much favored by Indians, which reminded the guests that Mrs. Lawson's ancestory goes back to the first Americans and that she is thoroughly conversant with the legends, traditions and folklore of these people. Often as a child Mrs. Lawson ate "Conahana" with the Indians and has maintained a fondless for it ever since.

Here is the recipe:

Conahana.

Take 2 pounds of English walnut meats, boil them for two hours in hominy juice, then pulverize them and add to the bulk 1½ quarts of corn, 1 quart of hominy and ¼ of a pound of butter.

Add seasoning of salt and pepper to taste and cook for one hour. Then pour into baking dish and bake until done.

The Indians frequently serve this dish with venison and buffalo meat. The above recipe is for a large group of guests. The proportions could be reduced, of course, for a smaller family.

Mrs. Lawson served at the buffet supper a gingerbread of cheese which she laughingly called "a robust dessert."

Disguised Milk Dish Features Lunch Menu

Dessert With Fruit Punch Will Satisfy Children Demanding Beverage.

By Dorothea Duncan.

YOU will find that milk will be more popular with the younger members of the family if every now and then, it is allowed to disappear as a beverage from the menu. This, however, does not mean that milk should not be present in some attractive disguise.

Adults also need milk and many of them prefer to take their share in a disguised form, especially if they are accustomed to a cup of steaming hot coffee or tea with their meals.

Today's luncheon menu has been planned to give one's meals a supply of milk in a disguised form. If the children also demand a beverage they may be served a dessert with a fruit punch. This can be made by using fruit juices left over from canned fruits used in salads, desserts, etc. If the canned fruit juice is too sweet is can be pepped up by the addition of a bit of unsweetened canned or fresh fruit juice.

MENUS FOR TODAY

• • • •

BREAKFAST

Sliced oranges and bananas
Shirred eggs Philadelphia scrapple
White toast Strawberry preserves
Coffee Milk (for children)

• • • •

LUNCHEON

Cream of shrimp soup (canned)
Toasted salted crackers
Chopped peanut and cabbage salad with cooked dressing
Chocolate tapioca with top milk
Beverage (if desired)

• • • •

DINNER

Green peppers stuffed with leftover meat and rice baked and served with tomato sauce
Creamed turnips
Hearts of lettuce with French dressing
Bran muffins Butter
Vanilla ice cream with red cherry preserves
Coffee Milk (for children)

Remember that green peppers should be blanched or parboiled befor baking so that they will be tender. Cut off the tops of the peppers and cut them in two lengthwise and remove the inner fibers and seeds. Drop into boiling water, remove from the fire, let stand 10 to 12 minutes, then drain and stuff, and bake as your recipe directs.

Date Questionnaire Of College Bureau Starts With Height

"HOW tall is she?" That is the first question men students of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology ask in arranging for a date, says George Levy in charge of the Tech Menorah Society's new dating bureau.

Levy, according to the Associated Press, has listed 135 girls attending college in Greater Boston as eligible partners for Tech men.

He submits a questionnaire to the young women to learn their height, general appearance, taste in amusements and other points of interest to Tech students. From the replies, he explained, a young man should be able to determine how expensive a date with a particular girl should be. Photographs are not furnished.

Students who make dates through the bureau are expected to make a report and thus add to data on file.

Selassie Doll Most Popular Toy in France

U. S. Factories Stock Up Too Early to Capitalize on African War.

By the United Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—French children will fight the African war on playroom floors this Christmas with toy Italian and Ethiopian soldiers—including a Haile Selassie doll that walks, salutes and utters a throaty "Ugh"—but American children must be content with the trains, dolls and noise-makers of last year, somewhat modernized.

American toy manufacturers, who stocked toy departments last summer before the Italo-Ethiopian war started, were caught flatfooted when Mussolini's invasion of ancient Ethiopia seized the attention of the world, and, incidentally, provided a sure-fire market for toys portraying the war. Then it was too late to get them on the market.

Not so in France. A Paris dispatch said the most popular toy with French children this year is a fierce doll representing the Ethiopian Emperor. A large part of featured toy displays is Italian and Ethiopian fighters in uniform—with the blacks barefooted. They are complete with camel and mule caravans loaded with munitions.

Trains With Authentic Whistles.

A United Press survey of leading toy departments here indicated that the wail of locomotive whistles and the rat-tat-tat of "G-men machine guns" will keep American boys happy on Christmas Day.

Streamlined electric trains modeled on the railroads' latest fliers all are equipped with remote control and "authentic" locomotive whistles, a new development this year.

Although introduced last year, the toy cars and machine guns representing the Government's war on gangsters will be very popular again, according to toy department managers, thriftily trying to counteract their lack of Ethiopian war toys. Only one such manager would admit a demand for Ethiopian war toys, which he sadly admitted he couldn't fill.

Other stores featured displays of soldiers such as British Tommies, American doughboys; Germans, French, Zulus and Moors, but said they were selling "only so-so."

Heavy Sale of Games.

Shirley Temple dolls in sizes from 3 inches to 3 feet, representing the little movie star as a baby and as she is today, dominate doll departments, a slight favorite over Dionne quintuplet sets obtainable in many sizes and doing everything from sleeping in cribs to riding kiddie-cars. Doll houses and furniture, of course, are heavy sellers.

All stores reported a heavy sale of games, many new this year. One, for older children and adults, is a board game like parchesi with a background of politics. The winner becomes President of the United States after a "campaign tour."

Other modern toys displayed included:

Streamline velocipedes and wagons with horns and lights, microscope and telescope sets, mineralogy sets, three-dimension picture books resembling the old stereopticon slides, models of airplanes and ships and low-price movie projectors. Declining in popularity, store managers said, were comic strip character toys.

Strictly Speaking

Try These.

1. Which is correct, "to the manor born" or "to the manner born?"
2. What is the most devoted of all male birds?
3. What is the preferable pronunciation of squalor—SKOWL-er or SKWAY-ler?
4. What is mousse and how is it pronounced?

Check Here.

1. Both expressions accord with usage, but "to the manner born" is the authentic form.
2. The male cardinal. Only death or captivity can separate it from its mate.
3. SKOWL-er is preferable. SKWAY-ler, though also correct, is now rarely used.
4. Hot and cold forcemeat of fish, chicken, ham, etc., mixed with whipped cream, molded and decorated.

New York Policewomen Promoted to Detectives

New York, Dec. 11 (AP).—New York's police department has opened a new vista for career women.

Four policewomen, designated third-grade detectives, received new "gold" shields at ceremonies.

They were the first policewomen in the history of the department promoted to the detective grade.

Now they are in line for further promotion and salary increases in the detective division.

The Federal Diary

Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

By Morgan Baker.

THE National Legislative Council of Federal Employe Organizations, speaking for more than 160,000 organized Government employes, yesterday drafted the legislative program it will support at the next session of Congress. The program:

Preservation and extension of the merit system, with the Ramspeck and Logan bills favored.

Optional retirement at the age of 60, after 30 years service, and the optional acceptance of a lesser annuity by the employes to extend the annuity to a second life.

Passage of the McCarran-Boyland bond premium bill, under which the Government would pay for bond premiums when bonds are demanded by Federal laws or regulations.

Maintenance of present rates on first-class mail.

Extension of classification.

Liberalization of sick and annual leave by adoption of bills which were passed by the House at the last session of Congress.

The council also elected officers. John J. Barrett, president of the United National Association of Post-office Clerks, was re-elected chairman; J. Ed Cooper, president of the National Rural Letter Carriers Association, was named secretary-treasurer, succeeding W. G. Armstrong; Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, was re-appointed chairman of the legislative committee.

LAST minute word from the Chicago convention of State, city and county employes' groups—seeking to affiliate with the A. F. G. E.—indicated last night that the meeting will close with a temporary setup organized as the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes.

This group, it was learned, will be affiliated with the American Federation of Labor through the A. F. G. E. The present form of organization, however, is only tentative. It will remain for the A. F. G. E. convention in Detroit next September to put on final touches. It is expected that the A. F. G. E. will issue a certificate of temporary affiliation.

Additional information from the convention brought word that E. Claude Babcock, president of the A. F. G. E., victim of a mysterious attack while attending the meeting, is much improved and will carry out his original schedule of visiting Detroit en route back to Washington.

Meanwhile, a local lodge of the A. F. G. E. has demanded "an immediate" investigation of the attack. In a letter to Mayor Edward Kelly and Chicago police authorities, the Panama Canal Lodge condemned the "atrocious assault" and urged that every effort be made to apprehend and punish "those responsible."

"Mr. Babcock was entitled to every safeguard while in your city," the letter—in the form of a resolution—added.

Labor Lodge No. 12, of the American Federation of Government Employes, was split last week by a walk-out and a new labor lodge subsequently created. No. 228 had 92 members present when it convened in the Interstate Commerce Commission Building to elect new officers yesterday, members reported.

Dorothea DeSchweinitz, research worker in the United States Employment Service, was elected president.

She pledged "sincere co-operation with all organized groups in the Department of Labor," efforts to extend civil service to all department employes and assistance to the organized labor movement in the District.

The new executive committee was instructed to take steps to prevent the issuance of the new Labor Lodge, No. 228, charter from becoming an organization precedent in the A. F. G. E., a resolution saying such a precedent would prevent "any effective adjustment of grievances within a department."

Other officers elected were five vice presidents, George Brooks, Dorothy Bailey, Marion Mel, Eleanor Nelson and Alice Nutt; a secretary, Helen Schnetzler; a treasurer, Solomon Kusnetz; four delegates to the District Department, Brooks, Parrish, DeSchweinitz and Nelson, and four delegates to the Central Labor Union, Karro, Grauman, Bailey and J. Brown.

Government employes may celebrate restoration of full annual and sick leave soon after the first of the new year. This was the prediction of President Luther C. Steward of the National Federation of Federal Employes as he spoke recently before a meeting of Federal Employes Union, No. 105 (Women's Union, Bureau of Engraving and Printing), in the Willard Hotel.

When Congress convenes, he said, there will be immediate action on pending leave bills.

After a brief business meeting, the local union held its annual Christmas party, with music and a program of entertainment. Division chiefs and representatives of various other unions were honor guests. The business meeting was presided over by Miss Belle Trouland (P).

There will be big doings Saturday night at the Y. M. C. A.—big doings, that is, for Government "rassle" fans. It will be the first in a series of all-association social-athletic events, and Government department "rasslers" will show what they can do in the art of neck pulling and chest thumping.

The Wilmington (Del.) "Y" will throw its forces into the ring against such local department champs as Max Schayer, G. P. O. (F); Robert Myers, railroad retirement board; William Golding, Agriculture; Tom Scott (P), Agriculture; Tony Rapp, Justice; C. A. Pritchard, Commodity Credit; Roy Potter (C), Agriculture, and Roland F. Ackerman, Bureau of Standards.

And here is a note about a couple of lads who have our sympathy—or condolence—or whatever they want, namely, Louis A. Barr (F) and George S. Rielley (F). (Maybe you already know them.)

Anyway, tomorrow is Friday the thireeenth. These boys—both of them employed in the Treasury Department—are going out to Beacon Field, near Alexandria, and do a double parachute drop from the wing of an airplane soaring somewhere over the farm land.

Anything to defy that old jinx! And to make it better—or worse—it will be Barr's thirteenth leap.

Oh, yes—the boys will take off at 5 p. m., just as it is getting dark.

Another Friday the thirteenth event will be the annual dance of employes in the office of the Commissioner of Accounts and Deposits, Treasury. It will be held in the Washington Hotel.

Here is another trio of department inventors who have recently been awarded patents—Ralph E. Grey, B. E. Boynton and Davidson K. Kirkpatrick (F), of the War Department. They got together on a variable speed hydraulic transmission for aircraft and automobiles.

Aroused by the recent accident in which three persons were hurt in front of the old Postoffice Building at Pennsylvania avenue and Twelfth street northwest, some workers there were seeking backers for a cure of the traffic situation at that highway maze. One suggestion, by Miss Sally Stroud, who works in the night AAA shift there, is to prohibit all parking in front of the building.

Culbertson On Contract

(Mr. Culbertson continues his description of a "friendly game" he recently watched. The first hand in this series appeared Tuesday of this week.)

It was obvious that North and South were slightly flushed with their success on the last two hands, while East and West were correspondingly morose.

South was an ardent disciple of the "heckling system."

"Of course, if they're going to hold all the cards," he said complainingly to his partner, "the most we can collect is about 50 points per hand."

Both opponents gave him a murderous glance, and the next hand went into play.

North, dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 N T	2 clubs	Double
Pass	Pass	2 diamonds	Double
Pass	Pass	2 spades	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

I was sitting behind South and, of course, his object in bidding clubs and diamonds before his real spade suit was quite clear. He knew that West was "laying for him" and hoped that his eagerness for a killing might becloud his judgment. This actually happened. West allowed himself to get into a "doubling stride," and when South apparently rescued himself from the club and diamond doubles West fell into the trap.

North deserved credit for sizing up the true situation and passing the spade bid rather than return to either of the other suits South had bid. East was blameless. His original bid was sound, and he had to trust his partner.

To make a bad matter worse, West opened the heart five, "the unbid suit." Eight tricks promptly became a laydown.

"Two spades, doubled, and game!" purred South.

If I may be permitted poetic license, East and West exuded silence in large, thick quantities.

Safe Blowers Bind and Beat D.C. Detective

Victim Pulled Indoors, Gagged and Tied Up While They Work.

Yeggs Flee With $5,000 Belonging to 'Numbers' Game Operator.

On his day off yesterday, Detective Sergt. Howard Smith innocently walked into a hornets' nest and was lucky to come out with his life.

It was like fiction. About 6 p. m., Smith, one of four colored detective sergeants in the Washington bureau, rang a door bell at a house in the 1800 block First street northwest.

Technically he was not at work but as he was in the neighborhood he decided to drop by the house to see a witness in a robbery case he was investigating.

He rang the bell.

Murder Plan Vetoed.

The door opened suddenly. A pair of arms reached out, grabbed him and pulled him in. The door closed.

Two men threw him to the floor. One of them pressed a pistol to his head. They searched him, found his police badge and gun.

This discovery almost cost Smith his life. One of his assailants said: "He's a cop. We'll have to kill him."

But it was dark in the hallway where Smith was lying. That saved his life.

The other man said:

"No, it's dark. He couldn't identify us."

Detective Is Beaten.

The pair then bound Smith's arms and legs, pulled his coat up over his head, struck him with his own pistol, kicked him in the back and threw him down into the cellar of the house.

He heard breathing. He knew there were other persons in the cellar with him. He lay there.

Then the whole house shook with a dull boom. There soon followed the noise of feet running down stairs and noise of slamming doors.

Someone then untied Smith. He was groggy. The police came and he was removed to Freedmen's Hospital, where he was treated for a severe cut on the head and a bruised back.

How Gang Operated.

The police went upstairs. There they found a safe with doors gaping. It had been blown open.

They found, too, that Daniel Green, colored, 29, of the 1700 block of Fourth street northwest, also had been bound and thrown in the cellar.

From Green and Mrs. Odell Williams, colored, the investigators got this account of what happened:

Five or six white men entered the house, apparently with a duplicate key, shortly before 6 p. m.

The men pulled guns, bound Green and put him in the cellar, and ordered Mrs. Williams and two young colored girls to go to the cellar and "keep quiet."

$5,000 Plunder.

Detectives said an examination of the safe indicated the robbers were expert yeggs and had blown the safe open with nitroglycerine.

It was learned from police that between $5,000 and $6,000 was taken from the safe.

The investigators said the safe was the property of a "numbers" racketeer who operates in Washington, Baltimore and Atlantic City.

Green told investigators he had gone to the house to visit one of the girls. Mrs. Williams is guardian of the girls, detectives said.

And Do They Have Fun Choosing Costumes For Pageant!

They might look like stern and dignified men. They had, in fact, convinced many a jury. Some had held high offices. There were at least two former Assistant Attorneys General, and one former Assistant Secretary of Commerce.

But—

Under their costumes beat the hearts of boys.

Back almost to kid days, chortling, hustled the members of the District Bar Association when, about 50 strong, they swarmed to pick out yesterday the silks and satins they'll wear next Wednesday night in presenting their pageant, "Making of the Constitution."

While the crowd stormed Jack Mullane's emporium for what the well-dressed play actor will wear, stolid H. Winship Wheatley, association president, handed down a decisoin from the bench—where colleagues were drawing on their shoes:

"We've really got something here."

Intended to portray the Revolutionary statesmen who drew up the Constitution (the pageant's about the development in Philadelphia's Independence Hall from May 25 to September 17, 1787), the lawyers agreed that their costumes might not be historically detailed, but:

"They certainly look authentic."

Edward Stafford, chairman of the pageant's publicity committee, last night gave out a partial list of players and their parts, including:

George P. Hoover, as George Washington; William E. Leahy, as Alexander Hamilton; Raymond B. Dickey, as James Madison; Rush L. Holland, as Edmund Randolph; Al Philip Kane, as Benjamin Franklin; William C. Van Vleck, as Roger Sherman; Lansdale G. Sasscer, as Luther Martin; T. Howard Duckett, as James McHenry; Edward Stafford, as Oliver Ellsworth; George M. Morris, as Gouverneur Morris; Alvin L. Newmyer, as Robert Morris; George Offutt, as Charles Pinckney; E. Hilton Jackson, as George Mason; John D. Fitzgerald, as James Wilson; William P. MacCracken, as William Jackson; Max L. Shulman, as Rufus King, and James C. Wilkes, as Chancellor Wythe.

Stafford also said that the association's version would differ from those previously given by the Los Angeles, Kansas City and Philadelphia associations, local rewriting having been done by W. A. Gallagher, George A. Warner, and himself. Raymond B. Dickey is chairman of the pageant committee.

Citizens Group Backs Measure To Dry Up City

Huggins Charges Members Absent Year Cast 13 Deciding Votes.

The Rhode Island Citizens Association last night went on record as the first one to throw its weight behind the current move to dry up the District.

After several rounds of hot debating, a resolution to support the Guyer prohibition bill was passed by approximately 2 to 1. Several members did not vote.

The action was taken after the resolution was reported favorably to the body by the chairman of the organization's legislative committee, Charles O. Pierce. The matter had been brought to his attention by the association president, Clayton C. Marsh, who received a letter urging support of the Guyer bill from the United Dry Forces of the District of Columbia.

Harold S. Huggins, secretary of the association, charged that 13 of the 19 dry votes were cast by members who had not attended a meeting for over a year. He said that the vote was not representative of the sentiment of the whole association.

Bus Service Assailed

Emphatic dissatisfaction over present bus service was expressed by the American University Park Citizens Association, voting to send Vincent Baker Smith, its utilities chairman, to Monday's transit hearing with its complaints.

On its own "Forty-first and Fessenden" line, the association asked additional and newer buses, schedules to run buses at least once every 15 minutes, and a dollar pass which would be good on all other bus and trolley lines.

Specific complaints of overloading, of passengers left waiting on street corners, and of failure to keep present schedules were turned over to Smith.

The question brought 200 members to Hurst Hall, one of the largest association meetings on record.

Lodge Censure Tabled

The Benning Citizens Association last night voted to table a resolution adopted by the Sixteenth Street Highlands Citizens Association censuring William E. Lodge, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, for testifying for the application of a liquor license.

The association asked that more street lights be installed on Minnesota avenue between the Benning Viaduct and Galt place, and requested installation of a cinder dump on property of the Potomac Electric Power Co. near Benning road.

P. U. C. Drafts New Revision Of Gas Rates

Inquiry Into Ownership of Suburban Unit Also Ordered.

Change in D.C. Schedule to Cover Future Adjustments.

A revised sliding scale agreement to cover future adjustments of gas rates is to be submitted to the gas companies by the Public Utilities Commission today.

It also was learned that Riley E. Elgen, chairman of the commission, ordered E. Barrett Prettyman, corporation counsel and general counsel of the commission, to investigate ownership of the Washington & Suburban Companies, holder of 84 per cent of the common stock of the Washington Gas Light Co.

The commission sliding scale proposal will comprise the agreement offered by the companies, with several changes in various parts to bring them into line with the views of the commission. The companies will be asked to accept the proposed changes or state their objections.

Officials in Conference.

Announcement of this was made by Richmond B. Keech, vice chairman of the commission, following a four-hour conference held yesterday at which provisions of the sliding scale plan were discussed at length. Elgen, Keech and Col. Dan I. Sultan, Engineer Commissioner, members of the commission; Prettyman, Hinman D. Folsom, special assistant corporation counsel; William A. Roberts, people's counsel; William McK. Clayton, chairman of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, and Stoddard M. Stevens, of Sullivan & Cromwell, New York law firm, attorney for the companies, took part in the conference. They are to meet again at 11 a. m. today.

One of the more important provisions which was brought into question at the meeting was the covering possible future abrogation of the agreement once it is put into effect by commission order. Incident to that there was discussion of the form of the commission's order approving the sliding scale arrangement and related matters.

Abrogation Chief Issue.

During the public hearing on the proposal the commission pointedly brought into question the possibility of future abrogation and made it clear it was not satisfied with the language submitted by the companies, Mr. Prettyman, Mr. Folsom and Mr. Roberts. Whether the modification desired by the commission would be acceptable, Mr. Stevens refused to say after the conference yesterday. Any and all announcements must come from the commission, he said.

The commission order to investigate ownership of Washington and suburban companies was issued because of "the many changes which have occurred in the conditions surrounding the ownership," it was said in the formal memorandum.

These changes were involved in the recent "public auctions" of 1,810 shares of the beneficial interest in the Suburban Companies, which is a Massachusetts common law trust holding 84 per cent of the 130,000 common shares of stock of the Washington Gas Light Co. The shares were sold to six persons for $3.50 a share. Although the value of the individual shares of beneficial interest may not be very much, the entire holding is of importance to the future control of the local gas companies.

Three Owners Named.

A telephone operator, a printer and an assistant New York City engineer are three of the six new owners of record of the shares recently auctioned. Arthur H. Dean, of Sullivan & Cromwell, New York law firm, advised the District Supreme Court and the commission of their names. Their occupations were listed in the New York City directories. What connection, if any, the new owners may have with the group which brought the trust into being and still controls it is not known.

Aids Hopeful Of U. S. Grant For Airports

Johnson Confident Fund Will Be Provided by Some Agency.

Development of Point, Washington Field Purchase Urged.

Assistant Secretary of Commerce J. M. Johnson still was optimistic yesterday over the prospects of some governmental agency obtaining PWA or WPA funds to buy and improve Washington Airport and to develop Gravelly Point.

PWA officials pointed out that no more than 10 per cent of a PWA grant can be used to purchase land and that the Commerce Department plan might consequently strike a legal snarl. Johnson replied, "I know we will encounter legal barriers, but I believe we will surmount them."

The assistant secretary, who suggested the two-airport plan in a letter to Representative Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, said that Commerce Department officials had been investigating the feasibility of the plan for weeks and seek only to provide adequate flying facilities for the Capital.

He intimated the Commerce Department may have some definite announcement to make regarding the airport proposal in the near future.

S. J. Solomon, vice president of the Washington Airport, indorsed the plan for a double airport and estimated that the flying field he manages might be turned into a first-class airport by expenditure of less than $500,000.

"As air traffic grows," he said, "it becomes more dangerous for private planes to land on the same field used by air liners during bad weather unless they have two-way radio communication facilities.

"It will be only a matter of a few years when the two kinds of air traffic coming to Washington will have to be separated."

Further steps by the Commerce Department probably will await the convening of Congress so that the attitude of the Senate and House District Committees can be determined before proceeding.

Family Periled By Gas Suicide

Waking Child Saves Her Mother as Fumes Rise to Their Apartment.

After placing her pet dog and canary in the bedroom of her apartment, with a window open to give them air, Mrs. Ethel Saunders, 30, 1740 Euclid street northwest, killed herself yesterday in the kitchen with illuminating gas.

Fumes escaping from the apartment sickened 6-year-old June Henderson, asleep directly above the Saunders' home. Her cries awakened her father, Herbert C. Henderson, who found his wife unconscious and quickly ventilated the apartment.

Henderson summoned the janitor, William Williams, and after reviving his wife and looking after his daughter, traced gas to the Saunders apartment and broke in the door.

Mrs. Saunders was found unconscious beside the stove with her head resting on the oven door. Gas jets of the stove were open. Efforts of the fire rescue squad to revive Mrs. Saunders proved futile.

Mrs. Donald Weikert, resident manager, told police Mrs. Saunders had called on her shortly after midnight. The woman appeared excited and said she had argued with her husband, J. A. Saunders, a salesman, Mrs. Weikert stated.

McConihe Groomed For Postmastership

D. C. Democratic Chiefs Want Last Big Plum Dropped in D. C.

Malcolm S. McConihe was reported yesterday by one of Washington's prominent Democratic leaders to have the support of "quite a number" of the party leaders here for appointment as the new Washington postmaster.

By last night the appointment was taking on all the aspects of a major battle in one of the Capital's few political wars.

Party leaders of the District were insisting that the job, last important patronage plum scheduled to be dropped during the present Administration and worth $9,000 a year, should go to a District resident, be it McConihe or someone else.

Willing to Accept Job.

They were complaining also that, despite a $70,000 campaign chest raised here in 1932 and a unanimous vote cast for Roosevelt at the Chicago convention, and a claimed 35,000 absentee vote for Roosevelt from Washington, the District party has only gotten one straight political appointment among District jobs—that of John B. Colpoys as United States marshal.

McConihe was being pushed as one of the 7 members of the delegation of 12 who finally swung the District votes into line for Roosevelt, away from Alfred E. Smith and Gov. Albert C. Ritchie in 1932.

Asked bluntly whether he was a candidate, McConihe said yesterday:

"If the people of the District want me, I would accept the appointment."

Lauds Mooney Service.

He refused to comment further, other than to say he thought the present appointee, William M. Mooney, whose term expires February 5, had done an "excellent" job, and that his policies were "commendable."

McConihe is just concluding a year and a half's service as a member of the Virginia-District boundary commission. A native of Troy, N. Y., he has resided here for 30 years, and for the last few years he has been an active party worker and contributor here.

He is president of William Corcoran Hill Co., real estate house; member of the Metropolitan, Chevy Chase, and Alfalfa clubs; tall, gray-haired man fond of playing tennis; a believer in national suffrage for the District; and a resident of Northwest, at 2817 Woodland drive.

Well up in the running remained Rowland Marshall, insurance dealer here. It was learned that District Democratic leaders would seek to confer with Postmaster-General James A. Farley in the near future about the job.

"We talked it over at a luncheon the other day," one revealed yesterday, "and we think a District man should get the job."

Parks to Get Benches.

C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of National Capital Parks, yesterday recommended the award of a $11,554 contract for new benches to be installed in parks being rehabilitated under the local PWA program. The successful bidder is the Southern Ornamental Iron Works.

Uniform Drug Control Backed By Medical Unit

Physicians Stress Need of Police Power Over Traffic Here.

Unanimous indorsement was voted last night by the Medical Society of the District of Columbia of the uniform narcotic drugs act, which will be introduced into Congress at the coming session.

The act, already in force in 28 States and approved by the American Bar Association and the American Medical Association, would give the local superintendent of police and the health officer police powers over traffic in narcotic drugs in the District of Columbia.

It was explained at the medical society that existing Federal laws can, under the Constitution, be concerned only with the taxing power of the Federal Government, and that, up to this time, except where taxing power is specifically violated, there is no law empowering local police in this city to take jurisdiction.

The passage of a uniform act in the several States and Territories governing narcotic traffic will give no haven across State lines to those guilty of illegal distribution.

Indorsement was also given to a proposed amendment to the act regulating the practice of pharmacy which will prohibit the sale of certain hypnotic drugs except on prescription.

A recent survey made by the Police Department has shown that within 90 days 35 local drug stores sold nearly 150,000 tablets of some of these drugs alone.

Agency Urges Prisoners Pay Cost of Keep

Welfare Board Indorses Levy on Those Able to Meet Expense.

Capital Commissioners Asked to Back New Child Laws.

Prisoners in District penal institutions having the means to do so would be required to pay the District the cost of their keep while in prison under legislation recommended to the District Commissioners yesterday by the Board of Public Welfare.

Recommendation of the board was accompanied by a copy of the Michigan law. This provides for appointment by the sentencing court of a guardian to administer the estate of the prisoner. The court also would fix the amount which would be levied against the property of the prisoner as due the State as cost of his conviction and incarceration.

Parents Made Liable.

Parents would be made subject to prosecution and penalty for aiding escape of children committed to the board or other welfare agency under another measure recommended by the board.

Existing law, the board said, is not sufficiently specific to make possible successful prosecution of parents and others who aid escape of committed children.

"The result," the board said, "is that children are assisted in making their escape from boarding homes and from the Industrial Home schools and are harbored by parents and even by strangers. Children are provided with money which makes possible their escape.

Drivers Held to Aid.

"They are provided with transportation by taxicab drivers who know that they are attempting escape, and in none of these instances or in similar instances is it possible successfully to bring charges against the person aiding and abetting in the escape."

Additional legislation also was asked by the board to provide for prosecution and penalty where "a parent or other adult person encourages or contributes to conduct on the part of a child which leads to the conviction of such child on charge of delinquency."

Language of the present law, it was said, "means that the person who encourages or assists a child not already found to be delinquent by the juvenile court in the performance of any delinquent act, can not be prosecuted for contributing to the delinquency of that child, but that the person who assists the child already found delinquent on two occasions by the juvenile court may be charged with contributing to the delinquency of this child. It gives no protection to the innocent child."

Columbia Shift Asked.

Columbia Hospital should be taken over by the District and administered as the maternity ward of Gallinger Hospital, the Board of Public Welfare told the District Commissioners in a report yesterday.

Taxes and Foreign "Raids" Are Driving Hollywood Players to British Studios

Eight More Are Signed to Make Pictures at GB

Specious Claims Advanced; Week's Shadow-Boxing; Theater Notes.

By Nelson B. Bell.

California's willingness to pile exorbitant income taxes upon the high-bracketed film stars, coupled with the lure of British gold, is serving as the major cause of a considerable hegira of motion picture players from Hollywood to the English studios.

An investigator doing a little grade A snooping for the Associated Press has uncovered the fact that eight more prominent West Coast players today are under contract to Gaumont British to make pictures in London. They are Sylvia Sidney, Constance Bennett, Sally Eilers, Elizabeth Allan, Victor McLaglen, Robert Young, Edmund Love and Richard Arlen.

William Powell and others of the first flight already have expressed themselves as no longer content to earn high salaries only to realize a personal emolument of about 25 to 50 cents on the dollar of what they receive in the pay envelope.

The latest batch of proselytes were signed to G-B contracts by Michael Balcon, an executive of the company, who has just concluded—and very successfully, I should say—his second visit to Hollywood within six months.

Directors and Writer Signed.

In addition to the players, Mr. Balcon drafted Raoul Walsh and Charles Reisner, directors, and Ralph Spence, one of the wittiest and most skillful of the scenarists.

On his previous visit, Mr. Balcon successfully enticed Madge Evans, Richard Dix, Helen Vinson and others to the other side of the Atlantic. But he seriously resents the implication that his "visits" are in the nature of raids on the Hollywood acting forces. Raw-ther! One suspects that it all comes under the head of "reciprocal relations," or something equally as mellifluous.

There is some basis for this contention in the cases of Miss Allan and Vic McLaglen. They really are English.

I cannot, however, go along with Mr. Balcon when he advances the contention that engagement for G-B pictures affords American film stars an opportunity to enlarge their popularity. This he attributes to what he erroneously considers the fact that few of the English-made films are shown in the United States, but find their principal market in the British colonies.

Someone ought to inform Mr. Balcon that his company has established a complete film exchange coverage of the United States—we outlined the comprehensive distribution scheme in this space something over a year ago, when it was established—and that practically every film made by Gaumont British gets a national release here, as well as in England and the colonies.

Some Recent Examples.

Many will recall that G-B recently accorded its production of "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" its world premiere in the Belasco Theater in this city.

It will be recalled, too, that not so long ago the picture Mr. Dix made on the other side, under Mr. Balcon's auspices, also was shown on the Belasco screen, as was the one costarring Madge Evans and Claude Rains. The Belasco holds an exclusive contract in Washington for the presentation of the complete G-B output.

How do you mean Gaumont British productions don't get around much in the United States?

This rather shoots a hole in the Hollywood argument, too, that the possibility of employment in England results in a "lengthening of the professional life" of a player, whose cycle of usefulness before the cameras usually is etsimated at about five years. Being seen in an increased number of productions would have an exactly opposite effect.

There are, of course, arguments on both sides of the question. It is a little odd that so many of them are fallacious.

At any rate, the exodus is on.

The name of Lela Moore, the talented young woman executing her extraordinary "Dance of the Lovers" on the stage of the Earle Theater this week, must be added to the short list of artists who take the time and trouble to write grateful notes to drama desks for complimentary notices. Ruth Etting, Mitzi Mayfair, Howard Thurston, Jack Powell, Esther Ralston and George E. Stone are among the most punctilious in the theater in this regard. A favorable notice is hardly off the presses when Miss Etting wires her thanks to the one who wrote it. Miss Moore is like that, too. All of which is what our revered friend Hobart Bosworth denominates "the writer's round of applause." And we all love it—and don't let anybody tell you different!

That "Scandalous" Imbroglio.

It is a nice, lively little sparring match that has been going on all week down at the National between George White and Rudy Vallee. Or maybe it is only shadow boxing. I wouldn't know about that.

The point is that Producer White has worked wonders with his new "Scandals," the twelfth in the line, since it opened in Richmond a month or so ago. Ed Sullivan gives you a pretty ample notion of what has been going on, in his "Broadway" column in today's issue of The Post. Turn to it and read it—as, of course, you would, anyway.

But to get back to our arm-waving and shouting. Mr. Vallee, or so one hears, signed a tentative two-week contract for the "Scandals" engagement which will run out with the end of the Brooklyn week that follows Washington, provided Mr. Vallee does not "run out" first, first.

Personally engaged, without his Connecticut Yankees, not overly pleased with the material handed him and refused permission to interpolate some of his own specialties, Master Rudy has done some spirited rapiering with his employer.

It is being bruited about, as Mr. Sullivan suggests, that Vallee will quit the show at the end of the Majestic week in Brooklyn, if he does not bid it good-bye here this Saturday night.

Changes to Be Made.

In the meantime, so he told me yesterday evening, George White has two or three new sketches and a song number or two to drop into the revue as soon as they are learned letter-perfect and adequately rehearsed. That will not be in Washington. The new tryouts will be in Brooklyn, although Willie Howard's part in the piece is being consistently built up during the current week at the National and already is much improved over Monday night's opening performance.

The sagacious Mr. White is wisely taking the week at the Brooklyn Majestic to do to his "Scandals" what Max Gordon took the extra Philadelphia week to do to his production of "Pride and Prejudice" before taking it into New York.

By the time this edition of the "Scandals" opens in the New Amsterdam Theater, New York, Mr. White will have himself a show.

History Repeats Itself.

He has a show now, compared with the one he brought here a decade or more ago to open on a Sunday night and finally succeeded in getting opened to its first audience on Thursday! And when that one opened in New York it was a smash that run practically forever.

It might be added that there is always the chance that George will give in and let Rudy do his stuff, in which case the Vallee probably will be in the show until it falls apart from old age.

The trouble is they are both actors.

When two highly temeramental and successful troupers get to shadow boxing like that, anything can happen—and usually does.

Speaking of Ed Sullivan—and a great many people have been—it seems that he and Mrs. Sullivan will not remain over in Washington for a day or two of sightseeing, following the close of his eminently successful week at Loew's Fox tonight. Mr. Sullivan is a very tired young man. What with being wined, dined and danced around by everyone from sports writers to members of the President's Cabinet, doing four performances a day and keeping his column going on schedule, the lad, to all intents and purposes, is all in. So Mount Vernon, Arlington and the usual points of interest can wait until another time. Ed is grabbing himself a late plane tonight for home and a night's sleep. Perhaps two nights' sleep with a spot of luck. Grand guy, this Sullivan. Ask anybody.

Winners in Shorts.

Eleven short subjects have been judged the "best of the month" in the December awards of the Jay Emanuel Publications, Inc., publishers of motion picture trade papers for both territorial and national circulation.

Winners of monthly awards are eligible for consideration when the final annual selections are made in April.

The two-reel winners for December are "Top Flat," a comedy, and "Desert Death," a dramatic subject.

One-reelers upon which the accolade was bestowed are color cartoon, "On Ice," "Three Orphan Kittens" and "Musical Memories;" cartoon, "Adventures of Popeye;" novelty sports, "P's and Cues;" color musical, "Countryside Melodies;" travel, "The Land of Evangeline;" novelty, "Boyhood;" color travel, "Honolulu."

A surprisingly small number of these have been encountered on local screens by these comparatively attentive eyes. How many of them have you seen?

Welcome-to-Our-City Note.

Pat O'Brien, opening a week of personal appearances on the Earle stage tomorrow, is being partied this afternoon at the Shoreham by the Warner executives.

Boy, my aspirin tablet—and break out a new ice-pack!

How They Look to the Front Row

This candid camera shot of Lois Eckhart and Bert Lahr was made during the "I'm the Fellow Who Loves You" number from George White's new "Scandals,' now packing 'em in at the National Theater. But don't get the idea that this is a duet! It is also participated in by Rudy Vallee, Gracie Barrie—the two who really sing the song—Willie Howard, Peggy Moseley and Shea and Raymond. The scene, as one might suspect from Miss Eckhart's costume, is a bathing beach.

Wardman Park.

"SQUARING THE CIRCLE." The Studio of Theater Arts presents the comedy in three acts by Valentine Kataev, under the direction of Constance Conner Brown. At the Wardman Park Theater December 10 and 11. Reviewed Wednesday evening by W. A. Whitney.

THE CAST.

Vasya.....Norman Rose
Ludmilla.....Sonje Nordholm
Abram.....Robert Duke
Antonia Kuznetzova.....Adele Gusack
Emilian.....Karl Gay
Comrade Flavius.....Ralph Howenstein
Boys and Girls of the Communist Youth

Poking a great deal of good-natured fun at love and romance, marriage and divorce, as such obtain under the Soviet regime, Valentine Katayev's comedy of Moscow life, "Squaring the Circle," was given a rousing reading by the Studio of Theater Arts as the first venture of its second season.

Here is one of those plays where overacting becomes a virtue, for the pivotal situation involves two couples, having registered at the marriage bureau, ultimately engaging in wholesale swapping of spouses. Written without rancor, the mildly satirical lines add further to the appropriateness of the exaggerated action.

Is Excellently Played.

For professional precision in performance of word and deed, this company marks a new high for local "amateur" actors, each member of the cast giving a performance of unusual caliber and vigor.

Norman Rose and Sonje Nordholm and Robert Duke and Adele Gusak are the two couples of the All-Union League of Soviet Youth whose domesticity is somewhat tangled. Karl Gay makes a bumptious and bouncing poet of the Villon type. Ralph Howenstein is the district's "boss" and ameliorator of the climactic perturbations.

Others in the company include Ethel Gottlieb, Frank Westbrook, Jean McClellan, Elinor Evans, Margery Rice, George McMorris, Consuelo Tellez, Dorothy Bolton, Florence Morin, Jehanne Burch, Vernon Lyden, Louise Shaw and Florence McLeod.

'Personality' Is Topic.

Personality as a factor in business success will be discussed by W. W. Wheeler, assistant vice president of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., in a talk to the Young Men's Forum at the Central Y. M. C. A., Eighteenth and G streets, at 8:15 o'clock tonight.

Next Week Will Bring New Play To the Capital

Helen Hayes, at National, Will Compete With the New Cinema Programs.

Gilbert Miller's production of Laurence Housman's drama of "Victoria Regina," with Helen Hayes starred, will be presented in the National Theater for the week beginning next Monday night, December 16, Miss Hayes' leading man in this biographical drama of Britain's greatly loved queen will be Vincent Price, who will make his American debut in the role of the Prince Consort, which he created in the London production of the play. This engagement will mark Miss Hayes' first appearance on a Washington stage since the memorable occasion of her premiere here in Maxwell Anderson's majestic drama of "Mary of Scotland." There will be no Tuesday night performance, owing to the star's radio contract, which provides for a broadcast on that night.

• • • •

Pat O'Brien, one of Hollywood's most popular and most versatile film players will occupy both stage and screen at the Earle Theater, beginning tomorrow and continuing for a week. Mr. O'Brien, in person, will headline the stage portion of the bill and will be seen also as one of the foremost members of the cast of "Stars Over Broadway," the screen feature for the week. "Stars Over Broadway" is a musical piece enlisting the services of both James Melton and Jane Froman, gifted singers, and Jean Muir and Frank McHugh. In addition to Mr. O'Brien, the stage bill will include Helen Charleston, making her first solo appearance in the Capital, and Sylvia Manon and her Adagio Revue. Newsreel and Freddie Clark's orchestra will complete the entertainment.

• • • •

Myrna Loy returns to the local screen tomorrow as costar with Spencer Tracy in "Whipsaw" at Loew's Fox Theater. In this picture there is said to be an unusually effective combination of humor, romance and excitement. Others in the cast are Harvey Stephens, William Harrigan, Clay Clement, Robert Gleckler, Robert Warwick and Halliwell Hobbes. The stage portion of the bill will be supplied by Duke Ellington, native Washingtonian, and his celebrated orchestra. Ivy Anderson, singer, the Four Step Brothers and Jigsaw Jackson lead the specialists appearing with the band. The Fox Movietone News and Phil Lampkin's orchestral contributions will be added.

• • • •

Tomorrow night at 10:15 o'clock Gertrude Lawrence and Douglas Fairbanks, jr., will be seen on the screen together for the first time in "Mimi" at a resumption of the Belasco Theater's late Friday night previews. "Mimi" is a gay Parisian romance, adapted from the noval, "La Vie de Boheme," by Murger. The bill will be augmented by a varied array of supplementary short reels and a new issue of the Pathe News.

• • • •

Edmund Lowe and Wera Engles will take possession of the screen at RKO-Keith's on Saturday of this week in "The Great Impersonation," adapted from one of E. Phillips Oppenheim's most exciting fictions—the sort of thing in which the debonair Mr. Lowe is at his best. The star appears in the dual role of a British nobleman and a German spy. Others in the cast include Lumsden Hare, Spring Byington, Frank Reicher and Brandon Hurst. As the foremost auxiliary attraction the ninth issue of "The March of Time" will be continued with the new feature.

• • • •

So substantial a hit has been scored by "Thanks a Million," at the Palace, that this lively musical, starring Dick Powell and featuring Ann Dvorak, Patsy Kelly, Rubinoff, Paul Whiteman and his orchestra, the Yacht Club Boys, Ramona, Raymond Walburn and Alan Dinehart, will be continued for a second week beginning tomorrow. Chic Sale in "The Perfect Tribute," an episode based on the deliverance of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, also will be held over, along with newsreel and comedy.

• • • •

Margaret Sullavan, Walter Connolly, Randolph Scott, Janet Beecher, Elizabeth Patterson and their associates in the cast of "So Red the Rose," Paramount's picturization of the Stark Young novel, will renew their downtown run on the screen at the Metropolitan Theater, beginning tomorrow. This story of the Old South is one of great romantic charm.

• • • •

"Mutiny on the Bounty," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's superb picturization of the novel by James Norman Hall and Charles Nordhoff, will continue for another week at the Columbia Theater. The principal roles are played with tremendously moving dramatic effect by Charles Laughton, Clark Cable and Franchot Tone, supported by a cast of unusual proportions.

• • • •

"Of Human Bondage," the film version of the story by W. Somerset Maughm, starring Leslie Howard and affording Bette Davis the finest opportunity she ever has had on the screen—one that almost won her the Motion Picture Academy award for the season's best acting—will be presented as chief feature of the bill for the remainder of the week at the Little Theater, beginning today.

• • • •

Ann Corio, most beautiful and highest salaried of the feminine players devoting their talents to burlesque, will be the stellar attraction at the Gayety Theater next week, beginning with the usual Sunday matinee, in connection with the "Flash and Dash" company, headed by those nimble comics, Jack Hunt and Clyde Bates. Edna (Hotcha) Dee will be another featured attraction.

Dance Rhythm Marks Concert At Agriculture

Department's Auditorium Crowded for Concert Led by Dr. Bauer.

Dr. Walter Bauer, director of the Department of Agriculture Orchestra, discarded conventional program making when he presented his ensemble in concert last night. He went so far as to meet half-way his listeners, who nearly filled the department's auditorium. He played for them a program filled to the last encore with dance music.

Of course, he didn't include "Tea for Two," or "I Got Rhythm." But he managed to get much of the spirit of these hits in selections that have held places—or used to—in the "favorite" group on the symphony concerts. Last night's audience heard Edward German's "Nell Gwyn" dances, Scharwenka's "Polish" dance, Dvorak's eighth "Slavonic" dance, "The Blue Danube" and others, but nothing harder to tap a foot to.

Dr. Bauer's concert had rhythm. His players were for the most part agreed on the particular rhythm in question, and displayed a healthy decisiveness in their accents. Energy, too, is theirs in commendable abundance. This eagerness to play, and Dr. Bauer's personable conducting make these Agriculture symphonies worth watching. Sometime in the near future they are going to be played with much greater smoothness, and with even more flexibility in their color-making.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

The Community Center Department presents the Washington Composers' Club and the Lisa Gardiner Dancers in Roosevelt High School Auditorium Wednesday night. Program: Dance from the opera "Ishtar" (Edward C. Potter), Habanera and Valse Plaintive (Mary Howe), "Topsy on Tenth Street," "The Mirror Pool" and "Boating on the Potomac" from piano suite "Lyric Washington" (R. Deane Shure), "The Desert Call" (Dorothy Radde Emery) "Impressions of the Bowery" and "The Last Knock' (LaSalle Spier), "The Kings Highway" and "Nocturne Fantasque" (Henry S. Gregor).

In these collaborations between the Washington Composers Club and the group of dancers associated with Lisa Gardiner, the public has the opportunity to hear some of the music written by fellow-citizens and at the same time to observe choreography in the making. For it was evident in many instances on last night's program that the dance patterns and pantomimic action were secondary effects with which the composer's original idea was unrelated.

This does not apply, of course, to Mr. Spier's pantomime, "The Last Knock," in which the music and the action have been worked out together to the very gestures of the actors portraying the dream of a hungry artist. Here the music had been conceived with the pantomime as the object, and not the other way around. In this kind of mimed music Mr. Spier is adept, and his miniature play held both humor and the poignancy of pity.

But in the case of his "Impressions of the Bowery," the choreography had been applied to music meant to evoke only those vague illusions of time and place which the hearer would associate with the title. The composition, in its expanded form, was played last year by the National Symphony Orchestra and then received its authentic disclosure. The original work for two pianos was presented last night and accompanied by action representing various street types.

Mr. Potter's ballet, an atmospheric piece of writing soundly based on Oriental modalities, made one wish to hear more of the score, and in the presentation, costuming and action were appropriate. Mrs. Howe's Habanera from her two-piano suite, danced by Miss Gardiner, was a familiar and welcome number, while her plaintive waltz was a most agreeable new acquaintance.

The three selections from Mr. Shure's piano suite were so neatly written for the instrument and so melodically interesting that one found oneself listening to them and disregarding the dancers. Mrs. Emery utilized some Balinese themes deftly in the impressionistic "Desert Call."

Mr. Gregor's music for "The King's Highway" lent itself excellently to the comic gravity of the "little king" so widely known in the drawings of a popular strip. His "Nocturne Fantasque," a macabre piece of writing somewhat akin in spirit to Ravel's "Le Gibbet," was made the vehicle for a Parisian Apache episode mimed by Miss Gardiner and Mikhail Nikolov.

FAT GIRLS GET THE GO-BY—SLIM GIRLS WIN MEN

Lose Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Bending and Rolling Exercises.

There's a reason why so many people find dieting slow and often times futile in reducing. The reason, doctors say, is often because a little gland is not working right.

All the blood in your body goes through this tiny gland sixteen times every day. If it doesn't pour into the blood stream about one and one-half drops of vital fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat. This fluid helps Nature to "burn up" excess food and fatty tissue in much the same way as a good "draft" acts in a furnace.

Now, physicians combat this condition by feeding this gland the substance it lacks—and millions of pounds of excess fat has been wiped out this way.

Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on the same scientific method used by doctors. So why not lose fat the easy way—without starvation diets or back-breaking, bending and rolling exercises? Start the Marmola treatment today that millions have used successfully to get rid of excess fat. The formula is in every box so you know just what you are taking. Don't wait—get Marmola today from druggists. Advt.

Hollywood

By Sidney Skolsky

Hollywood, Dec. 11.

ALLAN JONES, in "A Night at the Opera" in the hotel bedroom sequence, leaves the room wearing a shirt and goes out on the fire escape. Jones returns a few minutes later, claims Joseph Millman, and he is wearing a coat. Which leads Mr. Millman to believe that Jones keeps his wardrobe on the fire escape.

JAMES DUNN.

In "Here's to Romance," Nino Martini enters Genevieve Tobin's house for the first time. He sits down at the piano and plays a song he has never seen before. Martini takes one look at the music, and then, according to Bobby Madison, plays the entire song without looking at the sheet again for either the words or the music. It's just one of the tricks which every singer learns in the flickers.

• • • •

James Dunn is a sports writer in "The Pay Off," and he returns home after covering the Rose Bowl game, world series, training camps and the boxing matches. All of which take place during different seasons of the year. It is because of this that John Drennen finds a flicker flaw when Dunn enters the room and discovers his wife entertaining his enemy. Says Dunn: "I can't even trust you for a couple of months."

Tom Jenk writes in to say that he discovered a movie boner in every scene in "Remember Last Night."

• • • •

EVERY person finds a movie boner in a picture according to his trade, which is why we're still waiting for the "No Flicker Flaw" picture. A manicurist will write in to tell about a sequence concerning a manicurist, an aviator will tell what is wrong with the plane scene, a sailor will explain the boat scene, etc. Every one is anxious to tell what is wrong with the specialty he knows. Harry Schumr, who is greatly interested in and understands music, writes about "Metropolitan."

• • • •

During the rehearsal of "Carmen" in this picture, says Schumr, a view of part of the orchestra is shown. In full view is a tuba. The opera "Carmen" is not scored for tuba, and a first-rate conductor would not introduce it. The orchestra and singers, in another scene, are supposed to be rehearsing "Il Barbiere di Siviglia," and while they are waiting for the soprano, they decide to run, through the aria "Largo al Factotum." A close view of the conductor's stand is shown, and the score of the opera is not there.

• • • •

In the scene of the rehearsal of "Micaela's Aria" in "Carmen," continues Mr. Schumr, Micaela is seen starting to enter the scene at the back, while the orchestra plays the introduction to the aria proper. Actually, in the opera, she has already entered and sung a recitative and is well downstage by that time.

It is nice of the movies to educate the people to opera; but it isn't nice for the people who really know the operas to have to tell the movies. It's the pupil telling the teacher.

• • • •

JOAN CRAWFORD in "I Live My Life" gets angry with Brian Aherne and begins throwing things about the room. Miss Crawford picks up a lamp and tosses it to the floor. Everything breaks, says Edna Quellette, but the bulb. Also, when Miss Crawford throws this lamp, the plug comes out of the wall, but the lamp remains lit.

In "It's in the Air," Una Merkel welcomes Jack Benny in the hotel lobby and Miss Merkel is wearing a gorgeous evening gown. Then, writes Jack Devinsky, they take the elevator upstairs, and when they arrive Miss Merkel is wearing a plain dress. Very nice, changing gowns in the elevator.

Sylvia Sidney in "Mary Burns, Fugitive," is running away from Babe Wilson and she gets on the train without a traveling bag. When she gets off the train, insists Frank Armocida, she has a traveling bag. The convenient movies.

• • • •

Charles Laughton in "Mutiny On the Bounty" has been put in the boat with his men to drift. When Laughton left the Bounty to step into the open boat, he wasn't wearing his uniform coat, according to Al Lind. Yet later in the boat, Laughton is seen with it on.

In "Freckles," writes Derry Sauer, a character whose name in the flicker is Jack Carter buys groceries from Dorothy Peterson. The amount of the sale is seven dollars and some odd cents. Jack Carter gives her a bill and she gives him change in coin. An eight-dollar bill. It must be true—that they have all kinds of money in Hollywood.

Yankees Acquire Pearson in Trade of Pitchers With Indians

With Shirley Povich

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 11.

THEIR Pearson-Allen deal has allayed none of the panic that has seized officials of the New York Yankees who are genuinely alarmed at the strength acquired by the Red Sox and Tigers in the Foxx and Simmons purchases. It behooves the Yankees to do something important at the trading sessions here or take an awful rap next season.

POVICH.

Something bigger than the Pearson-Allen deal is needed by the Yanks to establish themselves as serious pennant contenders and Yankee chieftains here seemingly know it. At various times during the lobby-stalking, all three Yankee representatives—Manager McCarthy, Business Manager Barrow and Owner Ruppert—have been seen button-holing rival managers in an attempt to swing a deal. Ruppert never before has been observed taking an active part on the floor of the trading mart.

Pennantless since 1932, the Yankees face the loss of their New York patronage to the Giants unless something is accomplished here that would install them solidly in the pennant race. New York fans, waiting impatiently for Ruppert and his $60,000,000 bank roll to swing into action, can hardly be appeased by the Pearson deal. And with Tom Yawkey outbidding 'em for Connie Mack's stars, the Yankees' ambitions are being curbed.

It is history that New York demands a winner. Anything less will not popularize the Yankees. The overhead expense of Yankee Stadium, situated as it is in the midst of highly valuable real property, is tremendous and a steady clicking of the turnstiles is necessary to return a profit. But the Yanks, even if willing to spend, find themselves balked in another manner.

Except for Connie Mack, no other club owner has shown any disposition to trade for cash. Even the St. Louis Browns, who formerly preferred coin in exchange for players, are turning up their noses at cash deals. And the Yankees, the most cautious of all clubs when it comes to trading players, have little with which to tempt rival managers in the way of trading material.

The Yankees came here intent on buying Catcher Rollie Hemsley and Outfielder Sammy West from the Browns on a cash basis but find Hornsby refusing all offers. Clark Griffith, too, has spurned a cash deal for Buddy Myer, Jake Powell, Earl Whitehill and Heinie Manush, also sought by McCarthy. For players, or cash and players, the Browns and the Nats might deal with the Yankees but Ruppert refuses to give up a single pitcher or Ben Chapman.

For the first time since he took over the management of the Browns, Hornsby seriously considers his club as a factor in the pennant race and hopes to win back the vanished patronage in St. Louis. During the latter half of the 1935 season, Hornsby's seventh place Browns turned in a better record than four other clubs in the league, and, with a pair of pitchers to help out his present staff comprised chiefly of Paul Andrews and Jack Knott, he sees his club as a certain first division team.

That Washington suffered its worst financial season in more than a decade was revealed today at the meeting of American League magnates when it was reported that the Nats were the league's poorest drawing card on the road and ranked sixth in attendance at home games. Only the St. Louis Browns and the Philadelphia Athletics showed a poorer record of attendance at home games than the Washington club.

Amazement was expressed at the fact that the Athletics, who rated only above the Browns in home game receipts, were the fourth best club in drawing power on the road. Resentment was expressed by Philadelphia supporters here that the A's, who had been pleading poverty, are dismantling their team by the sale of its stars for cash in a year when they were among the league's best drawing cards on road games.

Fred Marberry, who came here expecting to sign as a pitcher with the New York Yankees, refused a contract that was conditional upon his physical condition, and will sign with the Giants . . . Marberry confesses that he is not cut out for an umpire, declaring in a voice strangely plaintive for a 6-foot-2 220-pounder that: "Ah cain't bear to have those ball players sore at me . . . Why, most of my friends are ball players." . . . Ed Linke, the Nats' fat boy pitcher, visited baseball headquarters today to impress Owner Griffith with the fact that he is down to 190 pounds in the interest of a higher salary . . . Johnny Kerr, released as a coach by the Nats at the end of the 1935 season, is here seeking a coaching post . . . Kerr also attended the minor league meeting at Dayton last month and has estimated that he has driven 3,200 miles from his home in Coffeyville, Kans., in search of a job . . . Griffith, jesting about a proposed sale of Buddy Myer to the Yanks, declared: "Well, I sold Joe Cronin to Tom Yawkey for $250,000; Ruppert is worth twice as much as Yawkey, so I'm asking $500,000 for Myer." . . . Press-room wags now are saying that if Yawkey would buy Carl Hubbell and the two Dean brothers his Red Sox would be practically certain of finishing in the first division.

Revolta's 65 Wins Golf at Sarasota

Course Record Smashed as Krueger Slips on Last Round.

Wisconsin Pro Totals a 274 in $2,000 Sarasota Open.

By the Associated Press.

SARASOTA, Fla., Dec. 11.—Johnny Revolta, the P. G. A. titleholder, blazed down the stretch in a champion's finish today to break the Bobby Jones Club course record with a 65 and snatch first money in the Sarasota Open golf tournament.

Five strokes behind Alvin Krueger, of Beliot, Wis., the 54-hole leader, Revolta swept past the field in a late finish and scored a 274.

Victor Ghezzi, of Deal, N. J., came second with 76.

The victory was worth $500 to Revolta, who started the winter tour at Orlando last week with a tie for first place and then lost top money to Bobby Cruickshank, of Richmond, Va., in a play-off.

Tie for Fifth.

Faltering on the last two rounds after showing his heels throughout the early stages, Krueger finally carded a 279 and had nothing better than a tie for fifth money.

Paul Runyan, the dependable White Plains (N. Y.) stylist, was third, at 277, and Jimmy Hines, of Garden City, Iong Island, tied for fourth, a stroke back of Runyan, with Bill Mehlhorn, of Louisville, Ky.

The sensational final round of Revolta was 1 stroke better than Krueger's performance yesterday, when he hung up the official course record at 66.

Cruickshank aggregated a 282; Benny Loving, of Charlottesville, and Chandler Harper, of Norfolk, Va., 287 each.

Low amateur score was posted by Morton McCarthy, of Norfolk, Va. He clipped 3 strokes from par in the final round with a 68 and had an aggregate of 284. Willis Hudlin, Cleveland baseball pitcher, scored 300, and Paul Waner, of Pittsburgh, 306.

Louis Predicts K. O. in Six Rounds

Both Men Confident; Fans Interested Despite Unimportance.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Joe Louis, the slickest piece of fighting machinery since Jack Dempsey was riding high, wide and handsome 15 years ago, is confident he will stop Paulino Uzcudun in six rounds or less when they meet in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

One of the largest indoor fight crowds in history is assured. It looks like a sellout, and that means approximately 20,000 persons will be squeezed into the Garden. A capacity house will bring a gate of around $120,000 or $125,000.

Interest in the 15-round event is surprising, considering that Louis is a topheavy favorite. The Garden has requests for more than 300

Little Chance Of Nat Deal At Meeting

Acquisition of Hughes, of Tribe, Now Aim of Washington Club.

BULLETIN.

Chicago (Thursday), Dec. 12. Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Ball Club, tonight admitted that Col. Jake Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, had made him a "staggering offer" for Second Baseman Buddy Myer.

Griffith denied that he was jesting when he set a price of $500,000 on Myer when Ruppert asked him flatly what the basis of a deal would be.

With the Yankees frantically seeking to strengthen their team, Ruppert is expected to make a high bid for Myer and include Second Baseman Tony Lazzeri in a deal that would rival, in the amount of cash, the $250,000 Griffith obtained from the Red Sox in the Joe Cronin trade in 1934.

By a Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 11.—Empty-handed, even as they came from Washington, Owner Clark Griffith and Manager Bucky Harris prepared to depart tomorrow from the big league trading sessions here.

Unless an eleventh-hour player deal develops, Washington will have drawn nothing from the player grab-bag at the annual big league meetings. Every projected deal thus far has collapsed either from the insufficiencies of their own offers or the unwillingness of rival clubs to trade talent.

Gauged by the reactions of clubs with which they attempted to deal, Griffith and Harris did, indeed, come to the player market empty-handed. Neither the Yankees, the Indians, the White Sox or the Browns, displayed more than a passing interest in the more-than-slightly-used talent Griffith had to offer—chiefly the 36-year-old Heinie Manush; Pitcher Earl Whitehill, who will reach the same age ere another playing season, and 32-year-old Fred Schulte, another veteran outfielder.

Cash Turned Down.

Except for Connie Mack, of the Athletics, who put a crimp in the money bags of Tom Yawkey, none of the other managers here were willing to deal for cash alone. Players in exchange was the motif of the trading session and according to the reception his offers gained, Griffith had precious little Cleveland "Throws in" Sundra, Rookie From Minneapolis Club.

Chief Figures in Deal Were Sensations in 1st Major Season.

By Shirley Povich.
Sports Editor of The Post.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—The New York Yankees, frantically attempting to bolster their team as a result of the new concentration of strength in Boston and Detroit, late today acquired Pitcher Monte Pearson from the Cleveland Indians in exchange for Pitcher Johnny Allen.

In the same deal the Yankees also obtained Steve Sundra, rookie pitcher who performed for Minneapolis last year. Sundra was the property of the Cleveland club.

The Cleveland-New York swap which centered mainly in the Pearson-Allen exchange involved pitchers who were the rookie sensations of the league when they broke into the majors a few years ago.

The temperamental Allen, acquired by the Yankees from Toronto in 1932, astounded the American League by winning 17 games and losing only 4 that season. He had continued success in 1933 when

Kingfish's Sister Adjudged Insane

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—Lena Krakow Levy, 42, sister and manager of "Kingfish" Levinsky, heavyweight fighter, was adjudged insane today and ordered committed to the State asylum at Kankakee.

She was committed by Judge Albert Isley, of Newton, Ill., sitting in County Judge Edmund Jarecki's court.

The hearing was conducted at the Cook County Psychopathic Hospital, where she was taken December 4 by the "Kingfish" and two other brothers.

Silk Toppers Ruled Out Of Rose Bowl Parade

Los Angeles, Dec. 11 (AP).—City councilmen refused to appropriate $1,200 today for a Rose tournament parade float until assured they would not have to wear silk toppers if they rode on it.

Councilman B. B. Brainard said he couldn't afford stovepipe headgear. Others said the same, so Council President Robert L. Burns said silk toppers would be ruled out in the New Year's Day event at Pasadena.

Freddy Miller Wins.

Cincinnati, Dec. 11 (AP).—Freddy Miller, N. B. A. featherweight champion, went through ten bristling rounds tonight to a judges' decision over Claude Varner, rugged Los Angeles feather contender.

It was a non-title bout, and a return affair. Miller won a disputed verdict over Varner here a few weeks ago.

Pitt 7-5 Choice In Trojan Game

By the United Press.

New York, Dec. 11.—Pittsburgh is a 7-5 favorite to beat Southern California at Los Angeles this Saturday, Ryan & Co., Wall Street commissioners, announced today.

In Saturday's other important football game St. Mary's is favored 2-1 over University of California at Los Angeles.

Southern Methodist is a 7-5 favorite over Stanford for the Rose Bowl game and betting on the T. C. U.-L. S. U. Sugar Bowl game is even.

League to Give Myer $500 for Batting Feat

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chicago, Dec. 11. — Buddy Myer's feat of winning the 1935 American League batting championship will not go unrewarded. The American League club owners today voted to present to the batting champion each season the sum of $500.

The magic words, "Retroactive to include 1935" assured Myer of his reward. By making four hits in five times at bat in the final game of the season, the Washington second baseman finished two points ahead of Joe Vosmik, of Cleveland.

Big Six Presents New Circle And a New Idea to Courtmen

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 11.—Since Dr. James Naismith, of the University of Kansas, invented basketball the Big Six Conference area has been changing the rules with all the sheer joy of a chemist among his test tubes.

The third circle is the latest.

To speed up the game, the scores—and the customers' enthusiasm—a third 12-foot circle will be drawn in the center of the court this season similar to the free-throw circles. All jump balls will be taken to the nearest circle. Players other than the jumpers will not be permitted in the circle until the ball is tipped.

The idea is to eliminate many out-of-bounds play which occur under the old rules as many jump balls are tossed up near the sidelines.

Five Six Six coaches approved the innovation at a conference meeting. The sixth, Hugh V. McDermott, of Oklahoma, was absent but probably will fall in line. The rule is applicable to Big Six games only—except on agreement with other schools.

Many innovations and experimen's can be traced to Dr. F. C. "Phog" Allen, the veteran Kansas coach who has won championships in 18 of the 25 years he has been coaching.

Allen last year was the guiding spirit behind exhibition games in which 12-foot baskets were used, with field goals counting three points. However, this idea met the same fate as Gene Sarazen's 8-inch golf cups. It was interesting, but not approved generally.

An indication of the manner in which the cage game thrives in this region is the fact the Missouri Valley A. A. U. League, probably the fastest amateur loop in the world, nestles for the most part in the area.

Statistics will be kept on games in which the three-circle plan is in effect. The findings will be presented to the national meetings of coaches and the rules committee.

Mucho Gusto Has Easy Time Taking Feature at Charles Town

Capital Horse In 4-Length Victory

Backers Collect Event Money; Double Is Worth $39.

By Walter Haight,
A Staff Correspondent.

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Dec. 11.—Mucho Gusto, an all-Washington horse, made a show of his field in winning the Richmond Handicap, today's feature race at this mountain race track. Owned by Philmore Sanford, trained by W. H. Denham and ridden by Jockey Eddie Smith — three from the Capital City—Mucho Gusto carried a load of Washington money to victory over the 7-furlong course.

As was the case in this first outing over this track, Mucho Gusto was mucho the besto. The big son of Marvin May bounded through the mud to lead Sunned to the wire by four lengths. Postponement was third, another length away.

The crowd of 3,500 was divided into those who were willing to take interest on their money by betting Mucho Gusto and those who tried to beat the favorite with a long shot. The majority of the money went for Mucho Gusto tickets with a $4 mutuel resulting.

Daily Double.

The daily double drew a pool of $3,600 and provided the lucky customers with a $39 mutuel. The winning combine was that of Tuleyries Wand in the second race and Mint Bud in the third race.

Jockey Smith had little more to do than guide Mucho Gusto. The colt went to the top as soon as Starter Palmer was satisfied with the alignment. Sunned made repeated efforts to catch his rival, but each time Smith simply let out another notch. Once straightened out in the stretch, Smith asked Mucho Gusto for some speed and the colt responded with a few jumps that placed the verdict beyond any doubt. Smith then began to pull up.

Grace Bunting, ridden by Eddie Smith, Washington jockey, scored an easy victory in the first race at a $3.40 mutuel. Grace Bunting caught Debbie before the field reached the far turn and then held Idle Worker and Stool Pigeon safe. Jockey Palumbo, on Debbie, lost his right stirrup, which may or may not have cost his mount the purse.

Tuleyries Wand, under the guidance of Palumbo, won the second race to reward the faithful with a $10.20 mutuel. Palumbo rode a waiting race and sent his charge to the front entering the stretch. Spero, prominent all the way, was second, and may have done better with a different rider. Third money went to Worthington.

Mint Bud Scores.

Mint Bud scored a nose decision over Advocate Junior in the third race. The two horses fought it out for most of the route and Ray Booker had the edge on ancient Willie Obert in the final drive. Princess Wrack was third in the field of eight. The winner paid $7.60.

Strophe, at a $6 mutuel, drove to a half-length victory over Lady Nymph in the fourth race. Both horses suffered at the start when What Cheer bounded out of the stall at the bell and swerved to the inside. Truthfully went out to set the pace, but tired entering the stretch. What Cheer closed a gap to be third.

Jinnee brought another purse to the Bond family, of Baltimore, in the sixth race and paid $4.60. The final went to Brown Wren at $5.40.

Red Rain Out of Derby.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 11 (U.P.).—Red Rain and his stablemate, Tatterdemalion, crack 2-year-olds of the C. V. Whitney Stable, will not be nominated for the Kentucky Derby next May, Head Trainer Thomas J. Healey announced today.

Police Gridmen to Drill.

Members of the Police Boys' Club 150-pound football team are requested to report at No. 5 Precinct tomorrow at 7:30 p. m.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GRACE BUNTING, $3.40, $2.40, $2.20; IDLE WORKER, $8.80, $4.80; STOOL PIGEON, $3.80.

GRACE BUNTING displaced DEBBIE midway of the back stretch, drew clear when reaching the final turn, then held sway for the balance of the trip. IDLE WORKER, prominent in the early running, finished with good courage, but could not menace the winner. STOOL PIGEON lost ground at the turn into the back stretch, worked his way up on the outside, but could not make up any ground in the closing drive. DEBBIE showed good speed early, but fell back when Palumbo lost the use of his stirrup irons. TRYING was hard ridden and had no excuses. HAYMULUS was held perfectly safe. WHITE CLOUD slipped repeatedly in the footing.

SECOND RACE—About seven furlongs. Purse, $350; claiming. The Fredericksburg. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:10. Off at 2:10½. Winner, Mrs. E. L. Bull's b. m. (5), by Westwick—Black Wand. Trained by C. M. Peltner. Value to winner, $230; second, $65; third, $35; fourth, $20. Time, 0:25, 0:50 3-5, 1:17 2-5, 1:33 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TULEYRIES WAND, $10.20; $4.40, $3.00; SPERO, $7.60, $3.60; WORTHINGTON, $2.40.

TULEYRIES WAND, hard hustled, kept in the thick of contention after going wide to the first turn, challenged strongly when approaching the home stretch, then, closing gamely, was up in the last sixteenth. SPERO, a prominent factor from the start, disposed of VENDOME when nearing the home stretch, saved ground, but could not withstand the winner. WORTHINGTON raced on the inside for the first five furlongs, dropped back midway of the final turn, but outstayed tiring horses at the close. SUN DROPS went within striking distance of the leaders, but failed to threaten when put to pressure. WASWANAPPI was held safe throughout. VENDOME stopped badly when caught.

THIRD RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $350; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:39. Off at 2:40. Winner, R. B. Archer's ch. f. (4), by Bud Lerner—Chicamint. Trained by R. B. Archer. Value to winner, $230; second, $65; third, $35; fourth, $20. Time, 0:24 4-5, 0:51 1-5, 1:17 2-5, 1:25.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MINT BUD, $7.60, $3.80, $2.60; ADVOCATE JUNIOR, $3.20, $3.00; PRINCESS WRACK, $3.80.

MINT BUD, following close to the leaders early, took command midway of the back stretch, held command thereafter under vigorous urging, and, continuing courageously, outlasted ADVOCATE JUNIOR. Latter went to the outside when straightened into the back stretch, joined the winner in the last half mile and fought it out stubbornly to the end. PRINCESS WRACK, outrun for the first half mile, circled her field when in full stride and finished fastest of all on the extreme outside. BY SURPRISE improved his position steadily and came gamely nearing the close. HYDRO GIRL was strongly handled and raced well. DUTIFUL could not reach contention. NOAJOYCE stopped fast after a half mile.

DAILY DOUBLE (SECOND AND THIRD RACES) PAID $39.

FOURTH RACE—Six and a half furlongs. Purse, $350; allowances. The Kentmere Farms. For 2-year-olds. Start bad from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:09. Off at 3:14. Winner, H. Langley's b. f. (2), by Macaw—Sonnert. Trained by H. Langley. Value to winner, $230; second, $65; third, $35; fourth, $20. Time, 0:25 1-5, 0:50 3-5, 1:20 4-5, 1:29 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STROPHE, $6.00, $3.00, $2.60; LADY NYMPH, $4.00, $3.00; WHAT CHEER, $5.80.

STROPHE, away in a tangle and blocked badly at the first turn, went up on the outside after reaching the back stretch, suffered interference midway of the final turn, then swung to the outside to get up in the last sixteenth. LADY NYMPH, shuffled back soon after the start, moved up fast when leaving the back stretch and closed willingly under a drive. WHAT CHEER outbroke her field but lacked speed in the early racing. She passed tiring horses in the closing drive. TRUTHFULLY sprinted clear going to the first turn, saved much ground, but stopped fast when challenged. GENTLEMAN faltered after making a bold effort approaching the home stretch. CADZIE stopped after a half mile.

FIFTH RACE—About seven furlongs. Purse, $450. For all ages. The Richmond Handicap. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:42. Off at 3:42½. Winner, P. Sanford's b. c. (3), by Marvin May—Sweetheart. Trained by W. H. Denham. Value to winner, $315; second, $70; third, $40; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:15 1-5, 1:31.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MUCHO GUSTO, $4.00, $3.00, $2.60; SUNNED, $6.40, $4.80; POSTPONEMENT, $3.40.

MUCHO GUSTO, full of run from the start, took command at once, saved ground while racing in the best going and was never threatened. SUNNED, well up from the start, stayed strongly at command at once, saved ground while racing in the best going and was never threatened. SUNNED, well up from the start, stayed strongly at the wire but was not good enough. POSTPONEMENT raced evenly throughout and closed with good courage. UP AND UP had some early speed but weakened in the final stages. IDLE FLIRT could never improve her position. POSTPONEMENT trailed throughout.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds and upward. The Washington Handicap. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:09. Off at 4:10½. Winner, Mrs. M. N. Bond's ch. c. (3), by Genie—Suppertime. Trained by J. B. Bond. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:25 3-5, 0:51, 1:17 2-5, 1:45 3-5, 1:53.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JINNEE, $4.60, $3.20, $2.80; CORNER BOY, $9.60, $4.80; FURLED FLAG, $2.60.

JINNEE, away in motion and suited by the footing, raced under steadying restraint for the first six furlongs, shook off CORNER BOY and drew out when mildly urged through the stretch drive. CORNER BOY, strongly reserved in the first half mile, while in pursuit of the winner, could not threaten when put to a hard drive in the last five sixteenths. FURLED FLAG, rated for the first six furlongs, moved up gamely when shaken up but could not make up any ground in the final issue. TIEMPO went well placed but tired after six furlongs. SPARTAN LADY was on the outside and raced clear throughout. BRAW SCOT trailed far back all the way.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $350; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:38. Off at 4:43½. Winner, Mrs. D. G. Herring's br. m. (5), by Bud—Bignonia. Trained by M. J. Hanton. Value to winner, $230; second, $65; third, $35; fourth, $20. Time, 0:25 2-5, 0:51 3-5, 1:20 2-5, 1:49 3-5, 2:04 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BROWN WREN, $5.40, $3.00, $2.60; PLAIN ACE, $4.80, $3.40; SOUND MONEY, $3.40.

BROWN WREN, rated back of the leaders and saving much ground, swung to the outside when challenging the pacemaker at the stretch turn, then, closing fast, was up in the final sixteenth. PLAIN ACE went to the front soon after the start, shook off stiff contention from APATHY, but could not withstand the winner after saving a lot of ground. SOUND MONEY worked her way up into contention readily, but hung after making a bold effort nearing the home stretch. THIS PLAY was never able to threaten. APATHY began tiring after six furlongs. MONEDY was held safe. CALORIC stopped.

Browning and Szabo Clash at Arena

Match Tonight Feature of Program; Chewaki to Battle Wycoff.

By George Considine.

JAMES BROWNING, Esq., first citizen of Verona, Mo., and incidentally former world wrestling champion, will take care of a chore tonight at Promoter Joe Turner's arena where he is slated to work with Sandor Szabo, Hungarian titleholder, in the feature match on the weekly mat card.

Out in Verona, Mister Browning is really a man apart. Last year he turned over $100,000, more or less, to the officials of his fair city for the construction of an auditorium. And just to prove that his heart was involved, he rassled the first match in the new building.

Mister Browning used to be the best wrestler in the world. Then, when he reached his peak, he developed a serious case of trachoma, an eye disease, which one gets from rassling. During the last three years Mister Browning has paid nearly $50,000 for treatments. But that's all right, not only because Mister Browning could well afford it but because he was declared completely cured recently.

Szabo, the Versatile.

In handsome Sandor Szabo, the exponent of the airplant scissors meets a young man of decided versatility. Sandor is the kind of guy who fences with an opponent all the while stressing technique, artistry and suavity. And then, when the time is ripe and the customers are getting restless, he becomes a veritable flurry of elbows and snorts.

In the 45-minute semifinal, Dean Detton, the refined ruffian from the University of Utah, will take on George Manich, of New Jersey. But the most promising battle of the supporting numbers seems to be the one involving Chief Chewaki, who kayoed Max Schmeling in 1928, and husky Doug Wycoff, former All-America at Georgia Tech.

Since the curtain must be raised, the management has asked Messrs. Abe Kashey and Harry Kent to perform that worthy function along about 8:30 p. m.

G. W. Frosh Defeat Friends Dribblers

Sinking shots from whistle to whistle, the George Washington Freshman basketball team routed Friends School Cagers yesterday at Friends by the score of 52-18. Capt. Vic Sampson, although playing only half the game, proved a tower of strength, tallying 14 points.

From the start there was never any doubt about the ultimate result. The visitors stepped out in front right at the gun and by halftime had piled up 45 points to the home team's 11. Coach Roland Logan saw that every yearling on the squad got at least a taste of the competition.

Western Beats Saints in Thriller

Schultz Stars as School Five Comes Back to Triumph by 27-25.

AFTER trailing for two quarters, Western High School's basketball team spurted in the closing session yesterday on the Western court to nose out St. Alban's, 27 to 25, in a thrill-packed game.

When points were needed Schultz, Western star, who alternated between guard and forward, came through. He shot four field goals to share high point honors with Gordon Grayson, Saints' forward.

St. Alban's held an 8-to-7 lead at the end of the first quarter, and was ahead, 15 to 13, at the turn.

Meager Lead.

Stepping on the gas, Western moved into a 23-to-19 advantage with one quarter left. Western clung desperately to its lead after the Saints had moved up to 27 to 25 with two minutes left.

At this point there was a mad scramble for the ball. The Saints fired at the basket with reckless abandon, while Western resorted to back court passing in an effort to freeze the ball.

Schultz emerged as the hero of the battle, aided and abetted by DeWitt, forward, and May, center. Grayson and Milligan did yoeman duty for the losers.

Catholic U. Five Shows Quality in Swamping Roanoke, 50-25

Improvement Seen in 2d Victory

Close Battle in 1st Half Turns to Rout as Cards Run Rampant.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

PURRING as smoothly as a well-fed kitten, a vastly improved Catholic University quintet ran roughshod over the smaller representatives of Roanoke College to win by a count of 50-25 last night at Brookland. Fifteen hundred fans saw the Cards taken their second straight.

It was one of those eye-for-an-eye battles throughout the first half with the eventual winners obliged to apply the heat to obtain a 21-14 lead at intermission. But Catholic made a rout of it in the final half, prodding its own total to 42 points before the visitors scored.

Hermie Schmarr, who led the scoring column with 23 points, stole the spotlight again with his antics. The husky New Englander put on everything but a juggling act for the fans and drew a responsive salvo of applause when Coach (Fod) Cotton decided to recall him before he could be evicted via the four-foul route.

Zeke Brown, who scored 10 points, and Capt. Bernie Lieb, whose passing was one of the game's features, also had prominent roles in the victory. "Yan" Yanchulis put on a hot hand near the end of the fray and sank a pot shot, his second of the year.

"Shorty" "Schreiner and Dengate were outstanding for the Maroon, but both were held well in hand through the final period as the rampaging Redbirds coasted home with the bacon.

In a preliminary game Tech High School nosed out the Catholic University Freshmen, 26 to 22.

Indians Gain Allen In Deal With Yanks

he won 15 and lost 7 but in 1934 was handicapped by a sore arm which saw him win only 5 against 2 defeats.

Last year again suffering from a wrenched shoulder, Allen won 13 games and lost 6, but was of little value to the club after mid-season. He had won eight straight games in a brilliant start last year.

Pearson, obtained by the Indians from Toledo, was the league's sensation in 1933 when, after joining the club in midseason, we won 10 games and lost only 5. Washington fans remember his big league debut when five errors behind him cost him a 1-0 defeat by the Nats.

With the Indians, Pearson won 18 and lost 13 in 1934 but during the 1935 season was comparatively ineffective, registering only 8 victories against 13 defeats.

The statement, which the Capital Times said was signed by Golemgeske and notarized, enlivened the Wisconsin athletic controversy resulting last week, when Golemgeske said he had circulated a petition calling for the ouster of Dr. Clarence Spears, head football coach, with the sanction of Meanwell.

Meanwell denied the charges of the captain-elect that he had instigated the ouster petition, and said he did not have any comment to make now on the additional remarks attributed to Golemgeske.

Wisconsin Worried By 'Grid Lure Bill'

Madison, Wis., Dec. 11 (AP).—University of Wisconsin regents, their brows already furrowed over a rift in the athletic department, took on added frowns today at the prospect the State Legislature might besiege them with athletic scholarships.

The last Legislature passed what was called the "grid lure bill," giving each legislator a scholarship award. It was charged the bill was intended to recruit a good football team.

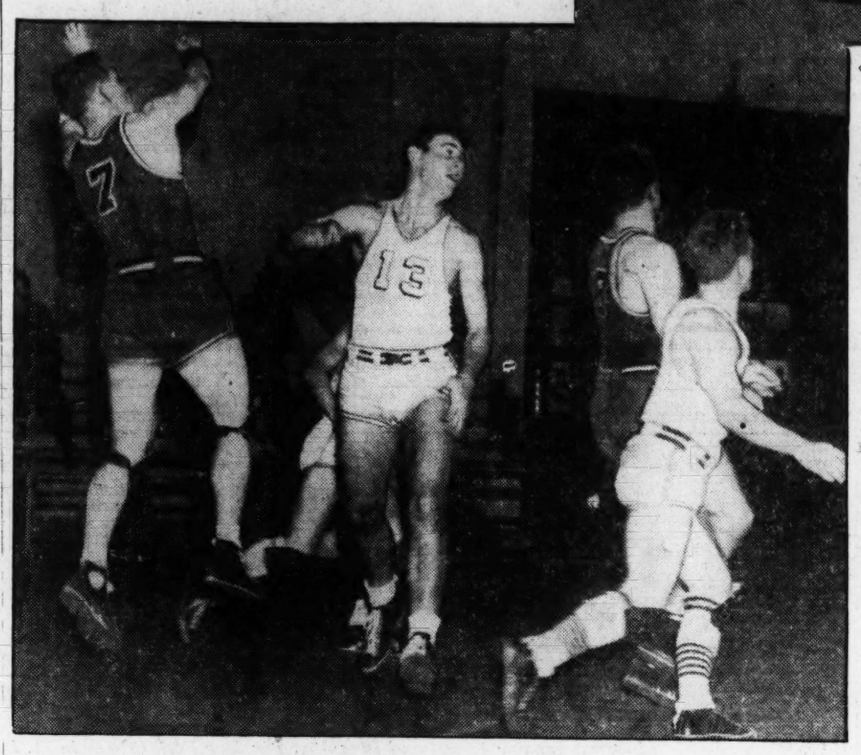
Two Points in the Making as Cardinals Scored Second Victory

Zeke Brown (No. 7), Catholic U. guard, has just sent the ball goalward in the second half of last night's game with Roanoke College. Denate (No. 13), Roanoke's star guard, has just made a futile attempt to check the flight of the ball. Near the basket are pictured Bill Adamaitis (No. 8), Catholic U. guard, and Shorty Schreiner, Roanoke forward. This goal was typical of the style of scoring used by the Cardinals throughout the game. The local quintet ran up a 21-14 advantage at the half and coasted through the final session. Brown scored ten points in all. Post Staff Photo.



Resignation Of Brundage Suggested

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 11.—Albert F. Wheltle, president of the South Atlantic Union of the Amateur Athletic Union, suggested today that Avery Brundage, newly elected president of the A. A. U., step aside to end the fight over whether America should participate in the 1936 Olympic games in Germany.

Wheltle opposed participation in the German games because of Nazi racial policies. Brundage was leader in the successful New York fight for participation in the Olympics.

The South Atlantic head said he wanted to see a unified A. A. U. and added that this could not be achieved under the leadership of Brundage. "The active associations of the A. A. U. rejected the president's policies by a vote of 54¾ to 43¼ and he, therefore, cannot expect to have the majority of them with him," Wheltle said. * * * A leader agreeable to both factions would continue on with 100 per cent co-operation."

Wheltle said he had been asked for advice upon a proposal for international games in a "foreign capital during 1936 * * * open to all persons for competition without regard to race, creed or color, to the end and effect that all athletes of the world who are opposed in principle to competition in the Olympic if held in Germany may not be deprived of the opportunity to engage in international competition."

All-American Pro Eleven Is Named

By the United Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—The All-American professional eleven—"the team of teams"—is selected today by the United Press from the National Football League, the fastest gridiron circuit in the land.

The pros get the pick of the colleges, the All-Americans and the unsung heroes from the little schools, and when a player makes good in the professional trenches he has to have more than reputation and a varsity letter. Out of the 200 players in the National Football League, the United Press singles out 11 as the group closest to gridiron perfection.

District Ring Body Will Rule On Overweights, Name Champs

By Bill McCormick.

ACTION will be taken next Monday by the Boxing Commission on the question of what to do when a District champion enters the ring overweight in a title bout, and the moguls of maul also probably will name champions and leading contenders in each weight division, it was learned yesterday.

The officials of fisticuffing were called upon to decide the overweight question when Phil Furr reported for a recent title defense against Sid Silas 2½ pounds over the welterweight limit of 147 pounds.

Silas asked for a decision, claiming that in most States he would have been declared the champion when the titleholder failed to make the weight for a title match.

The Boxing Commission has decided that if District championships are to be taken seriously some ruling must be made on this point—and also a champion and leading contender must be appointed in each class. The governing body of the sport also will lay down a rule requiring the defense of a local title within a certain number of days before the championship is declared vacant.

To date, only two District champions have been named. Buck Everett holds the heavyweight title, having won it from Natie Brown. Phil Furr won the right to be called District welterweight champion in a bout against Bob Wilson last winter and has successfully defended his laurels several times since then.

The Phil Furr-Bob Wilson encounter at Joe Turner's Arena next Monday night will be a real grudge battle, not to mention the renewal of an ancient feud.

It will be recalled that both Wilson and Furr started zooming up the ladder when boxing first was legalized here, finally reaching a position of eminence almost simultaneously. A bout between them was inevitable—and it was arranged for the now defunct Riding and Hunt Club.

Wilson made a rather disappointing stand against Furr—a stand that many still do not understand. Immediately after the bout Bobby departed for a tour of Australia.

Since his return from the Down Under territory, Wilson has been doing all right again, scoring a knockout over Glenn Morgan in Richmond and breaking the jaw of Young Raspi in a Baltimore bout.

One of the best possible semi-finals yesterday was signed to bolster the Billy Eley-Gene Buffalo main event which will head the all-colored card sponsored by the Colored Civic Association at Turner's Arena next Monday night.

Meyer Rowan and Baby Kid Chocolate are the dusky battlers engaged to participate in the secondary feature on the card. They are scheduled for eight rounds.

Tickets for the benefit bout are on sale at Joe Turner's office, Whitelaw Hotel, and the Capital Pleasure Association on U street.

Coast Doubles Matches Open Saturday

THE fifth annual Atlantic Coast Doubles Duckpin Sweepstakes, the major doubles duckpin event in the country, will get under way at the Rosslyn (Va.) alleys at 2 p. m. Saturday. The stakes, which is sponsored by the Washington Times and under the auspices of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress is an open affair consisting of ten games with all bowlers in the country eligible.

Ollie Pacini and Walter (Red) Megaw annexed the first rolling of the event in 1932. They were followed by Joe Harrison and Dutch Newman in 1933, and then Astor Clarke and Johnny Anderson set a terrific pace to win in 1934 with a world record triumph. The defending champions are Wayne (Hokie) Smith and Howard Parsons, this pair burning up the maples in their last three games to capture the title.

The second block of the classic will be rolled at the New Recreation Alleys at 7:30 p. m., and the entrance fee of $7 per man will be accepted up to starting time.

Outstanding doubles teams from Washington, Baltimore, Annapolis, Richmond and Norfolk are expected to compete.

The Swanee girls showed a flash of their early season form last night in the Ladies' District League, upsetting the leading Rosslyn team twice to cut the pace-setters' advantage to two games over Lucky Strike. The latter furthered their bid for top honors with three wins over National Beer, rolling high team game and set of 580 and 1,665, respectively. Arcadia topped Convention Hall to take the odd game, despite Mary Esten's 131 game and 368 set, which lead the list of individual efforts for the night.

Two season records fell before the masterful shooting of Jim Madden, of the Hibbs team, in the Bankers League last night at Arcadia, Madden clouting the maples to the tune of a 167 game and 393 set. Hibbs shared team laurels with City Bank, taking the game with 610, while the latter annexed high total pinfall with 1,634.

22 Basketball Contests for G. W. High

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Dec. 11.—The basketball schedule for the 1935-36 season for George Washington High School shows 22 games while a twenty-third is pending with Tech High for January 1.

Due mainly to the fact that they are performing in the State class A title race for the first time, several new opponents are found on the schedule. The State has been divided into three districts by the governing body of this league, and the winners of each district meet in play-offs.

December 14, Washington and Lee; 16, Mount Rainier, there; 17, Western, there; 19, Roosevelt; 20, Tech, there.

January 3, Mount Rainier; 10, Gonzaga; 14, Fredericksburg; 17, Petersburg, there; 18, Tech (pending); 24, Waynesboro; 31, Thomas Jefferson.

February 1, Petersburg, here; 4, Fredericksburg, there; 8, John Marshall; 12, George Washington Freshmen; 14, John Marshall, there; 15, Thomas Jefferson, there; 18, Roosevelt, there; 19, Maryland Freshmen, there; 25, Gonzaga, there; 28, Washington and Lee, there; 29, Hopewell.

The Columbia Fire Department and the Palace Laundry girls' team have the use of Armory Hall for Saturday night, but as yet have secured no opponents. Girls teams can call Rose Shapiro at Alexandria 1327-J between 6 and 7 p. m, John Travers is looking for an unlimited team at Alexandria 510.

G. U. in Court Debut Here Tonight

District Boys Dominating Squad Facing W. Md. at Tech Gymn.

THE newest model in Georgetown basketball teams will be given a trial run tonight at Tech High School, where Coach Fred Mesmer's lads meet Western Maryland in their opening game of the season. The tap-off is scheduled for 8:30 o'clock.

Regarded as the dark horse of the Eastern Intercollegiate Conference race, which opens locally next week with the Temple meeting the Hoyas, Georgetown will place a team of untried mettle on the floor. Three promising sophomores, all former District all-high selections, will appear in the starting line-up.

Mike Petroskey, a rugged and willing but unpolished player, will be at center with Harry Bassin and Don Gibeau at forwards; Ben Zola and Tommy Nolan at guards. Bassin, Zola and Nolan are former Eastern High School stars.

But Georgetown's strength does not lie wholly in its first team, for an excellent crew of reserves actually hold the key to its success. Not the least of these is Sis Esenstadt, a shark-eye on the bucket and good floorman who this season is expected to fulfill the promise he showed in his first year of varsity competition.

The Georgetown Freshmen will play Eastern High School at 7:30 o'clock in a preliminary game.

Trautman Wins Association Office

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—George Millard "Red" Trautman, former Ohio State football hero, will pick up where 74-year-old Thomas Jefferson Hickey left off in leading the American Association as president.

The husky Ohioan, known in baseball as the "man without an enemy," was elected to the presidency for two years today after a close battle of votes with Ed Shave, St. Paul newspaper man. Trautman won by a margin of 5-to-3, and the vote later was made unanimous.

Trautman, 45 years old, has been a well-known sports figure in Ohio since 1914 when he ended his athletic career at Ohio State after starring in football, baseball and basketball.

St. Alban's Trounces Park View Soccerists

St. Alban's opened its soccer schedule yesterday on home grounds with Park View, of Sport Center League, and won, 2 to 0.

The schoolboys had much the better of the opening period and tested the Park View goal keeper time and again, Mercedes, Arias and Adams being prominent in the attack, but visiting defense proved impregnable. marked up 13 points.

N. Y. Table Tennis Play Has 3 Capital Entrants

Washington has entered three competitors in the Middle Atlantic State table tennis championships, which are to be held today and tomorrow at the Hotel New Yorker in New York City. They are Elias Schuman, District titleholder; Ken Lafferty, fifth ranking player, and Mrs. Madeline Teghtmeyer, District women's champion.

Central Third In Gridiron Rankings

George Washington Rated Best in This Section; Devitt Fourth.

By John R. Vosburgh.

NOW that the football season is history, this observer is wasting no time in coming forth with his ratings of the 17 high and prep school teams of the Capital area. Here they are; read 'em and weep:

1. George Washington (Alexandria).
2. Washington-Lee (Ballston).
3 Central.
4. Devitt.
5. Eastern.
6. Tech; 7, Gonzaga; 8, St. Alban's; 9, Episcopal; 10, Western; 11 Roosevelt; 12, Bullis; 13, St. John's; 14, Georgetown Prep; 15, Landon; 16, Friends; 17, National Training School.

Risky business, perhaps, this rating a team over Washington's much-revered interhigh champions but the fact is, in rating teams there is one rule which must be followed to the letter. Namely, you can't rate a team above one that has beaten it.

As you will note in an adjoining column, Washington-Lee beat Central and George Washington beat Washington-Lee. But these rating are not made solely from comparative scores which are only partially reliable at best. The caliber of the opposition, the consistent difficulty of a team's schedule and the numerous exceptions characteristic of football must be taken into consideration.

Long Schedule.

George Washington was the sole team to lose only one game throughout the season. It had the longest schedule of the 17 schools, winning 10 out of 11 games. Massanutten Military Academy, one of the strongest teams on the Atlantic Seaboard, caught the Presidents on a day and gave them their sole defeat.

Washington-Lee not only beat Central but Handley of Winchester, Gonzaga, Eastern, Fredericksburg and Western. The fact that perhaps Central was not putting forth its full strength when it lost to Maury High, Washington-Lee and Petersburg is beside the point. The points is they failed to carry off their ten-game schedule like Alexandria carried off its campaign.

The rating of Devitt Prep above Eastern conceivably could meet with disapproval on the part of Eastern followers, the Lincoln Parkers winning seven out of their nine games. But Devitt gave Central an even tougher afternoon than did Eastern. Those teams which beat Devitt, Franklin and Marshall Academy and Fork Union Military, rate well above either Central or Washington-Lee, Eastern's conquerors.

Former Irish Stars Down Collegians

10,000 See Notre Dame Alumni Win, 10-9; D. C. Represented.

BOSTON, Dec. 11 (AP).—A collection of former Notre Dame stars gave 10,000 of Boston's football-wise public an unappreciated demonstration of the indoor game tonight by defeating a group of hastily assembled Collegians, 10-9 in the Boston Garden.

The Ramblers' winning points, scored during the last minute of play, were provided by Jim Leonard who booted a 10-yard placement field goal after Joe Sheeketsky, Holly Cross backfield coach, provided the impetus for a 55-yard march by completing four successive passes, two of which were grabbed by Leonard.

Red Fleming, former Catholic University tackle, and Leo Curley, a product of Georgetown University, were outstanding at end and tackle, respectively, for the Collegians.

Little Chance Seen For Deal by Nats to offer after he refused to trade either Second Baseman Buddy Myer or Outfielders Jake Powell and Cecil Travis.

Had Griffith been prepared to include Outfielder Johnny Stone in a Yankee deal, he could have obtained a New York pitcher, but the uncertainties of Travis and Powell in the Washington outfield constrained Griffith to keep Stone.

The lone glimmer of hope now remaining with Griffith is a possibility that he may be able to talk trade with the Cleveland Indians before the sessions break up at noon. His dealing with the Indians, however, have now switched from the search for a pitcher to a hunt for a shortstop.

Encouraged by the Yankees' failure to land Third Baseman Odell Hale from the Indians in the Yankee-Cleveland trade concluded earlier in the day, Griffith is now centering his attentions on obtaining Infielder Roy Hughes from the Cleveland Club.

Manush for Hughes.

With the Indians in need of an outfielder, Griffith hopes they may look with favor upon a trade for Manush in exchange for Hughes, who filled in excellently at shortstop for the Indians last year during the illness of Bill Knickerbocker.

Shortstop is rated the second weakest link in the makeup of the Nats, but with his inability to obtain pitchers apparently definitely established, Griffith hopes to land Hughes, who would replace the aging Red Kress in the short field for the Nats.

Convinced that the Boston Red Sox have already contracted for the purchase of Shortstop Eric McNair and Outfielder Roger Cramer from the Athletics despite denials, Griffith is awaiting the announcement of the deal in the hope he may be able to wangle a player from Boston.

He would offer the Red Sox Outfielder Heinie Manush and Pitcher Jack Russell in exchange for McNair and is also prepared to include a moderate sum of cash if it would facilitate the deal. That failing, he will attempt to trade for Outfielder Roy Johnson, whom the Sox are reported ready to part with.

What money is being wagered favors the young Negro, making his twenty-sixth professional start, to score a decisive victory well under ten rounds, but not to send the 36-year-old Spaniard down for the count.

Paulino has fought in this country on numerous occasions and fight followers have a wholesome respect for his sturdy jaw. In 69 ring battles, the woodchopper has never been jolted from his feet.

Louis has won 21 of his 25 pro victories with sleep producers. His managers and trainers see no reason why his dynamite-laden fists should not continue the knockout parade against Paulino. You can get even money in the Louis camp there will be at least one knockdown.

Game Postponed.

The Resettlement-Census game, scheduled to be played tonight at 8 o'clock in the Central High gym, has been indefinitely postponed.

Gallico . . .

Almost Wishes He Could Select Paulino to Win.

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—We are, it seems, just one day away from the great pugilistic laboratory test scheduled for Madison Square Garden, the so-called 15-round prize fight between Joe Louis and Paulino Uzcudun. I say so-called with no intent to injure the standing of the proposed entertainment, but it seems to be taken for granted by all hands, including the promoters, that it will not really be a fight, since Paulino is given no chance to win, but merely a sort of laboratory experiment as to the power of Louis' punch, and to which the public is invited to subscribe, to defray expenses.

It has been a long time since Paulino has won himself any kind of a prize fight, but still longer since anyone has knocked him down or completely out. If Louis can do it, the gentlemen of the press will have a fairer idea of his punching power, just as they had when Schmeling first bounced Johnny Risko around.

It is some sort of commentary upon the high degree of culture and civilization we have reached, that such trial horses and public slaughters have come to be accepted as part and parcel of the boxing game, and that people may be expected to pay from $3 to $15 a copy for a ticket to see the thing happen. Any meeting between two men with fists as weapons, or any other trial of arms for that matter, usually presupposes that the combatants are evenly matched, and that the engagement will be a sporting proposition with each having a fairly even chance to win.

NO one gives Paulino such a chance, and yet the sale rolls merrily on, and the Garden will be jammed Friday evening. All bets are being taken on what round Paulino will be stopped, or whether he will go the limit. Nobody, it seems, is going to bet on Paulino to win, or to have a chance. All of the advance publicity has dealt with the hardness of the Basque's head, and his ability to absorb a beating without curling up.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Bonds Offered

$45,000,000 Issue of 3½ Per Cents Is Priced at 102½%.

An issue of $45,000,000 first and refunding 3½ per cent bonds, series B, of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. is being offered to the public today by a group of investment banking houses headed by Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. The bonds are dated December 1 this year and are due December 1, 1964. They are priced at 102½ per cent and interest.

The net proceeds, estimated at $44,935,000, will be applied to the retirement of $48,863,600 outstanding series A bonds called for redemption February 1, 1936, at 105. The necessary balance will be supplied from the company's current cash and temporary cash investments.

The company is a subsidiary of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and is one of the associated companies of the Bell System. It operates in Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and part of Illinois adjacent to St. Louis. Net income for nine months of this year is reported at $10,827,317.

The underwriters have agreed to purchase $44,000,000 of the bonds at 100½. Their commission is 2 per cent or $880,000. Associated with Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., in the offering are: Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Kidder, Peabody & Co., Lee Higginson Corporation, The First Boston Corporation, Brown Harriman & Co. Inc., and Edward B. Smith & Co.

C. W. Deyo to Become Woolworth President

New York, Dec. 11 (AP).—C. W. Deyo will become president of the F. W. Woolworth Co. on December 31, succeeding B. D. Miller, who retires under the age retirement rule, it was announced today. Deyo has been identified with the Woolworth organization for 33 years. He started as an assistant stock man and advanced through various stages to his present post as vice president.

Miller will continue with the company as a director and member of the executive committee.

Extra Dividends.

New York, Dec. 11 (AP).—Directors or Detroit Edison Co. declared an extra dividend of $1 and the regular quarterly dividend of $1, both payable January 15 to stock of record December 31.

Chicago, Dec. 11 (AP).—Directors of Davidson Biscuit Co. today declared an extra dividend of 5 cents a share and an initial quarterly dividend of 10 cents on the capital stock, placing the stock on a 40 cents annual basis. Both were made payable December 23 to stockholders of record December 16.

International dollar rates were slightly mixed in most exchange centers yesterday. The British pound sterling dropped ½ of a cent in New York to $4.92½. French francs advanced .00½ of a cent to 6.60¼ cents, and Holland guilders gained .03 of a cent at 67.73 cents.

In London the dollar was higher at 4.92⅞ to the pound and in Paris it was lower at 6.603 cents to the franc.

Transamerica Unit Declares 50 Cents Extra

Federation Bank of New York Increases Yearly Rate.

Los Angeles, Dec. 11.—Directors of the Bank of America, National Trust and Savings Association (California), have declared an extra dividend amounting to $1,000,000 in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $1,250,000, bringing total dividends of the national bank for this year to $6,000,000.

Both the regular quarterly dividend of 62½ cents a share on the 2,000,000 outstanding shares of Bank of America N. T. & S. A. and the extra dividend of 50 cents a share will be payable December 31 to stock of record December 15. Directors of Bank of America, California, associated State bank, declared the regular quarterly dividend of 42 2-3 cents a share on the 60,000 outstanding shares.

As Trans-America Corporation owns 99.64 per cent of the stock of the Bank of America N. T. & S. A. and 98.98 per cent of the stock of Bank of America, California, it will receive $6,077,000 of the total $6,100,000 dividends of the two banks for 1935.

Bonus to Employes.

New York, Dec. 11.—Directors of the Federation Bank & Trust Co. voted today to increase the surplus account of the bank from $675,000 to $725,000, by transferring $50,000 from undivided profits to surplus. Total capital funds now stand at $1,550,000. The directors also voted to pay a dividend of 30 cents per share on the $10 par value capital stock of the bank, payable January 3, 1936, to stockholders of record at the close of the business December 21, 1935. This dividend is an increase of 1 per cent over that of last year.

Jeremiah D. Maguire, president, reported an increase of over 100 per cent in commercial business and announced that employes would receive a 5 per cent bonus on their yearly salary."

These actions followed within a day the declaration by Manufacturers Trust Co. of New York of a special dividend of 25 cents on its capital stock in addition to the regular quarterly payment of 25 cents.

Bulgaria Bond Interest.

New York, Dec. 11.—Speyer & Co. and J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, as American fiscal agents for the Kingdom of Bulgaria 7 per cent settlement loan 1926, announce that the Bulgaria government has transferred sufficient funds in dollars to provide for payment of 15 per cent of the interest due January 1, 1936.

Motor Shares Take Lead As Silver Excitement Subsides; Italian Bonds Rise.

New York, Dec. 11.—Stock market speculation, although smaller in volume, recovered confidence as the silver tension was lifted somewhat, and most stock groups rose moderately. Turnover was around 2,250,000 shares. Bonds were steady, with a jump in Italian issues. May wheat dropped ¾ of a cent to 95¼ cents a bushel.

Uncertainty over the Treasury's silver purchasing policy continued to be an unsettling influence in speculative markets. Partly this was true because of the prospect for readjustments that might be necessary directly, and partly because the episode of temporary withdrawal of Treasury purchase of silver gives a sharp reminder of the artificiality of so much of our Government's economic and monetary policy. If sudden halts, sidestepping and plunges this way and that can be made with silver, the same is true of gold, dollar management, doles, bonuses, budgets, taxation and everything else subject more or less to the caprice of Government head or bureaucrats. The tension was relieved somewhat when enough buying support appeared to enable the London market to set a price.

Silver Confusion.

Wall Street groped largely in the dark on silver. What is taking place apparently is known only to the high Government officials in the State and Treasury departments. A story making the rounds which at least sounded logical was that, forced to give up silver as a currency because of the tremendous suction on the currency made by our buying policy, China approached this Government with an offer to sell some 250,000,000 ounces of the nationalized metal. The money was intended for use in the Chinese government's new scheme of a managed paper currency.

Consistent with one side of the silver act, contemplating the wider use of silver as a currency in all nations, our Government is said to have refused the offer. At the counter suggestion of the Chinese for sale of the metal in the London market, our bids for silver there were withdrawn. The result is all-round confusion and inconsistency, as only could be expected from such a mess as our silver purchase act. Great Britain is accused of dirty work at the cross roads by inducing the Chinese to manage their currency with the pound sterling, but how critics of that can imagine how China could use silver for currency and keep the stuff in the country against our purchasing only the monetary experts from the Oklahoma ranches and the Nevada silver mines can tell.

Silver is bound to plague this country for years to come, and we won't have any genuine restoration of prosperity until the silver purchase act and other such laws are erased from the New Deal statute books.

Foreign exchange markets, relieved for the time of some of their anxiety over the Far-Eastern currencies, appeared to take at its face value the better tone in the Italian war news. At any rate evidence was given of the further recession of the French political and economic crisis. Francs and the other gold currencies hardened, accompanied by a report that the Bank of France would officially announce the victory by lowering its discount rate. Sterling as a consequence (lacking the support of a currency flow from other centers, and perhaps also feeling the letup in dollar sales for silver) was slightly easier.

Motors Revive.

Silver shares were mixed. Smelting recovered 2 points on the fixing of the silver price in London. U. S. Smelting was erratic. Cerro recovered some of its early loss. Coppers improved and gold shares continued firm. Homestake moved up 10 points to the highest price on record for a regular transaction.

A feature of the market was resumption of the rise in the automotive section. Chrysler spurted 2 points on the largest volume in the list. Accessories hardened. Firm prices were quoted for merchants, rubbers, utilities, chemicals, oils and amusements. Rails were uncertain. Norfolk made a new high ledge, and Santa Fe and Coast Line advanced. Pennsylvania was a trifle heavy, as was Union Pacific. Alleghany prior preferred dipped 3 points on one sale.

Steel Output Less, But Scrap Price Advances

Operating Level Is 56 Per Cent, Drop of 1 Point in Week.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 11.—A moderate decline in the rate of steel production for the current week reflects a relaxation on consumer pressure for material following reaffirmation of most existing prices for the first quarter, said Iron Age today in its weekly review. The current operating level was placed at 56 per cent, a decline of 1 point from the previous week.

As against the recession in production, there was a firming trend in prices for scrap steel, the Review declared. The publication's index of scrap rose from $13.25 to $13.42 a ton, the highest level reached since September, 1930.

"Few steel buyers," the summary commented, "actually accumulated large stocks, but most users had entered heavy commitments for December delivery and these have been revised to spread shipments through the coming quarter."

Power Output Passes All Previous Marks

New York, Dec. 11 (AP).—Following the let-down last week caused by the Thanksgiving holiday, electric power bounded ahead to a record peak of 1,969,662,000 for the week ended December 7, the Edison Electric Institute reported yesterday. Meanwhile, the Associated Press adjusted index rose to 104.6 from 104.2 the week previous, indicating a more than seasonal advance. A year ago it stood at 96.2.

Singer Mfg. Jumps 25½ Points on Curb

By the Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 11.—Rallying tendencies prevailed in various sections of the curb list today. Some of the metals, however, along with scattered specialities, moderately extended their losses of the previous day. Transfers approximated 499,000 shares compared with 520,000 the day before.

Singer Manufacturing recorded a spectacular rise of 25½ points following declaration of extra and special dividends totaling $19. Gains of large fractions to around a point were shown by Parker Rust Proof at 74½.

Wheat Influx Tumbles Price Cent a Bushel

Heavy Deliveries Due Today on December Contracts.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—Wheat suffered a tumble of a cent a bushel in value today largely because of big deliveries expected tomorrow on Chicago December contracts. Notices were given that as much as 2,243,000 bushels of wheat would be thus delivered, whereas heretofore in the past 11 days not a single bushel had been tendered.

Wheat in Chicago closed weak, ⅝ to 1 cent under yesterday's finish, May 95-95⅛, corn ¼ off to ¼ up, May 59½-59⅝, oats unchanged to ¼ lower, and provisions 5 to 12 cents down.

The Offering Prospectus, which must be furnished to each purchaser, should be read prior to any purchase of these Bonds.

THE COMPANY Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, all of the common stock of which, except Directors' qualifying shares, is owned by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, is one of the associated telephone companies comprising the Bell System. The Company, incorporated in Missouri in 1882, is engaged in the telephone business in Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas and in a small portion of Illinois adjacent to St. Louis. The Company's properties consist principally of telephone instruments and facilities for their inter-connection, the latter consisting chiefly of central office switching equipment and connecting lines. The business of the Company is subject to regulation, within their respective jurisdictions, by the Federal Communications Commission and by certain state and municipal authorities.

Seven Per Cent. Cumulative Preferred Stock—par value $100 per share	21,785,500.00
Common Stock—par value $100 per share	173,000,000.00

PURPOSE OF ISSUE The net proceeds to the Company from the contemplated sale of the $45,000,000 Series B Bonds, after deducting the estimated expenses of the Company in connection with such sale, are expected to approximate $44,935,000, and are to be applied, together with funds which the Company expects to obtain from its current cash and temporary cash investments, to the retirement of the Series A Bonds which the Company is calling for redemption on February 1, 1936, at 105% and accrued interest.

EARNINGS The Income Statements in the Offering Prospectus show the following as the Company's Operating Revenues, Total Income (the amount available for Fixed Charges), Fixed Charges (all interest charges and amortization of discount on funded debt), and Net Income, for the periods indicated below:

Years Ended December 31	Operating Revenues*	Total Income	Fixed Charges	Net Income
1932	$72,376,713.06	$16,368,136.79	$3,303,576.51	$13,064,560.28

1934	70,047,920.39	16,165,412.61	3,050,822.98	13,114,589.63
1935†	55,024,946.50	13,063,789.58	2,236,472.28	10,827,317.30

†Nine months ended September 30.

Include approximately $339,000, $256,000, $250,000 and $226,000, respectively, which the Company estimates would be refundable in whole or in part to subscribers in the event of adverse decisions in pending rate cases. Reservations of Surplus have been made against this contingency.

SERIES B BONDS The Series B Bonds will be issued under the Company's First and Refunding Mortgage and will be secured by a lien on substantially all real estate, buildings and telephone plant owned by the Company in Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas and appertaining to or useful in the transaction of its business in those States. Upon redemption and payment of the Series A Bonds, the Series B Bonds will constitute the only then existing indebtedness secured by lien on such property, except for prior tax and assessment liens and prior closed mortgages on small portions of such property securing $144,900 of bonds, of which $5,900 are matured but unpresented. The Mortgage does not cover any property in Kansas or Illinois.

Series B Bonds are limited to the amount of $45,000,000 now authorized. The Mortgage, however, permits the issuance of additional bonds of other series, which would rank pari passu with the Series B Bonds.

The Mortgage permits the Company, in certain instances, to dispose of property covered by the Mortgage without a release from or notice to the Trustee, and also provides for releases and substitutions of such property. No notice is required to be given to bondholders in connection with any such disposal, release or substitution.

There is to be paid to a sinking fund agent, to be used as a sinking fund in purchasing Series B Bonds, but only if obtainable at not exceeding their principal amount and accrued interest, the sum of $250,000, on June 1, 1936, and semi-annually thereafter; provided, however, that any unexpended balance in the fund on any semi-annual payment date is to be credited on account of the payment due on that date.

UNDERWRITING Subject to certain terms and conditions, certain Underwriters named in the Offering Prospectus have severally agreed to purchase an aggregate of $44,000,000 of these Bonds from the Company at 100½%, or a total of $44,220,000, plus accrued interest. Such Bonds are to be offered to the public at 102½%, or a total of $45,100,000, plus accrued interest. The underwriting discounts are 2% or a total of $880,000. It is expected that delivery of such Bonds to the Underwriters, and payment therefor, is to be made on or about December 18, 1935. There is no firm commitment for the remaining $1,000,000 of Bonds, but the Company expects to sell such Bonds on or before February 1, 1936, without underwriting discounts or commissions, to the Trustee of Pension Funds established by the Company and by other companies of the Bell System, at 100½%, or a total of $1,005,000, plus accrued interest.

Price 102½% and Accrued Interest

The Underwriters have agreed to purchase $44,000,000 of these Bonds when, as and if issued, and subject to the approval of Messrs. Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed, counsel for the Underwriters, and Messrs. Bryan, Williams, Cave & McPheeters, counsel for the Company. It is expected that delivery of Bonds in temporary form will be made at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. on or about December 18, 1935, against payment therefor in New York funds.

Further information, in particular financial statements, is contained in the Registration Statement on file with the Commission, and in the Offering Prospectus which must be furnished to each purchaser and is obtainable from the undersigned

Virginia Boy Shows Promise at Manlius

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Manlius, N. Y., Dec. 11.—One of the most promising players uncovered by Coach Mark Bradley, Manlius School's football coach during the last season, was Cadet James L. Denig, son of Col. and Mrs. Robert L. Denig, of Quantico, Va. The 160-pound Virginian was first reserve center all season. He saw action in most of the games Manlius played.

LEGAL NOTICES

E. BARRETT PRETTYMAN and WALTER L. FOWLER, Attorneys for Petitioners, District Building.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, holding a District Court. In re: Condemnation of land for acquisition of sewer right-of-way across lots 833 and 3, square 1556, in the District of Columbia. District Court No. 62376. Order of citation and publication. Upon consideration of the petition of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia filed in the above entitled cause, and on motion of counsel for the said Commissioners, it is, by the court, this 10th day of December, 1935, ordered that the clerk of the court issue citations to all parties interested in the land to be condemned herein particularly described in the aforesaid petition, to appear in this court on the 10TH DAY OF JANUARY, 1936, at 10 o'clock a. m., to answer the said petition and show cause if any they have, why the prayers thereof should not be granted, and why the land through lots 833 and 3, square 1556, should not be condemned for sewer purposes as provided by law. It is further ordered that a copy of said citation be served by the United States Marshal for the District of Columbia upon such owners of the land to be condemned herein and found by the said marshal or his deputies within the District of Columbia, and it is further ordered that all persons having any interest in these proceedings be, and they are hereby, warned and required to appear in this court on or before the said 10TH DAY OF JANUARY, 1936, to answer the said petition and to continue in attendance until the court shall have made its final order ratifying and confirming the award and report of the condemnation jury to be appointed by the court to appraise the value of the respective interests of all persons concerned in the land and premises mentioned and described in the aforesaid petition. It is further ordered that a copy of this order be published in the Washington Evening Star, The Washington Post and the Washington Herald, newspapers published in the said District, commencing at least ten days before the said 10TH DAY OF JANUARY, 1936. By the court: O. R. LUHRING, Justice. A true copy. Test: (Seal.) FRANK E. CUNNINGHAM, Clerk. By RALPH D. QUINTER, Jr., Assistant Clerk.

The car behind us... it sounded like a shot.
Yes... let me look.. it's going to pass us. No, it's slowing down, too. And we're stopping.
Miguel... Tono! Foi o Sr. capaz de o achar?
Tome cuidado! Deve tomar cautela!
Oh the men in this car. They jumped into that other car and are gone. Leaving us.
I saw them point to another car behind the second one and....
Let me out so I can... here's the third car..... and in it is Hartford Oakdale himself!

Give Them a Down Comfort

Full double-bed size, 72x84 and covered in soft celanese

11.95

There's nothing more luxurious than cuddling down under one of these light-as-thistle-down, warm-as-toast down-filled comforts. No weight at all, but, oh, the warmth! And in former years they've been beyond most people's means . . . but no longer. Can't you just see what a hit they'll be on Christmas morning? You'll be judged the most thoughtful, generous Santa of them all for having thought of so practical and beautiful a gift. Covered in lustrous celanese in the following color combinations:

Green & Orchid — Green & Peach — Cedar & Eggshell
Green & Gold — Brown & Gold — Rose & Green

Also Plain Green, Rose, Orchid and Others.
